White House May Get Plea Today to Act In Coal Crisis

Full Strike Report Ordered by Davis; Lewis Calls Policy Group for Monday

By Ben W. Gilbert

Referral of the coal mine stoppages to the President for "appropriate action" today appeared likely, as the number of idle miners mounted above 46,000 yesterday.

War Labor Board Chairman William H. Davis instructed board officials to present a complete report on the coal strike situation to the board at noon today.

Tuesday night, in handing down its decision rejecting the proposed Illinois coal agreement, WLB warned the United Mine Workers that "if the coal strikes do not cease by Thursday morning, the board will immediately refer the matter to the President for appropriate action."

Policy Group to Meet

Only comment to come from headquarters of the UMW was an announcement that Mine Union Chief John L. Lewis had summoned the union's policy committee to a meeting Monday at 11 a. m., after conferring with district presidents of the UMW.

Lewis' call, telegraphed to district offices, read:

"International policy committee will assemble headquarters Washington, 11 a. m., November 1. Each district will notify its participating representatives to be present."

The "truce" established last June at the conclusion of the third general coal strike is due to expire Sunday midnight, but officials said that the policy meeting was set for the following day because of "transportation difficulties."

UMW headquarters remained officially silent on the persistence of coal walkouts in at least eight States, but union officials and coal operators privately expressed the opinion that the partial stoppages would continue into next week, with a substantial number of miners idle Monday, but with many working.

The UMW Policy Committee will receive a complete report on the War Labor Board decision which outlined the terms under which the board would accept a coal wage agreement.

Legal Implications

There was some discussion in Government circles of the legal implications of possible action by the mine officials turning down the WLB's terms. One source stated that would make the mine leaders involved liable under the Connally-Smith Act for possible civil damages arising out of continuation of the strikes.

This raised the possibility that the miners might take no formal action on the WLB agreement.

Action by the President conceivably could result in resumption of at least partial Government operation of the coal industry—relinquished by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes on October 12. Officials expressed the opinion that no drastic action would be taken by the Chief Executive for several days, but that he might first call upon the mine union leadership for assistance in securing a return to work.

A UMW source speculated yesterday that the WLB decision might have contained a serious error—arising out of its failure to mention the application of the decision to piece workers—thus per-

Scoring home-front "griping" as the "worst I have ever heard," an American soldier whose hand was blown off in Tunisia, accused Washingtonians of "letting down our fighting men" yesterday at a Community War Fund rally of Department of Justice workers.

His remarks pointedly called attention to a 35-per-cent deficit in the $4,800,000 War Fund goal. The drive to attain the needed $1,677,453 ends Friday.

Pvt. Henry J. Jubinville, a patient at the Walter Reed Hospital Annex at Forest Glen, Md., recalled experiences in Africa which knocked him and hundreds of other soldiers out of combat.

Fair Work Order Ruled Not Binding

Presidential Action Called 'Directive' on Contract Provisions

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren has ruled that Government contracting officers need not insist on the insertion of so-called "fair-employment" provisions in contracts when doing so would prevent the contracts being executed, it was learned yesterday.

Warren's ruling was contained in a memorandum to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes. Warren said that a presidential executive order setting up the Fair Employment Practice Committee which instructed Government contracting officers to insert in all contracts a clause "obligating the contractor not to discriminate against any employe or applicant for employment because of race, creed, color or national origin, and requiring him to include a similar provision in all subcontracts" was a "directive" rather than an order and hence was not "mandatory."

Would Destroy Function

"Failure to include such a provision will not render void an otherwise proper contract or render objectionable otherwise proper payments thereunder," Warren said.

Although FEPC officials declined to comment on Warren's memorandum it was understood that they believed that allowing the ruling to stand would destroy their function. The provisions regarding contracts is the main sanction possessed by the committee.

The question came up when the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. refused to sign an agreement to furnish service to war agency offices in Kansas City, Mo., with an antidiscrimination clause in the agreement.

The Office of Emergency Management which does "housekeeping" on whether contracts without antidiscrimination clauses could be made legally. OEM also advised Warren that the agency had experienced difficulty leasing office

Resolution As Treaty Guide Asked

Burton Demands Postwar Draft To Give Advice On Senate Stand

By Robert C. Albright

The Constitution's requirement for a two-thirds Senate vote for ratification of treaties, which thwarted United States participation in the League of Nations, yesterday was condemned in the Senate as contrary to the majority rule philosophy of this government and as placing "a premium on inaction or weak action."

Senator Harold H. Burton, Ohio Republican, and one of the four leading sponsors of a strong Senate foreign policy declaration, nonetheless urged his colleagues to frame a postwar resolution "sufficiently definite" to meet the test of the rule.

Burton joined Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat), of Florida in criticizing the rule as placing control of the peace structure in the hands of "one-third plus one" of the Senate, but said the Constitutional requirement must still be complied with, and "it is appropriate to expect" a peace treaty will be submitted to the Senate.

Sounds Warning to Senate

"If this resolution (foreign policy declaration) gives only slight guidance as to the treaty, its advice is of but slight value to the President and to the public," Burton warned the Senate.

Senator Pepper, who with Burton and 13 other Senators are fighting to amend the general compromise resolution to provide a more definite description of the postwar world peace structure, and add military force to its powers, similarly recalled the fate of the League.

Pepper told the Senate he had no thought of any intention on the part of the Administration to circumvent the two-thirds requirement, but said the least the Senate could do was to give the President some inkling of what it will approve.

Pepper and other members of the so-called "B-2 H-2" group contend the compromise resolution offers the President no guidance, and leaves every Senator free to vote nationalist or internationalist after the war.

Wheeler's Contention

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, one of three nationalist Senators opposed to any resolution, later entered the debate to advance fears that prior action by the Senate might leave the President free to avoid Senate ratification of the treaty.

Wheeler said there "seems to be a precedent on the basis of which, were the Senate to agree to some resolution similar to this one, it would be possible for it to be said that under this resolution, for instance, we were authorizing him,

Builder Put Plant 'On the Beam,' Says Johnsville Manager

By Mary Spargo

Henry J. Kaiser, production wizard, is getting the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. right "on the beam," so the Johnsville, Pa., plant can turn out 10 to 15 planes a day, Philip M. Stephenson, Johnsville plant manager associated with the company since its beginning, told the House Naval Affairs Subcommittee yesterday.

The afternoon hearing was delayed by a conference of Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia, of the subcommittee, and Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia of the full Naval Affairs Committee with Tom Clark, head of the criminal branch of the Department of Justice.

The subcommittee some days ago requested a report from the Department of Justice as to what, if any, action the department was taking to prosecute under the

Economy Unit Turns Guns On Free Mail

Byrd Would Make Each Agency Pay Own Postage Bills

By Anne Hagner

Enormous stacks of free Government mail, expected to run close to two billion pieces this year, went under fire of the Byrd Joint Economy Committee as Postmaster General Frank C. Walker testified that the Postoffice Department had handled 1,954,000,000 more pieces of Federal mail in 1942 than in 1930.

Walker, requested to appear before the committee to recommend ways of cutting down the volume of such "penalty" mail, declared that he did not think it was within his department's province to determine how much mail should be sent out by the various departments, and that "control should be left up to department heads."

Despite the tremendous increase in pieces of mail, the Postmaster General added, the department would be in the black this year for the first time in 24 years. Its profit,

Police Called to 'Protect' Gable From Women at Pentagon

By John G. Norris

Clark Gable is going back to Hollywood to finish a new picture!

But wait, girls; hold your cheers. You won't see it. The handsome movie star turned Army airman is heading for the Coast to complete an Air Force training film he's been making during the last six months in England and over Europe.

Captain Gable revealed his plans at a press conference held at the Pentagon Building yesterday. His visit resulted in a near-cessation of work at the War Department, as hundreds of women clerks mobbed the corridors for a glimpse of the former star. Squads of police had to be called out to hold them back.

For nearly an hour Gable submitted to a barrage of questions fired at him by the regular reporters covering the War Department and virtually the entire contingent of Washington's women correspondents.

The latter turned out "dressed to kill," some even with orchids. They carefully explained to their male colleagues, however, that this was for the tea given for Mrs. Roosevelt later in the afternoon and not for Clark.

Captain Gable, seemingly a bit embarrassed by it all, courteously replied to all manner of queries put to him. These ranged from technical questions about the types of cameras used in filming aerial combat to this one uttered in a soft, feminine voice:

"Captain, would you say that the

Knox Asks Political Truce

Navy Will Restore Freedom Of Seas to All, President Says

Mightier than ever and poised to destroy the enemy that dared to challenge America's freedom, the United States Navy yesterday was praised by this Nation's leaders on the war's second Navy Day.

President Roosevelt, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, struck the keynote of the day when he promised that the Navy will "restore freedom to all the seas for all nations."

In a Navy Day address in Philadelphia, Knox pleaded for a political truce in international affairs between the two major American parties. Running mate of Alf Landon in 1936 and one of the two Republican members of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, Knox declared:

"It is vital to the war effort that questions which concern our relations with other nations, especially our Allies, be kept out of political campaign discussion."

Navy Day celebrations in Washington were highlighted by a dinner of the Navy League at the Hotel Mayflower last night which heard Eric A. Johnston, forceful president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, call for a "strong America" after the war.

"Never again shall America be caught with her defenses down," he declared, calling upon the country's leadership to "assume our share of the responsibility for world order."

Admitting that "after this war we may find ourselves an island of free enterprise just as after the revolutionary war we found ourselves an island of democracy," Johnston strongly advocated that our homecoming servicemen find "jobs, security against old age and sickness, of course. But they will be just as anxious for the retention of the freedom to work or not to work for whom they please—to be their own masters."

Admiral William J. Leahy, chief of staff to the Commander in Chief, warned against any complacency after the war. Speaking at a Navy

Rommel and Hitler Need 'Face Saver;' 5th and 8th Armies Score Minor Gains

A Job Ahead

By Noland Norgaard

Algiers, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Allied armies in Italy recorded relatively minor gains today as the last German rear guards were withdrawn into the Mondragone-Vasto Mountain line, entrenched certainly for a strong defense of the approaches to Rome and perhaps based to mount a spectacular counteroffensive.

The British Eighth Army advanced from 3 to 6 miles and occupied the towns of Civita Campomarano and Acquaviva Collecroce, both above 7 miles below the Trigno River, a score of miles inland from the Adriatic. The Allied Fifth Army on its front occupied two stretches of high ground facing Massico Ridge, one in the Francoise area and the other, known as "Mad Dog Hill," near Raviscanina.

Face Difficult Job

The Allies faced a difficult job as they pulled up before the Germans' new line, and, regardless of the plans of Hitler's general staff, one fact stood out in bold relief: the Allies can hardly hope for anything approaching a decisive victory over the Nazis in Italy before snow falls in the Apennines.

Since the fall of Naples October 1 the attacks on the road to Rome have netted hardly an average gain of a mile per day, and the going will not be any easier in the remaining 95 airline miles.

On the basis of the best information here, the Nazis have been using roughly 100,000 troops in the line, and official sources reported that possibly 20 German divisions (perhaps 300,000 men) were in Italy at the time of Italy's capitulation.

Thus regardless of whatever reinforcements are subsequently sent from Germany or France, Marshal Rommel would appear to have forces not only adequate to man the strong mountain defense line but even to attain sufficient superiority for substantially heavy counterblows at selected points.

New Attack Possible

Certainly the establishment of the new German defense line does not necessarily mean that the German plan is simply to try to hold it. A terrific counteroffensive is possible, and in the opinion of some Allied leaders there are many reasons why the Nazis may make a big gamble on such a move.

These include Hitler's pressing need for a victory to bolster the morale of his people; Rommel's

Rabaul Raid Destroys 58 Jap Planes

By C. Yates McDaniel

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific (Thursday), Oct. 28 (AP).—Continuing a "smash Rabaul" campaign, a strong force of Liberators and Lightnings hit that key Japanese base on New Britain Monday for the third successive day with 151 tons of bombs, destroying 21 aircraft on the ground and knocking 37 out of the sky.

It was the fifth raid of the month on Rabaul, during which more than 400 enemy planes have been destroyed or rendered unfit for flying.

In the Monday raid, announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, six or more waves of high-flying Liberators swept over Rabaul within 10 minutes. Heavy antiaircraft fire and 70 intercepting fighters were employed in futile enemy attempts to break up the formations.

As on previous raids, with the exception of one October 18, fighters went along with the Liberators, but most of them had to turn back because of a storm over New Britain and the four-engined raid-

Vichy Fears Nation-Wide Lawlessness

Underground Grows Bolder as New Wave Of Disorder Spreads

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—A spokesman for the government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain said tonight over the Vichy radio that a new wave of resistance was sweeping France and "complete disorder is likely to break out at any moment."

Asserting that "sabotage and clashes between terrorists and police are taking place all over the country," the announcer said, in a broadcast recorded by the British Ministry of Information, that the atmosphere in France "is ripe for complete lawlessness."

Scores of Arrests Ordered

At the same time, the Fighting French radio at Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, said that German Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt had ordered the arrest of scores of French armistice army officers.

For several days reports from neutral countries have pictured the French underground—one of the best organized in subjugated Europe—as coming more into the open. These reports also said that Nazi storm troopers in some places in France had taken over complete policing of the country from the Vichy authorities.

Warned of Reckoning

Allied warnings that French policemen are to be called into account when the day of French liberation comes for their attitude toward the resistance movement is believed to be one of the reasons for the German action.

Leaders of the French underground are said to be slipping into North Africa daily to consolidate invasion plans with the resistance movement inside the country. One of the latest to reach Algiers, Andre le Trocquer, an outstanding Socialist, reported that there are more than 60,000 members of the Socialist Party alone in France working in the underground organization.

Court in Confusion

Marigny Counsel Challenges Crown's Fingerprint Evidence

Nassau, Bahamas, Oct. 27 (AP).—The fingerprint evidence with which the crown seeks to convict Alfred de Marigny of the murder of Sir Harry Oakes was challenged as "improper" evidence today, and Nassau's most sensational criminal trial was thrown into confusion pending a ruling by the surprised chief justice, Sir Oscar Bedford Daly.

An American investigator had just built up to the climax of the case against the slain millionaire's son-in-law when Defense Counsel Godfrey Higgs arose to question whether a "lifted" fingerprint could be introduced.

As Higgs made his challenge, Sir Oscar inquired:

"Does the defense mean to infer that the fingerprint may be a forgery?"

Higgs replied firmly: "I do, sir."

Police Capt. James O. Barker of Miami had explained to the jury that he used adhesive rubber to "raise" from the surface of a bedscreen in the death room an impression of De Marigny's right little finger for photographing.

"This is entirely new evidence, your honor," said Higgs with dramatic unexpectedness. "The best evidence is the screen with the print on it," and he pointed to the figured bedscreen which stood near Sir Harry's bed the night of July 7 when the baronet was beaten and left to die on a blazing bed at his estate, Westbourne.

"There should be no objection to that," commented the robed, bewigged justice, puzzled by the challenge.

"But there is no print on the screen now," Higgs shouted, adding:

"I can prove that it is improper to raise a print. Now we have only Barker's uncorroborated word that it came from the screen."

"I cannot find a case," Higgs added, "in which a lifted print ever was submitted in evidence.

"This is the first time the pro-

Berlin Calls Fighting A 'Super Battle;' New Soviet Attack In White Russia

London (Thursday), Oct. 28.—Russian army forces chased a retreating German army in the southern Ukraine yesterday through towns 48 miles west of Melitopol and 27 miles west of Dnepropetrovsk as they killed 3000 Germans and captured guns and stores along a 150-mile front, Moscow said today.

The fighting—termed by Berlin a "superbattle"—saw the Russians capture a total of more than 120 towns and villages as they surged behind the Germans from Goreloe on the Sea of Azov to Krinichki, west of Dnepropetrovsk in the Dnieper River bend.

Goreloe is on a tip of land jutting out into the Sea of Azov 20 miles from a narrow isthmus joining the Crimea with the mainland.

"The Germans, retreating under the blows of our troops," are "suffering tremendous losses in manpower and equipment," the Russians announced.

Nearing Lower Dnieper

Other gains on the flat steppe land, which the Germans found difficult to defend, brought the Russians west from ruined Melitopol to Novo-Alexandrovka which is only 30 miles from the lower Dnieper.

The 70-mile railroad from Zaporozhe south to Melitopol was cleared of Germans and the advance went 14 miles farther south to take in Akimovka, said the Moscow midnight communique, recorded here by the Soviet monitor from a broadcast.

Three secondary roads were cut west of Melitopol in the drive to Novo-Alexandrovka, cutting off many Germans from further retreat. More than 10,000 Russian civilians, who were being herded westward to labor camps by the Nazis were released by the Russian advance, which threatens to trap thousands of Germans in the Crimea.

"Retreating under the blows of our troops the enemy is leaving behind him artillery, mortars, ammunition and military equipment," the communique said.

Nazis Admit Withdrawal

In the Dnieper River bend heavily reinforced German armies failed to halt the Russian cleanup. Earlier the German radio had announced "a large withdrawal movement" in this area.

From Dnepropetrovsk the Russians fanned north and south in the eastern end of the river loop to capture 30 towns and hamlets, including the railway town of Surkoye, 10 miles southwest of Dnepropetrovsk, and the district center of Krinichki, 27 miles to the west. A regiment of German infantry fell in the battle.

Umberto to Lead Italian Army In Ousting Nazis

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 27 (INS).—It can be disclosed today that plans for the front-line participation of an Italian army of liberation in the fight against the Germans have reached the "when-where" stage.

The Italian army will be commanded by Crown Prince Umberto, who has had two conferences with Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark.

During one of the last visits General Clark made to the battle line he was asked whether he expected Italian units "in the line" before long. He replied:

"There is a question of reequipment, and right now we have our own problems along that line, but they will certainly be fighting alongside us much sooner than one might expect."

Kaiser Has Put Brewster 'On the Beam,' Says Witness

Smith-Connally Act for the August strike at Johnsville. They also asked whether prosecutions could be instituted against those who instigated the refusal of plant guards, members of the Coast Guard Reserve (Temporary), to take their assigned posts, an action out of which grew the strike.

Calls for Union Records

Drewry yesterday requested Paul Krebs, secretary of Local 365, UAW-CIO, which has a closed shop contract with Brewster, to produce all the union financial and other records to show what is done with dues paid by 18,000 members. It was previously testified that each member pays $1.50 a month in dues.

Under sharp fire from some committee members who sarcastically referred to Kaiser as "Aladdin with his magic lamp," Stephenson justified his prediction of Kaiser successes by saying that Kaiser had cleared the decks for action by expediting arrangements to produce only Corsairs at Johnsville, that he already had labor "100 per cent behind him," and that there was every indication he would continue to have labor confidence.

Stephenson referred to Kaiser's attitude toward labor as "business-like," and said that he analyzed labor problems from "a coolly factual point of view."

Criticizes Managements

Reluctantly, after strong pressure from the committee, the plant manager criticized the two previous managements put in by the Navy after Navy seizure of the plants in April, 1942. He described former President C. A. Van Dusen, first Navy appointee after the seizure, as a good production man who was inept in his handling of labor. He described Frederick J. Riebel, jr., another Navy selection, who has recently testified before the committee, as "headstrong." He indicated that Riebel insisted upon gaining his point with the union on trivial matters, thus creating a lasting friction which delayed production.

His testimony, analyzed in relation to that of preceding witnesses from the Navy, indicates that while the early managements were unable to cope with the problems of a mushrooming organization, the later managements were handicapped by inability to deal with labor, with Kaiser the only man to undertake the job who could handle both sides of the problem.

Navy witnesses previously had testified that the Navy seized the plants, not because of labor difficulties but because the management did not cooperate in getting out production. Stephenson testified that labor troubles did not become an important factor in the Brewster situation until the Van Dusen management.

Had "Percentage" Contract

Representative Grant (Republican) of Indiana questioned the witness as to whether officers held over from the original regime of James Work, first president of the company, should not be removed from connection with Brewster because their loyalties were toward Work and not toward other managements.

The connection of Stephenson with the Miranda brothers, I. J. and A. J., were explored. Stephenson testified that because in the early days of the company, Work could not afford to pay him an adequate salary, he had also been named sales manager with a right to a percentage of contracts obtained.

He testified that he had been successful in obtaining contracts in this country but had no success with foreign governments. Accordingly Work made a contract with the Mirandas and F. William Zelcer, who set up the Brewster Export Co. to obtain foreign contracts. The contract held a provision that the Mirandas were to pay back contract fees due to Stephenson, the witness said. He testified that the export company had paid him $58,000 for his part in bringing in domestic orders.

Bought No Stock

He said he had received warrants to purchase Brewster stock at $5.50 a share, regardless of the market price from Work, and said he had given 100 each of these warrants to the Miranda brothers and Zelcer. Stephenson said he had never purchased any stock, even though the warrants had been given him.

Stephenson denied that there had been any sabotage from enemy agents at Brewster. He said that one worker, described as a moron, had lighted ar incense burner within a plane to kill the smell of garlic his coworkers ate for lunch.

Zelcer, who was expected to be a witness yesterday, is expected to appear today. Zelcer, by virtue of holding an option on 100,000 shares of stock owned by Work, and by virtue of nearly 50,000 shares owned by him and the Mirandas, recently tried to regain a place in the company management, the committee has developed.

Stiff German opposition was overcome in the Red Army advance. The Nazis hurled heavy tank forces into a counterattack but massed Russian artillery and mortars pounded them back.

Rail Junction Bombed

Soviet bombing planes attacked the railway junction of Apostolovo, 24 miles southeast of Krivoi Rog and 36 miles northwest of Nikopol, by day and night, wrecking freight cars loaded with Nazi equipment.

Far north of the Ukraine fighting a Russian attack awoke the White Russian Front. The Red army men were declared to have captured more than 50 populated places and cleared the highway between Nevel and Usvyaty in the sector nearest the Latvian frontier. Advances of up to 6 miles were made.

The German radio also had already acknowledged withdrawals "west of Smolensk."

In the southern Ukraine, the Germans strove to stem defeat with planes, tanks and men plucked from their garrisons in Italy, France and Germany, Moscow said. Transport planes dropped supplies to large groups of Nazi troops isolated by the speedy Russian advance.

In numerous areas the Germans were completely outflanked. One Russian push in the Dnieper Bend was aimed at the Kiev-Znamenka-Nikolai railroad. If successful, it would cut the road and menace the escape of even more thousands of Germans.

German planes attacked frantically well into Soviet lines as Russian artillery divisions pounded the Germans with massed guns and tank units swarmed against the German positions.

Day rally in Richmond, Va., Admiral Leahy flatly asserted that the size and efficiency of our Navy will be "a major consideration" at the peace table and in the maintenance of peace.

James Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, told a Los Angeles audience yesterday that "the destruction of Japan, as that of Germany, will require hammering blows at the heart of the country. Brilliant naval victories, devastating raids of our airmen, will probably not be sufficient to induce collapse," he added.

Echoing sentiment expressed in Navy Day addresses throughout the country, Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Navy chief of ordnance, declared in Atlanta, Ga., that the United States will be called upon to play an increasingly important role in international affairs. "We are in world politics to stay," the admiral said in reference to the present struggle.

Direct Siege Predicted

A hint of how the Navy intends to force that fight came from Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade, speaking at San Francisco.

"If Japan, badly hurt, proposes to withhold its major fleet to defend home waters," he said, "it will not be long before we shall have the mandated islands and other strongholds under direct siege, and thence project our operations into the China Sea."

Joseph G. Grew, former Ambassador to Tokyo, expressed the opinion that Japan's navy, still powerful, might come out in force at any time and warned against underestimating the enemy.

Predicts Smashing Blows

In Washington, Senator Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, told his colleagues that release of naval units from Mediterranean operations will bring "smashing blows against the enemy in the Pacific."

In a word to those on the home front, Rear Admiral G. D. Murray, former commander of the carrier Enterprise, told a Chicago audience:

"Men who have faced death and who are still face to face with death—men who have seen their shipmates blown into eternity—these men have a definite feeling that somewhere, somehow, something is wrong when the word 'strike' appears concerning any industry vital to the successful conduct of the war, in which they are playing so vital a role."

Byrd Group Opens Fire on Free Mail

he said, will be about two million dollars.

The Byrd committee meeting came close on the heels of a decision by the House Ways and Means Committee to turn down the proposed 4-cent postage rate for ordinary letters.

Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee asserted that the figures cited by Walker showed that Government agencies were "piling up mail out of all proportion to good business" and that he thought that all the Government mail that came to his own office in a year "isn't worth two bits."

Chairman Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia suggested to Walker that penalty mail should be paid for by each agency so that such expenditure would have to be justified to the Appropriations Committee, thereby cutting out unnecessary mailing.

Ons Pocket to Other

"That would be aking money from one pocket and putting it in the other," the Postmaster General observed. "Also, it would mean that there might be considerable delay in the process of affixing postage."

"Aren't there machines available for that purpose?" the Virginia Senator asked.

"They are difficult to get during wartime," Walker replied.

Byrd produced several samples of penalty mail in which small enclosures were sent out in large, bulky envelopes.

"Great extravagance in these," he declared, handing them to Walker. "Or course, you have no control over such matters but it could be supervised by department heads."

Of the 1,900,000,000 pieces of free mail estimated for this year, said Walker, only about one-quarter would originate in Washington departments. The remaining three-fourths, he said, comes from the thousands of Government offices afield.

Values of penalty mail if postage were paid ran from 41 million dollars in 1940 to 71 million dollars last year and an estimated 103 millions for the current year, it was revealed.

Frederick J. Lawton, special assistant to the director of the Bureau of the Budget, told the committee that of 3,772,000,000 Government envelopes allotted for the fiscal year 1944, the Army received 60 per cent, Office of Emergency Management was allotted 640 millions, the Navy Department 370 millions, the Treasury 318 millions, Agriculture 153 millions, Interior 14 millions and all others 264 millions. Not all of these are sent through the mails, he pointed out, as many are used for interoffice communications.

Police Called to 'Protect' Gable

personal discomfort of flying at high altitude dulls your sensitivity to battle?"

"I beg your pardon," Gable gulped, but then went on to explain that oxygen masks were used to overcome such tendencies.

Could he make any comparison between acting in war films and being in actual combat?

"Well," replied Gable, flashing his famous smile, "you don't care how you look in the real thing."

Makes No Claim

Had the war changed him? Well, he hadn't thought about that.

Questioned about the aerial combat he was in during his five raids over Europe, Gable modestly said he didn't think he was ever "in a really close corner," though his plane was hit by both flak and cannon fire many times. He didn't believe he had shot down any Nazi fighters, though he had to drop his camera and man a machinegun many times.

Was he afraid when the fighters came in spouting lead?

"Certainly I was scared," Gable replied.

The former actor disclosed that he was in a bomber piloted by a Washington man on one of his raids over Europe. This was Lieut. Col. Theodore R. Milton, of the Kennedy-Warren, commander of the plane "Ain't It Gruesome." The latter's mother, Mrs. Alexander M. Milton, widow of an Army officer, was present, covering the story for another Washington newspaper.

Director, Not Star

Gable said he didn't know what assignment he would have after completing the training film he has been taking overseas. The latter includes some 50,000 feet of color film showing how an Air Force unit trains, lives and fights in Europe It will be shown to Army forces about to go overseas.

(Girls, you can probably get to see it by joining the WACS—and the Army needs WACS—but Clark only appears in a few hundred feet of it He is the director, not the star, of the production.)

British Held Aiding Yugoslav Guerillas

War Sidelights

Prisoners Stoned, Say Repatriates

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—Germans who had lost their homes in bombing raids stoned working parties of British prisoners at Nazi camps, a repatriated British seaman said today.

"German morale is falling fast," said Seaman Fred Salisbury, who told of seeing a German soldier in tears because he had been ordered to Russia. "They dread Russians."

Douglas Bland, a sickbay attendant in the Royal Navy, said that food in the prison camps was of poor quality and that prisoners would have been in a bad way except for Red Cross parcels.

The first prisoner-of-war exchange of the war passed through its final phase today at Barcelona, where 1083 British, Australian, New Zealand and Indian servicemen, 464 of them wounded, were transferred to British ships in exchange for 1061 Germans, of whom 465 were wounded.

Meanwhile, the Berlin radio, in a broadcast heard here by the Ministry of Information, quoted a Swiss Red Cross representative as predicting another prisoner exchange involving only Americans and Germans would take place soon, probably in Barcelona.

Few Would Kill All

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—Prof. A. M. Low, British scientist and inventor, through the Chronicle, asked readers:

"If a new weapon were invented which could kill every man, woman and child in Germany tomorrow by pressing a button in this country, would you press the button?"

The "No's" won by a good margin, maintaining there was a strong element of good in Germany.

But among those who replied "yes" was Harry Seccombe of Manchester who wrote:

"Where is that button? I'd push it."

A military policeman on the German-Belgium border who was captured by the Germans, Seccombe said: "After escaping, I listened to the Nazi songs of hate, to their song about invading England and saw the evil glow come into their faces. If that landing had materialized, I wonder whether there would still be as many soft-hearted sentimentalists to say the Germans are not all bad."

Tommies Fighting Side by Side With Partisans, Says Report

London, Oct. 27 (INS).—British infantrymen were reported today to be fighting side by side with Gen. Josip Tito's Yugoslav Partisan guerilla warriors against the Nazis.

The revelation was made in an Ankara dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Allehanda, quoted by Reuter. The dispatch added that the Tommies were receiving heavy equipment by sea.

Though this is the first report of Allied ground troops actually aiding the tough Yugoslav guerilias, both American and British liaison officers were recently reported to be at Partisan guerilla headquarters.

The latest Partisan communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio announced the Nazis have launched a major offensive against the Partisans in the Province of Slovenia.

The Partisan communique admitted that the Yugoslavs are having difficulties in rugged, mountainous Montenegro. Partisan troops were said to have been forced to retire from Andriyevica after heavy fighting.

In other parts of Yugoslavia and behind German lines, the Partisans continued to score successes. The communique announced successful operations had been carried out along the Hungarian frontieir near Chachini, where the Partisans demolished four important railway bridges.

Cairo, Oct. 27 (AP).—The information office of the Yugoslav government-in-exile declared today many thousands of noncombatant men, women and children as well as captured soldiers had been killed by the Germans throughout Serbia, Hercegovina, Montenegro and Bosnia for their allegiance to Gen. Draja Mihailovic.

It listed 24 separate instances of villages burned to the ground or destroyed by divebombers, of villagers burned alive or shot or sent to concentration camps to "discipline" the population.

Thirty villagers of Boukavac were burned alive, this report said, the Montenegrin town of Shanik completely destroyed, two entire tribes wiped out and 8000 inhabitants of Srem transported to concentration camps in a "cleanup" conducted by 12,000 German SS troops.

It also estimated that nearly 5000 Serbs alone had been killed, including 385 shot in mass reprisal in Belgrade.

In Ankara, meanwhile, a reliable report said the islands of Cos and Kalymnos in the Dodecanese were packed with Germans wounded in a full-fledged air and sea battle with the British. Five days ago, spectators on the Turkish coast said the Germans had attempted a landing on an Aegean island, but had been beaten back.

'Rosy' Report On Repatriates Laid to Censors

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—A one-sided picture of repatriated American soldiers' accounts of their treatment at the hands of the Germans and Nazi reaction to defeats in the last year were presented to the American public as the result of drastic United States Army censorship yesterday.

The net effect of the censorship, which eliminated 650 words from one Associated Press dispatch recording the repatriates' arrival at Liverpool, was to leave the impression that returning Americans had nothing but good to say about the Germans.

All complaints against German treatment and food were eliminated. Only reports of kind treatment were passed by the censor.

Earlier dispatches from Stockholm, where the prisoners first were interviewed, already had indicated that their sojourn in Germany was not a love feast. But no such remarks were permitted in the stories from Britain.

"The Germans are down and when they're down, they talk," said a British soldier who was exchanged on the same conditions as the Americans and who was quoted in the Daily Herald. "Every ordinary man and every woman is praying for an end to this war. The know they are finished."

American Army regulations limited stories of the returned prisoners to facts concerning camp welfare only.

Some American correspondents did not cover the repatriation because censorship reduced the story virtually to a list of names.

Correspondents noted that British censorship was more liberal than the American, although Britain has a far greater stake in prisoners.

In Washington, the War Department, which was said to have ordered the restrictions, withheld comment. Army officers said they could discuss the situation "for background," but not for publication. Both the Office of War Information and the Office of Censorship explained they had nothing to do with the matter, explaining the London censorship in question was completely under control of the military.

Schweinfurt Tip-Off Story Discredited

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—American Eighth Air Force bombardment officers, concerned about the morale of their fliers, took steps today to discredit a neutral report that a five-hour tip-off to the Germans led to the record loss of 60 Flying Fortresses in the raid on the Schweinfurt bearing factory October 14.

The report was regarded by some responsible persons here as wily German propaganda which at least had stirred up a controversy.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, said in Washington a few days after the raid that he personally wondered whether the Germans had not had such advance information.

Targets Kept Secret

Targets are secret within a small group of officers until the bomber crews are "briefed" a few hours before the take-off. Then thousands necessarily know. It is conceivable that word could leak out to an enemy agent.

However, responsible Eighth Air Force officers today cited facts tending to discount the tip-off report.

They noted that the Nazis had mustered a defensive force of fewer than 300 fighters, whereas if they really had had a tip-off they could have been expected to rally as many as a thousand to protect such an important target; that the defensive ground smoke screen at Schweinfurt was just getting going when the attackers got there, and that the Germans were unable to launch a strong defensive attack until after vital damage to the target was done.

Can Detect Raid Coming

Combat crewmen pointed out that German radio location instruments are able to detect a raid coming as soon as the Fortresses get very far off the ground in England, and that every mile the bombers proceed narrows the possible target area, giving the enemy an increasingly good chance to get his fighters there.

The fliers themselves are inclined rather to ascribe the heavy loss to the fact that their indirect course kept them over enemy territory 4 hours and 17 minutes.

Postwar Resolution Demanded To Meet Senate Two-Thirds Rule

or consenting, let us say, to an alliance between Great Britain, Russia and the United States, and then it could be proclaimed, because the resolution would be broad enough to include that."

Burton said he thought there was nothing in the compromise resolution or the B-2 H-2 amendments so specific or concrete, in his opinion, that ratification would be unnecessary. The Ohioan said that for his part, he was willing the resolution should be amended to require ratification.

But he told the Senate the two-thirds rule itself "is contrary to the general philosophy of a Government which guides its policies by majority vote."

Responsibility on Senate

"Accepting this constitutional requirement at its full face value," said Burton, "the responsibility now rests upon the Senate to see to it that every issue involving the two-thirds rule is so fully presented to the Senate and to the public that the vote upon it is a vote squarely upon the merits and rises far above all considerations of partisanship, personalities or prejudices."

Speaking for the compromise, Senator Kenneth McKellar, (Democrat) of Tennessee, one of the Senate veterans who battled for Woodrow Wilson's League, opposed the B-2 H-2 amendments, said Senators must be left to vote "free and untrammeled" on the terms of the peace treaty itself, and declared:

"I am going to interpret the terms of the Connally resolution myself when it comes to agreeing to the peace terms."

U. S. Must Have Bases

McKellar said the Allies must give the U. S. naval and air bases and adjoining land, sea and air routes, if the U. S. is to aid in keeping world peace.

"If world peace is to be kept," said McKellar, "and if the United States is to pledge herself to aid in keeping it, we must have the necessary and protected world air and sea bases, stations and routes wherever they may be, and to whomever they now belong, with full and perpetual title thereto and sovereignty over them to the end that we may take a part in policing the world.

"We should not be put in the position of a policeman on the beat without having a mace, a billy or a gun."

space in some cities because of the presidentiali order.

"Since telephone service in Kansas City, Mo., can be obtained only through the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and available office space in certain sections of the country is at a minimum, the refusal of contractors to accept contracts containing the antidiscrimination clause, has caused considerable administrative difficulties," OEM advised Warren.

The Comptroller General, a former member of Congress from North Carolina, directed his reply to Byrnes in the latter's capacity as OEM liaison officer.

"It is to be assumed," Warren said, "that the instances will be few in which contractors will refuse to execute contracts with the Government solely by reason of the inclusion of an antidiscrimination provision. But, in such instances, no useful purpose could possibly be served by a requirement that the Government agency involved could not consummate a contract with such individuals or firms without the provisions in question, especially if the desired service could not be procured from any other source."

The paragraph of the executive order relating to antidiscrimination clauses in contracts starts out: "It is hereby ordered as follows."

are asked to give a few dollars for War Relief and at-home charities."

Jubinville recounted how a mine blast inflicted 150 shrapnel wounds, tore off his hand, and blinded him temporarily.

"British surgeons restored my sight when American doctors were unavailable. I challenge you to say you refuse to give to foreign relief.

This American veteran by the term "foreign relief" referred to 14 organizations providing assistance to refugees from Axis-occupied countries, aid to our men in prison camps and sailors of the U.S. Merchant Marine. More than half a million dollars of this year's fund total goes to these agencies.

On the home front the fund means shelter for homeless orphans, medical care for the indigent sick, healthful environment in clubs and summer camps for underprivileged District boys and girls.

Two and a half million dollars of the fund total is earmarked for local charitable groups.

The fund last night stood at $3,122,547, 65 per cent of the goal, according to audited figures reported by chairmen at a box luncheon at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

One development was outlined which leaders hope will provide increased donations by the drive deadline Friday. The metropolitan division, according to Chairman Coleman Jennings, will be allowed freedom of city-wide solicitations. Heretofore activity of this division had been limited in favor of the Advanced Gifts division.

Wini Shaw, the "Sweetheart of the USO," an entertainer who has appeared at service clubs in Africa, Italy, Iceland, and the Caribbean, threw her personality into an appeal to workers.

She surprised her audience by reporting her son, soon to be 17, intends to join the armed forces and will be receiving aid supplied through public generosity.

Two extraordinary gifts were recorded—one for $10,000 and one for $10.

The latter came from children who benefit from the Barney Neighborhood House and was made up of their nickels and pennies. The Rockefeller Brothers Fund presented the large amount to Mrs. Emory Land, wife of the Maritime Commission director.

Other totals announced yesterday were as follows:

Advanced Gifts, $$437,992, 79 per cent; Business and Finance, $873,099, 64 per cent; Metropolitan, $85,980, 28 per cent, and Government, $1,693,183, 70 per cent.

mitting this group a substantial wage increase.

Although there are comparatively few piece workers in Illinois, the number is very high in the Appalachian producing area.

Chairman Davis said this belief was "perfect nonsense." He explained that the board decision represented a rejection of the whole agreement, although it stated the conditions under which another agreement might be approved. He said that the conditions laid down in the decision with respect to hourly rated employes would apply with equal force to piece workers.

The Associated Press reported the number of idle by States as follows: Alabama, 19,000; Illinois, 5000; West Virginia, 4554; Virginia, 3500; Kentucky, 7685; Indiana, 6000; Tennessee, 600; Arkansas, 400.

In a special concurring opinion on the Illinois decision, Public Members George W. Taylor and Wayne L. Morse said the ruling "constitutes a significant gain for the mine workers, but at the same time, preserves the wage stabilization program of the Government and continues to protect the people of the country, including workers from the effects of inflationary wage increases."

58 Japs Bagged In Rabaul Raid

ers had largely to fight their way across the target.

Only one member was lost in Monday's raid, but six members of the crew were saved. This brought Allied plane losses for the five raids to 13. The crews of two fighters and a Mitchell medium bomber on previous raids also were saved.

Forty-three planes were damaged in addition to those destroyed.

One hundred and seventy-seven planes were knocked out in a 350-ton strike there October 12. Sixty more were destroyed October 18. Then raids October 23 and 24 destroyed 133 others and probably destroyed an additional 48.

126 Planes Destroyed

The October 12 total of 177 included at least 126 destroyed.

This continued aerial neutralization of Rabaul has been coordinated with the bombing into uselessness of other enemy bases on Bougainville—Rabaul's front door.

Today's communique announced that in the area just north of Bougainville, a Liberator had bombed and damaged an enemy destroyer.

Another of the intermittent 2000-mile strikes at the Japanese-held nickel mining center of Pomelaa, Dutch Celebes, also was reported. Ten Japanese fighters were intercepted and one was shot down and one damaged at a cost of two bombers.

In the south Bougainville area where the Japanese have been forced by continued aerial bombardment of American planes to quit using three airdromes, these cratered fields were dive-bombed again, today's communique added.

Lakuani Base Hit

The Lakuani airdrome, which received only scant attention in the other raids—Rabaul has at least five fields—drew the concentrated wrath of the raiders. Twenty of the 70 Japanese interceptors were damaged.

A single offensive stab of the Japanese airforce also was announced today. Their planes, utilizing the cover of darkness, caused damage and casualties at Kiriwina in the Trobriand group, north of New Guinea's eastern tip. This island was one of two occupied at the outset of the current Pacific offensive June 30, presumably for the setting up of air bases.

why WALK-FRICTION wears out shoes—and YOU

The dictionary calls friction: "Resistance to motion due to contact of surfaces." Your shoe soles, all shoe soles, gradually grind away because of friction with sidewalks. And this same friction helps to wear you down.

To minimize walk-friction, John Ward has developed "Mastershoes", made them so fluently flexible, through a patented process, that actually they seem to walk with you. Thus "Mastershoes" wear longer and also conserve your valuable energy. . . . A few steps in "Mastershoes" are worth a hundred words of technical explanation. Try on a pair today, and your wartime shoe worries are ended.

End of Dimout Along Coasts Set for Nov. 1

The lights are coming on again in this part of the world, it was disclosed last night with the announcement that the "dimout" now in force along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the Gulf of Mexico will be lifted November 1, and replaced with a vountary "brownout."

The War and Navy Departments, the Office of Civilian Defense and the War Production Board made a joint declaration of the removal of the dimout restrictions, saying it was made possible by the successful campaign against enemy submarines operating in American coastal waters. The fear of U-boats picking off merchantmen silhouetted by sky glare from the coastline has been removed, it was said.

As Current-Saver

At the same time, the WPB urged that the dimout be replaced by the "brownout," a voluntary semi-dimout, by which government and industry can save fuel and electric power throughout the country.

Meanwhile, Army, Navy and production officials requested all communities now subject to the dimout be prepared to resume the regulations on orders of defense commanders. Such dimout orders would be at the request of sea frontier commanders only in the event of renewed submarine activity, it was said.

Officials explained that in the event of areturn of a serious U-boat menace, the communities must also be prepared for a total blackout. The Navy, it was said, would be the judge of that.

In suspending the regulations, Army officers asked that permanent installations not be altered so as to prevent a prompt return to present dimout restrictions when and if required.

In ocean resorts and other coastal communities, street lights were shaded to throw the beams downward, auto headlights were ordered run on dimmers, while householders were cautioned to draw their shades at night.

Restricted Schedule

The Government-industry brownout campaign is directed to conserve electricity and thereby save coal and other fuel and also indirectly save manpower, materials and equipment.

The WPB would have indoor and outdoor advertising promotional and display lighting eliminated entirely by day and burn at night for not more than two hours and then only during the period from dusk until 10 p. m.

All "white-ways" would be included in the brownout and theater marquees and building entrance lights would be turned out when the establishments are not open for musiness. Street lights would be dimmed to the amount necessary for public safety.

Printing Office Club Will Sing Tomorrow

British Girls' Bridal Gowns Lent by American Clubwomen

By the Associated Press

English bridegrooms want their brides in white, and since wedding gowns can't be had in England for love, friendship nor money, an American aide to cupid has come to the rescue.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, recently returned from England, turned up yesterday as the benefactor of English romance.

While in England she was deeply impressed by the fact that bridegrooms wanted their brides in white, but that no wedding gowns were available. Nor were the girls permited to borrow from their American cousins.

After a request sent to 250 million women of her organization, the Junior Clubs of Indiana responded immediately with an exquisite bridal dress and veil. The Federation of Maryland was second to purchase an outfit.

Now British girls wishing to borrow a gown make application to their service headquarters through the unit officer. About a week before the eventful day the package is sent. Ten shillings are charged for the use of the gown so that it can be cleaned and worn over and over again.

Bomb Sight Made By Thousands for British in Flint

Flint, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP).—The AC Spark Plug division of General Motors Corp., disclosed today that it has in mass production a bombsight of British design of which it already has completed and shipped thousands from one of its local factories.

The AC-built sight consists of two units, the computor and the sighting head. It is known as the "T-1" and has two gyroscopes, one in the computor for the pitch of the plane, and one in the sight for the plane's roll.

It is being manufactured here for use on British-constructed and lend-lease bombers. It is described as especially valuable for night operations and low-altitude bombing.

Marigny Counsel Challenges Crown's Fingerprint Evidence

secution has testified about something on a piece of rubber. When it was testified in magistrate's court I thought it was something on the screen.

"I would not object to a photograph of a raised print on the screen itself. When I use the word raise I mean a print dusted and made visible, but not lifted from the object."

Taken aback by the sudden assault on the piece of evidence upon which he depends to tie together all of the case against De Marigny, Attorney General Eric Hallinan asserted that "the raised prints are actually the original prints."

He insisted that the question was one for the jury to decide.

The fingerprint is the first ever offered at a murder trial in the Bahamas, and Sir Oscar asked citation of precedents, particularly in American courts.

Finally, indicating that he wants to hear from more authorities, he adjourned court for the day.

There was an air of tension in the crowded courtroom all day, and De Marigny in his cage-like prisoner's dock listened intently.

Barker had told of using scotch tape and adhesive rubber to lift prints from the screen.

Some were recognizable when photographed, he said.

"Did you find on the screen any print similar to that of the accused?" asked Hallinan.

"I did."

Barker told of being summoned to Nassau by the Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas.

He processed various objects in the room for fingerprints, the officer related, and took the prints of Harold G. Christie, house guest who found the body; Maj. Herbert Pemberton of the Nassau police, and Dr. H. A. Quackenbush, first physician summoned.

Barker then told of examining De Marigny, who readily submitted to the test, and finding singed and curled hairs on his arms, hands, face and head.

Because there was considerable fire in the bedroom caused apparently by an attempt of the attacker to hide the crime, Barker said, anyone present at the time would have burned hairs.

He declared that De Marigny offered several different explanations for the burned hair.

The stage was set for Barker's testimony at a stormy session in which the chief justice caused Police Capt. E. W. Melchen, also of Miami, to change the story he told yesterday of knowing nothing about the fingerprint until he heard Barker describe it to Lady Eunice Oakes, the widow, a week after De Marigny's arrest.

Melchen altered his testimony so that it went into the record this way: "On the ninth of July Barker and Pemberton went to the RAF photolab to process a print they said was that of the accused."

Through his questioning, the justice also developed that the weapon with which Sir Harry was struck on the head four times never was found.

He learned that no footprints were found in Westbourne or on the porches, although there was a heavy rainstorm the night of the slaying.

Jury foreman James Sands asked the question which enabled Melchen to strike back at the defense's apparent move to contend that De Marigny may have touched the screen when he was taken upstairs by the detective for questioning July 9.

"Could the accused, in going up and downstairs, possibly come in contact with that screen?" Sands asked.

"No, sir," replied Melchen.

Barker stood, arms folded, on the witness stand as the verbal battle raged.

"I am surprised," the dignified chief justice commented. "Neither counsel prepared me for this development."

Hallinan said officers could have photographed the print on the screen, but failed to bring along a fingerprint camera because they did not know that the only one in Nassau was out of order.

"You could have telegraphed for it," Sir Oscar told Hallinan.

"Why didn't you photograph it on the original surface?"

"Because I didn't have a camera," Barker replied.

"It is my contention," Higgs declared, "that this needless destruction has not been satisfactorily explained, and this print should not be admitted in evidence."

"I shall take this under advisement," the justice ruled.

Barker had told of finding two of De Marigny's prints on the bedscreen, which he processed July 9, the day after Harold G. Christie, a house guest at Oakes' estate, discovered his host's body when he went to call him to breakfast.

One, Barker said, was an impression of the defendant's left little finger, which he found July 9.

He said he locked the raised prints in the safe of his Miami office while he went to Maine for Sir Harry's funeral and to confer with the widow, Lady Eunice Oakes.

Upon his return, he added, he reexamined the prints and found one of the right little finger which was somewhat clearer. It is this one that the Crown seeks to use against De Marigny.

Billion Asked by President For Veterans' Year of College

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday to provide now for one year's study in a college, or other educational institution, after the war for every qualified man and woman who serves six months in the armed forces and desires additional education.

He sent to the legislators a billion-dollar program developed by a White House-appointed committee of educators, who proposed also that a limited group of service personnel with special aptitudes be permitted to carry on their education at Government expense for up to three years.

Mr. Roosevelt appointed the committee last November when the draft was lowered to reach boys of 18—the age when the great majority are just completing high school.

With its report he sent to Congress a message saying the Nation is "morally obligated" to provide training to equip service personnel for gainful pursuits in peace time, and that the Nation itself will have need for trained men and women.

"We must replenish our supply of persons qualified to discharge the heavy responsibilities of the postwar world," he said. "We have taught our youth how to wage war; we must also teach them how to live useful and happy lives in freedom, justice and decency."

Under the committee's proposals, the Government would pay the tuition and fees of each full-time student, and also pay $50 a month living expenses for single persons. Married students would receive $75 a month plus $10 for each child. Part-time students would receive tuition and fees.

The members estimated that out of an Army and Navy of 12 million a minimum of one million might be expected to take advantage of the Government's offer. On this basis, the figure the program's cost at one billion dollars.

Control of the program would be largely centered in the States which would be charged with responsibility for certifying individuals to the Government for financial help.

In asking action now, Mr. Roosevelt endorsed the committee's recommendation that an office be established immediately in a permanent Federal agency to assist the States in developing postwar educational programs. They also recommended that the President urge the governors to establish State agencies.

While the war's end is not in sight, the President commented, provision now for the educational program would help maintain the high morale of the troops.

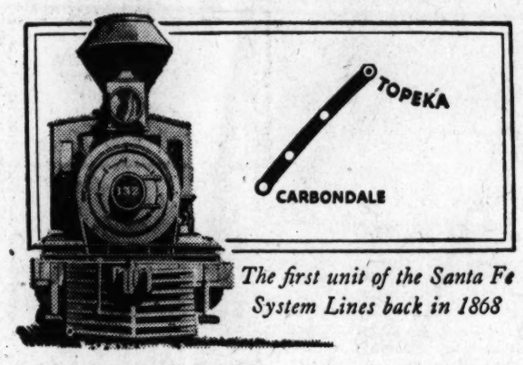
The NEW Winning of the West



The first unit of the Santa Fe System Lines back in 1868

JUST 75 years ago this week, October 30, 1868, rail was laid on the first unit of the Santa Fe System Lines—a 17-mile stretch in Kansas from Topeka to Carbondale.

Today, Santa Fe System Lines are over 13,000 miles long, serving people and products from Illinois to California, and from Colorado to the Gulf of Mexico.

Looking Ahead

Farsighted men, even years back, began looking ahead to the Southwest and West not only as a land of enchantment and natural resources but as the coming theater of industrial expansion in this country.

The war has brought home the soundness of this vision—big things are happening today in the states of Santa Fe land.

States served by the Santa Fe

Thousands are flocking to Texas—great state of farm, factory and free enterprise—to man its booming plants, cultivate its soil, and ride its far-reaching ranges.

Kansas is becoming famous for its plane factories and munition plants, as well as its golden wheat fields.

Arizona is winning new fame in the fields of agriculture, live-stock, mining, and as an aviation center.

Oklahoma's oil is writing bright new pages in the science of war, and advances for the peace to come.

Freight cars are rolling out of New Mexico loaded with essential copper, potash and zinc, as well as steers and sheep.

Illinois, Missouri and Iowa are saying it around the world with factory and food products.

The lead and silver and coal from Colorado's mineral-filled mountains are doing great things toward winning a war.

And in California, steel mills, shipyards, power dams, plane plants and lumber mills are working around the clock to supply more, more, and more of the sinews of war.

Santa Fe all the way for U. S. A.!

We of the Santa Fe are too busy "keeping 'em rolling" for Victory to take time off to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the laying of our first rail.

This is, however, an appropriate time to point out how important to the development of this New West has been the linking together of its States by Santa Fe rails. We are naturally proud to be part of this great development.

WPB Orders Some Nonvital Mines Closed

By the Associated Press

Asserting that production of many vital metals has outstripped war needs, the War Production Board yesterday ordered the closure of numerous mines producing low-grade ores, banned additional imports of some meals, and withdrew premium prices paid to certain marginal mine operators.

Underscoring the manpower shortage problem, WPB said the use of critical manpower cannot be justified in marginal mines inasmuch as stocks of metals once woefully short now are adequate.

Mines in virtually every mineral-producing area will be affected by yesterday's order, which, however, exempts iron and copper ore production. Hardest hit are the "war baby" mines producing bauxite (aluminum), lead, vanadium, tungsten, chrome, graphite, molybdenum and cobalt.

Specific curtailment orders issued by WPB include:

Withdrawal of premium prices in the B range to lead mines not now producing or lead mines having a low production-per-man in labor shortage areas.

When stockpiles of ferro-alloys (vanadium, Tungsten, cobalt, molybdenum, etc.) have been built up to recommended levels, production will be reduced to meet current needs.

Premium prices in the B and C range were withdrawn from zinc mines not now operating, and from mines having low per-man-production in labor shortage areas. No new zinc mines will be financed by the Government.

New contracts for the importation of cobalt, chromite and vanadium were banned.

Low-grade chrome mines in Montana will be closed and maintained in stand-by state. Labor now employed in these mines will be diverted to mines producing more critical metals.

Contracts with the large domestic graphite producers will be canceled, and the mines held in stand-by condition. No more graphite will be stockpiled from these mines.

Domestic production and foreign imports of mercury in 1944 will be reduced to approximately 70 per cent of 1943 totals.

The production of bauxite by the three major Arkansas producers was ordered sharply curtailed.

Ad Club Hears NBC Official Talk of Radio

National Broadcasting Co. Vice President Frank M. Russell addressed the Advertising Club of Washington at a luncheon in the Hotel Washington yesterday on "Current and Postwar Problems of the Broadcasting Industry."

He pointed out that it is possible for millions of new stations to be established, so far as technical limitations are concerned, and said that permits for wave lengths up to 254,000 kilocycles are being considered by the Federal Communications Commission.

Russell emphasized that the radio industry has a wide-open field in which expansion into television broadcasting is purely an economic question. He predicted that the growth of new radio stations during the postwar period will depend on the number of television receiving sets built. When there are sufficient sets in one area, he said construction of new stations will follow.

Russell told of the recently perfected television relay unit, "about the size of a cigar box," which operates unattended, adding 50 miles to the range of a picture-radio broadcast, formerly limited to about 60 miles from the point of origin.

5 Jap Women Held in Probe Of Nazi Prisoners' 'Petting'

FBI Investigates 'Little Axis' Drama Near Colorado Camp

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 27 (AP).—Five Japanese women, one carrying a small baby, were in custody today for investigation stemming from the discovery of pictures which showed Japanese women in the embrace of German prisoners of war, six of whom escaped from a nearby internment camp last week.

The women were taken into custody for questioning by a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent at a farm where Japanese-Americans from the Amache relocation centers were employed on seasonal leave.

In Denver, Gordon Nicholson, agent in charge of the district Federal Bureau of Investigation office, confirmed that the women were being held and questioned.

"The matter is under investigation," he said. "That is all that we can say at this time."

The six prisoners who escaped last week were recaptured, two at a time, across the State line in northern New Mexico. Police Chief Nolan Utz of Las Vegas, in searching Corpl. Heinrich Haider, formerly of the Afrika Korps, discovered three snapshots which he said showed Haider and two other unidentified men in the arms of Japanese women.

Haider and another escaped prisoner were captured at Watrous, near Las Vegas.

The pictures were published in the Denver Post, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation obtained possession of them.

Director James Lindley of the Amache relocation center said that seven Japanese, including four women, were on seasonal (temporary) leave in the Trinidad area. In addition, he said, five families comprising 24 persons were resettled in the Trinidad area. All, he added, were found to be loyal.

Cleveland, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Association of American Medical Colleges voted to remove the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston from probation imposed a year ago, the school's dean, Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, said today.

Wallace Calls Food Biggest '44 World Problem

Vice President Henry A. Wallace declared last night food will be "the dominant world problem in 1944" and said the United States cannot solve this problem by itself but only by working with the other United Nations.

"If we could spare enough ships to move it, the United Nations have this year over 60 million tons of food in exporting countries ready to ship to our Allies abroad and to the liberated areas," he said, speaking at consumers' meeting arranged in Cleveland, Ohio, by Food for Freedom, Inc.

Of this total amount, he said, only one-tenth could come from this country, although probably more than one-third of the protective foods, like dairy products, meat and eggs could be supplied by the United States.

Plight of Russians

He called special attention to the plight of the Russians, whose civilians get "scarcely half the calories per day our civilians consume." To understand the food shortages of that country, the Vice President said, Americans would need to imagine the "whole Mississippi Valley breadbasket" in possession of the Germans.

"Thus far, Russian recapture of territories has added more to her population to be fed than to her current supplies of food. The hard year for Russia will be 1944."

The Vice President said there can be postwar jobs for every one in this country, "but we must plan to produce 40 per cent more peacetime goods than we ever did before" and be prepared to use more ingenuity "to defeat Lieutenant General Unemployment than it will take to overthrow Hitler."

U. S. No Santa Claus

Striking the same note in regard to relief feeding, Eugene Staley, economic expert with the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, said yesterday in a speech in New York this country had no intention of becoming a Santa Claus, nor on the other hand did it desire to be a "Simon Legree."

Staley said a bold economic initiative now would hold down the total relief problem, and cited what had been done in North Africa to restore food production in that area.

He said Americans must remember that when nations are able to produce more they are able to consume more. "What we want is large and prosperous markets," he said, "not the absence of competition."

Warning that Government controls over supply and transport cannot be precipitately dropped the minute the war ends, he said the Nation would be prepared for a "transition period." Relief and rehabilitation in other countries cannot be abandoned before a "level of assurance" has been reached so those nations can go ahead on their own, he said.

World Cooperation By Business Seen

Seigniory Club, Quebec, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—World cooperation among business leaders was envisaged here today by members of the joint committee of the United States and Canadian Chambers of Commerce, meeting before the official opening tomorrow of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual session.

Joint Chairman Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., said that what had been done by North American business leaders clearly showed the way for the United Nations in some of their peace work.

Rep. Boren Declares OPA Wields 'Autocratic Power'

By the Associated Press

Representative Boren (Democrat) of Oklahoma, chairman of a special House committee investigating grade labeling plans, yesterday charged the Office of Price Administration with questionable policies, maladministration and wielding autocratic powers.

In summing up the committee's report on hearings held last May and June, Boren said:

"OPA has been guilty of bad administration in not consulting people of industries involved, of enforcing questionable policies by attempting to revolutionize the country's economics, and of wielding autocratic powers that will wipe out the little business man."

Small Retailer in Peril

The committee's interim report goes into findings on OPA regulations covering knitted underwear, hosiery and processed foods.

"The imposition of uniform standards and prices upon the underwear industry would force the service mills to disband their service organizations and discontinue branch stocks, thereby destroying the channels through which the small retailer is now supplied," the report says, continuing:

"This process, if extended to other lines of merchandise, would in time force thousands of small retailers out of business. The final result would be the killing of brand-name preferences, indirect confiscation of valuable property rights, unnecessary interference with consumers' freedom of choice and regimentation of an important industry to the degree that all incentive to uphold or improve quality of service would be removed."

Cites Hosiery Order

No other order issued by OPA has created as much opposition as the one on women's rayon hosiery last March, the report says.

Declaring that the regulation violates the Taft emergency Price Control Act, which prohibits standardization for pricing purposes except in emergency, and discriminates against brand-line manufacturers, the report recommend that OPA speed reconsideration of the hosiery price order.

The subcommittee asserts that in protection of food quality, the current use of advertised food brand names appears more effective than mandatory grade labeling.

The report urges Government agencies to refrain from further experimentation in this field until the subcommittee submits a final report and its recommendations.

Phineas Towne Memorial Rites To Be Held Today

Memorial services for Phineas Stowe Towne, Indian Wars veteran and former Metropolitan Police officer, will be held today at Chambers funeral home, 14th and Chapin sts. nw. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Towne died October 24 at Soldiers' Home following a prolonged illness. He came to Washington in 1887 after serving 10 years with the Third Cavalry and the Second Artillery in Indian territory in the Southwest. He was wounded twice, and later was decorated with the Purple Heart.

The Rev. G. G. Johnson of National Baptist Memorial Church will conduct the service. Members of the Albert Pike Consistory will represent the Masonic order, of which Mr. Towne was a member. Mr. Towne also was affiliated with the Knights Templar and was a former vice commander of the Third U. S. Cavalry Veterans' Association of the District of Columbia.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Angie Shackley, of Dorchester, Mass.; a son, Charles W., Towne, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and two granddaughters living in the District. The latter are Mrs. Roberta Patterson of 4471 MacArthur boulevard and Mrs. Nellie Barton of 3919 Seventh st. ne.

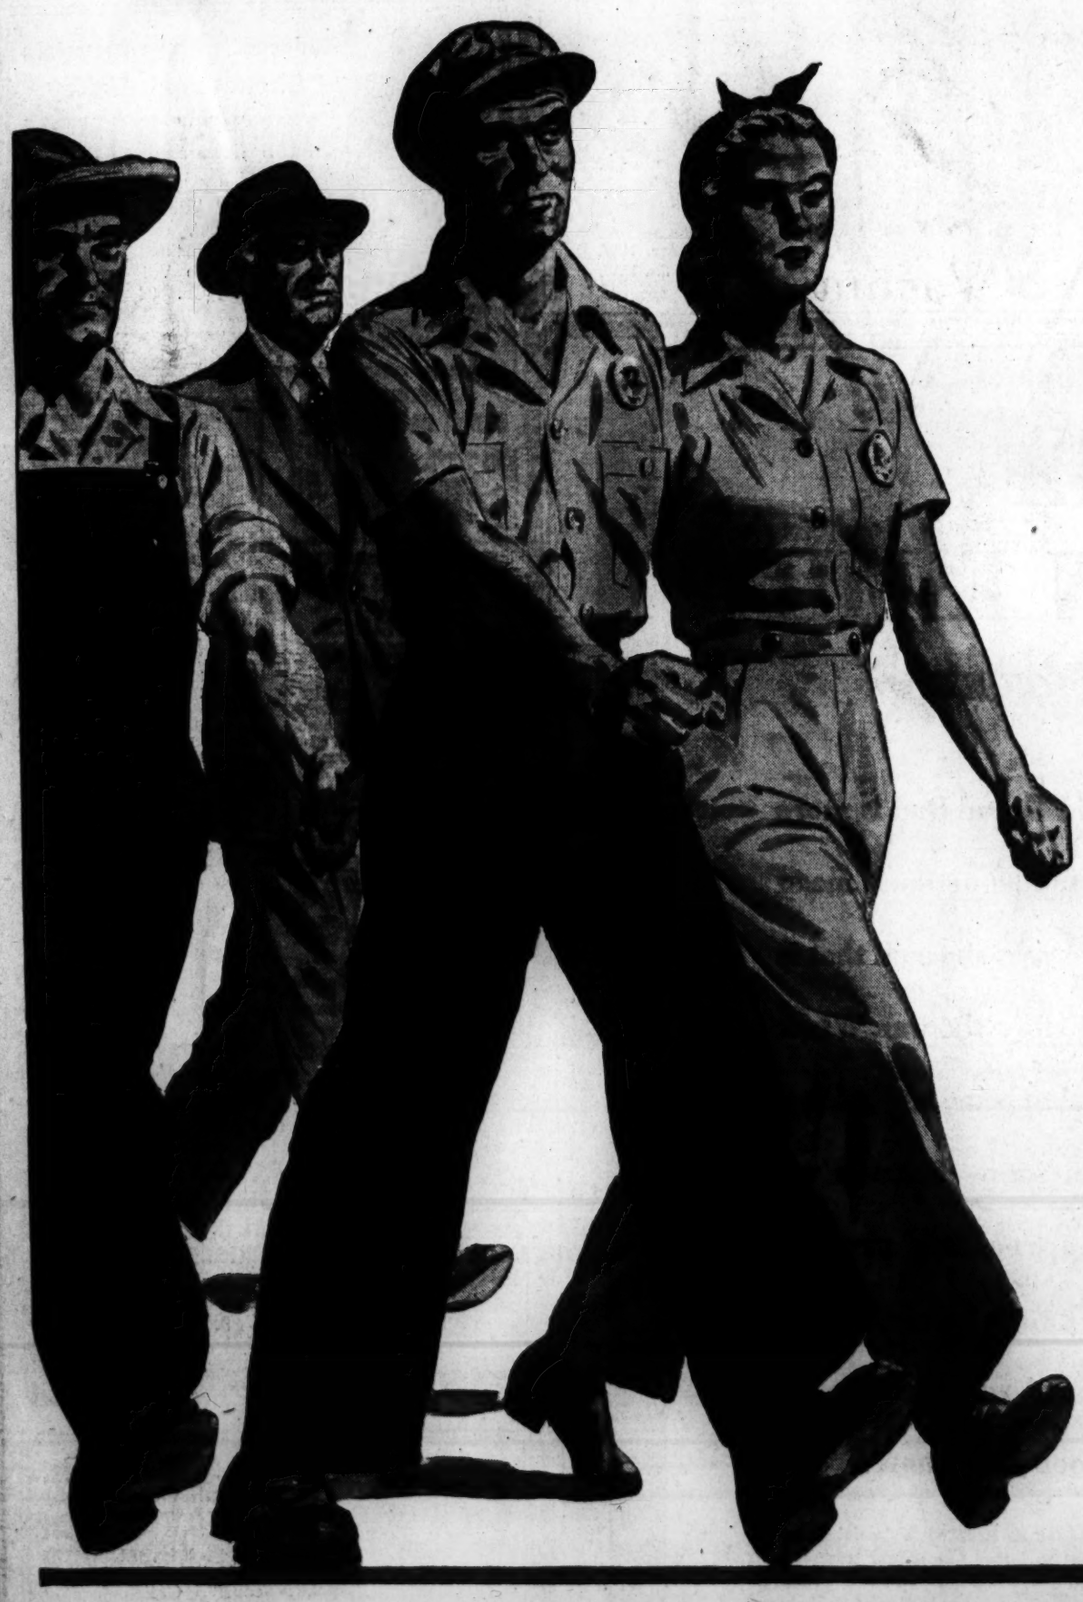
NOW...
Our "Second Wind"



Anyone can start something.

To sprint the first lap of a championship mile—to write the first chapter of a book—to buy the first War Bond or dig the first Victory Garden—to give your best during the first part of a war, those things are easy. The flags are waving and the crowd is cheering at the start. There is a thrill about beginning.

And then what?

Then the grind begins, the wear and tear, the weariness. The runner's chest tightens and his legs drag. The writer's ideas come hard. The bond buyer feels the pinch and the gardener's hands blister. The manufacturer stares glumly at a cancelled war contract, while the worker in the plant finds the mornings cold and dark and his job suddenly monotonous.

That is the grind, the time for what the Army calls "sweating it out," the time when the quitters quit and even the champions slow down, when it is hard to hang on and keep plugging. It is the time when races—and wars—are won.

We—all of us—have been going through the grind. We have all felt the pressure. We have been disheartened by failures, angered by blunders, tired by constant effort.

Now, like a runner, we are getting our "second wind." The worst of the grind is past. Victory is ahead. We see it. We know it can be ours. We know that if we use our "second wind" with determination, nothing our enemies do can defeat us. We cannot lose now, unless we beat ourselves by easing off when the goal is in sight.

Let us pledge ourselves, now, to use our "second wind" to the utmost, to buy every Bond we can, to help on every front of the war effort, to tackle every production job as though it were the first one. Above all, let us pledge ourselves to stay on the job—every man and woman, every day and every hour—until we finish what we have so well started, until complete Victory is won.

2 D. C. Area Men Die in Action; Bowie, Md., Soldier Wounded

Staff Sergt. Gardner H. Moore, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Justus A. Moore, 1611 Park rd. nw., and Lieut. Philip Sachleben, husband of Mrs. Helen M. Sachleben, 102 South Courthouse rd., Arlington, have been killed in action, the War Department announced yesterday. At the same time it was announced that Pvt. John D. Wildman of Bowie, Md., was wounded.

MOORE

Sergt. Moore, turret gunner on a B-17 bomber, was killed while in a raid over Schweinfurt, Germany, August 17, according to word received by his parents, who also have been notified that he has been awarded the Air Medal and the Purple Heart. He had been overseas since the first of June.

Born in St. Albans, Vt., Moore, 23, attended the Junior College at Montpelier, and was employed by the Colt Electric Co. in Hartford, Conn., until he joined the Army in April, 1942. He trained at Miami Beach, Fla., and at fields in Utah and Washington before receiving his wings at Pyote Field, Texas.

SACHLEBEN

"We were the first to invade Italy with the Rangers," Lieutenant Sachleben wrote to his wife on September 20. She was notified of his death on October 11.

Sachleben, 31, who had been in the Army for 10 years, was formerly stationed at Fort Myer, where he was a member of the Fifth Cavalry. He was sent overseas on a special mission December 17, 1941. He has a 2-year-old daughter, Phyllis.

Private Wildman, 19, was wounded while stationed in the North African war theater which includes Italy. His wife, Mrs. Mary E. Wildman, who makes her home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Wildman, at Bowie, received a letter dated September 18, in which he stated that he was soon to rejoin his outfit.

WILDMAN

A native of Bowie, Wildman graduated from the high school there and attended Strayer Business College. He was employed by the Treasury Department as a statistical clerk before entering the Army last January. He was trained as a machine gunner at Camp Croft, S. C., before going overseas in July.

Injury Discovery Offers New Hope For Crash Victims

Cincinnati, Oct. 27 (AP).—The discovery of peculiar internal injuries that promises to save the lives of many fliers was reported to the Aero Medical Association of the United States today by Capt. George Hass of the Army Air Forces School of Aviation Medicine.

In crashes and emergency landings, internal organs flop about much like bulls in a china shop. At the instant of landing these organs are actually pounds heavier than normal, because of impact.

Food in the stomach, water in a bladder or even blood in a chamber of the heart also all get momentarily heavy and strike hard, rending blows.

The fliers often have only slight external injuries, or broken bones that are not dangerous. Many of these men have sickened and died without obvious reason.

In some of these cases, Captain Hass reported the autopsies showed that a prompt and simple surgical operation would have saved the man's life. If the attending doctors know about the internal crash effects, he said, they can as a rule diagnose the trouble in time to save many of the fliers' lives.

Alexandrian Chosen For National Post Again

Miss Elizabeth Glenn of Alexandria has been reappointed executive secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries at the second war conference of the association in Pittsburgh.

For 12 years Miss Glenn was assistant to Clarence Arata, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade. She left this position September 1, 1943. A native of Ft. Worth, Tex., Miss Glenn came to this city in 1931. She attended Texas Chrstian College. Miss Glenn lives in the 900 block of Beverly dr., Alexandria.

On War Problems

Industrialists Talk With Roosevelt

A new, informal board of businessmen and industrialists met with President Roosevelt for the first time yesterday and discussed problems of war mobilization and demobilization.

Mr. Roosevelt has been going over war problems periodically with heads of major farm organizations and with labor leaders and he decided to hold similar conferences with spokesmen for business.

At his invitation to talk over from time to time "all matters concerning the participation of business and industry in the war," eight of them filed into the study yesterday and stayed nearly two hours.

Secretary of Commerce Jones and Mobilization Director James F Byrnes also were there, and Byrnes said in a statement afterward that the discussions ranged from termination of war contracts to the need for more farm machinery. He said the Chief Executive told the business leaders "they should feel free to present to him any essential problem."

Those at the White House today were F. C. Crawford, president, National Association of Manufacturers, New York; K. T. Norris, president Norris Stamping Co., Los Angeles; Eric A. Johnson, president Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington; Benjamin F. Fairless, president United States Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh; Richard R. Deupree, president of Proter & Gamble, Cincinnati, and also of the business advisory council of the Commerce Department; George H. Mead, president Mead Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, and member of the business council; David Sarnoff, president, Radio Corporation of America, New York, and Cason Calloway, cotton textile manufacturer, Hamilton, Ga.

Rails to Invoke 4-Cent Boost For Operators

Railroad management yesterday announced its intention of placing into effect the 4-cents-an-hour wage increase awarded operating employes by a presidential emergency board, even though representatives of the 350,000 workers involved, meeting last week in Chicago, unequivocally rejected the boost as insufficient.

A statement from the Carriers' Conference Committees, representing principal railroads in the East, West and Southeast, advised individual railroads that such an action would represent "complete compliance with both the letter and the spirit of the Railway Labor Act, of the Stabilization Act and of the various executive orders which have been issued in connection with the settlement of wage problems on the railroads during the war."

The railroads also indicated their intention of appearing before a special emergency board appointed by the President to review the nonoperating workers' wage demands.

An earlier board awarded the nonoperating workers—about 1,100,000 in all—an 8 cents an hour wage boost, but it was upset by action of Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

The railroad unions are expected to make an appearance before the new board, although they challenge its legal standing under the Railway Labor Act. Much of the unions' argument is expected to be devoted to these legal questions, rather than to the merits of the wage controversy.

Both the operating and nonoperating unions have signified their intention to take a strike ballot of their membership in protest against Government wage controls.

Machine Tool Shipments Drop

Further declines in shipments of machine tools, the biggest war baby in the early days of the defense program, were reported yesterday by the War Production Board. Shipments for September totalled $85,842,000, down 3.2 per cent from August.

The machine tool industry's backlog of unfilled orders in September was $333,119,000, a decline of 14 per cent from August totals.

Biddle Assails Insurance Bill As Dangerous Precedent

Passage of legislation exempting insurance companies from the anti-trust laws "would establish a dangerous precedent under which other groups of special interests might apply for and receive immunity," Attorney General Francis Biddle told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee yesterday.

Thus, Biddle said, gains made toward "preserving and strengthening the American system of free enterprise" might be whittled away "by a process of attrition."

Bills pending in both houses provide that nothing in the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts "shall be construed to apply to the business of insurance or to acts in the conduct of that business or in any way impair the regulation of that business by the several States."

Control Feared

Senator Bailey (Democrat) of North Carolina, cosponsor of the proposed legislation, told reporters that unless Congress acted the Federal Government might be "in position to take over the control and regulation of practically all of the fire insurance business."

If such action were taken, he said, "it would not be long before the whole American insurance business, life and indemnity, as well as fire insurance, would be taken under control by the Government."

He has taken the position that the States have adequate antitrust and antimonopoly laws and police powers to regulate the insurance business.

Biddle said the proposed legislation was directed specifically toward eliminating the Supreme Court from any jurisdiction over a Sherman Act case brought by the Federal Government against Southeastern Underwriters Association and others.

Cover All Insurance

"Nevertheless," the Attorney General said, "the pending bills are not limited to fire insurance but cover all insurance including, of course, life, casualty and marine, and would thus grant immunity to all insurance companies with respect to practices intended to eliminate competition or create monopoly.

"In seeking such class legislation, the fire insurance companies are endeavoring to remove the only public protection against those restraints and practices indulged in by them which cross State lines and thus are beyond the power of any individual State to control."

A Federal grand jury at Atlanta, Ga., last November indicted 198 stock fire insurance companies, their trade organization, the South-Eastern Underwriters Association, and 27 individuals on charges of violating the Sherman Act. The District Court sustained a demurrer, holding that insurance was not commerce and therefore not subject to prosecution under the Sherman Act. The Government has appealed to the Supreme Court.

Ickes Warns War Will Take Bigger Cut of Gas; Civilians to Receive Even Less Fuel in 1944

By Edward T. Folliard

Marcus Hook, Pa., Oct. 27.—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and petroleum administrator for war, said here today that a "bigger cut" of America's gasoline was going to war and that, as a consequence, civilians were going to get less.

Ickes came here to dedicate a new 13-million-dollar plant of the Sun Oil Co.'s Marcus Hook refinery, the greatest producer of high-octane aviation gasoline in the world. Addressing a crowd of 5000, Ickes exploded the idea that the more 100-octane the refiners make, the more ordinary gasoline they produce.

"The exact opposite is true," he said. "Every gallon of 100-octane that is made means less ordinary gasoline."

He cited what had happened here at the Sunoco plant. In December, 1941, the month of Pearl Harbor, the refinery turned out 1,310,711 barrels of automotive gasoline. Then it switched over to high-octane gas for airplanes. In August of this year production of automotive gasoline was down to about 523,000 barrels.

Ickes said that of the 1,800,000 barrels of gasoline now made daily in the United States, less than 1,200,000 are available for civilian use.

"The rest—more than 600,000 barrels daily—is being taken by the military," he said. "Next year a still bigger cut will go to war."

Secretary Ickes was praised by J. Howard Pew, president of the Sun Oil Co.

Rear Admiral Ralph E. Davidson, assistant chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, told the assemblage that the Navy, which in 1940 had fewer than 1800 planes, now is flying 19,000.

Col. David G. Lingle, chief of the aviation petroleum branch, Army Air Forces, representing Gen. H. H. Arnold at the dedication exercises, said that America soon will be turning out a complete airplane every five minutes around the clock.

Norse Army Officer Urges Invasion Through His Country

Elimination of German troops in Norway, and the establishment there of Allied air bases, would place Berlin within 55 minutes' bombing time of the Scandinavian peninsula, Col. Carl Stenersen, Royal Norwegian army officer and trainer of American mountain troops in Iceland, said in Washington yesterday.

Making no direct reference to Sweden and Finland, both within the Axis periphery, Colonel Stenersen made clear that he hoped "as a patriotic Norwegian army officer," that Allied invasion of Norway would be speeded by a left pincer movement to complement the right pincer made in the African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

One deduction to be made is that a successful invasion of Norway, whose 2000-mile coastline, he said, "could be penetrated where we will," and eviction of German divisions would alter the political status of Sweden and Finland.

The emphasis would be on Sweden, from whose southern Baltic shores Allied bombers could take off or wreak havoc on Berlin, only 200 air miles distant.

An expert on mountain warfare, Colonel Stenersen gave his private, albeit professional, blueprint for invasion.

It calls for mountain paratroops to land with equipment and supplies on hundreds of frozen inland Norwegian lakes behind German lines, while naval attacks were made on Nazi-infested coastal landing points.

Invasion would be a tremendous task, but, Colonel Stenersen said, the Allied command is more than capable of reducing the problem to terms of swift feasibility.

With Norway redeemed a further deduction is that German armies, now straining on Russian and Italian fronts, could not long withstand an Allied offensive should the Nazi command rush troops to Sweden, he continued.

Committee Approves Corporation Tax Boost

By Edward Ryan

Corporate tax changes to produce 616 million dollars more Federal revenue a year were approved by the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday, clearing the way for a test this morning on a retail sales tax which some members said was doomed in advance by continued opposition from President Roosevelt.

Representative Knutson (Republican) of Minnesota disclosed that the committee had been informed yesterday by Randolph Paul, chief Treasury tax expert, that a sales tax would not receive the President's approval. Representative Robertson (Democrat) of Virginia plans to seek a test on a 10 per cent retail sales tax, but Knutson said the move would be defeated, and that no sales tax could pass the House.

Besides the sales tax test, members predicted that the committee may withdraw today its decision of Tuesday boosting the excise rate on distilled spirits from $6 to $10 a gallon, and compromise on the $8 rate urged by the Capitol tax staff. Adoption of the Treasury's $10 recommendation was protested by State officials as threatening a return of bootlegging, members said. Committee increases in second-class postage rates also may be reviewed.

With its decisions on corporation taxes, the committee finished discarding the Treasury's revenue recommendations calling for a 10.5 billion dollar over-all tax increase and completed all but the details of its own counterproposal to net from 1.8 to 2 billion dollars in new revenue.

These were the chief corporate tax actions taken by the committee:

1. Voted 16 to 8 against boosting the combined normal and surtax rate from the present 40 per cent level to 45 per cent as sought by the Treasury.

2. Increase the wartime excess profits levy from 90 to 95 per cent while keeping the present ceiling on combined corporate taxes. This limits corporate normal, surtax and excess profits tax (before deduction of the 10 per cent postwar credit) to 80 per cent of surtax net income before the credit for adjusted excess profits net income.

3. Raised the specific excess profits exemption from $5000 to $10,000.

4. Reduced the excess profits credit under the invested capital method of computing the tax: the credit was kept at 8 per cent of the first five million dollars investment; cut from 7 to 6 per cent on the next five million; cut from 6 to 5 per cent on amounts from 10 to 200 million; and cut from 5 to 4 per cent on amounts over 200 million.

5. Required that corporations now exempt from taxes under Section 101 of the Internal Revenue Code—including incorporated clubs, business and professional groups, some insurance, banking, and building organizations, labor, agricultural and fraternal groups, generally organized on a nonprofit basis—to file a return but not to pay a tax. Only exception from the requirement would be religious and charitable corporations.

6. Granted discretionary power to the Internal Revenue Commissioner to disallow excess profits credits to firms that bought up defunct companies simply to enlarge their credit under the law. Drastic change in the type of business done by the purchased corporation would be prima facie evidence that it was bought for the purpose of obtaining the extra tax credit.

7. Rejected a motion to extend the 10 per cent postwar refund under the excess profits levy to corporate surtaxes.

The committee also agreed to meet in executive session tomorrow to hear Budget Director Smith and Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles testify on the Government's spending and economy plans.

Navy Musicians to Play Today

The U. S. Navy School of Music will present a band of 110 pieces and 100 choristers in a concert at Constitution Hall today at 8:15 p. m. Lieut. (j. g.) James M. Thurmond, USN, will lead the band.

For most of the bluejacket musicians this will be the last concert in Washington for some time, it was said. They will leave for "somewhere at sea" in the immediate future. Twice a year six bands of 20 members and a bandmaster are graduated from the school and assigned as a unit to ships or shore stations, Navy officials pointed out.

The following artist-sailors from Washington will appear tonight: Winford LeRoy Embrey, 235 12th st. ne.; Lawrence Jefferson Taylor, 1323 Ridge pl. se.; Charles Joseph Cliff, 5917 14th st. nw.; Milton Thomas Broome, 614 Morris pl. ne.; Winfred Ellis Nichols, 1821 P st. se.; John James Hruby, 3813 31st st., Mount Rainier, Md., and Sylvan Drive, Falls Church, Va.

False Claims Of Car-Sharing Mean Penalty

Stern warning of disciplinary action against motorists who misrepresent their needs for gasoline by listing as car sharers persons not actually carried by the ration book holder requesting added allowances, was issued by C. K. Davies, rationing attorney for OPA, yesterday.

"Under OPA regulations any person making false representation will be called before his or her local board and may, if found guilty, be deprived of gasoline ration books for 30 days or for the duration of the war," he said.

Davies' statement followed an announcement by Robert K. Thompson, District OPA director, that reduction of District gasoline consumption by 267,000 gallons, recently ordered by the regional OPA, was impossible of attainment.

Thompson held that close rationing by local boards was preventing gas waste and that the District was probably consuming its legal quotas with little possibility of effecting appreciable reduction.

Earlier it had been expected that the desired reductions might come from B and C books, of which the C book was devaluated to 2 from 2½ gallons per coupon September 1.

No further coupon devaluations were expected, however, said Thompson who added that efforts would be continued to "squeeze as much of the water" out of gas allocations as was possible, in view of the fact that approximately 750,000 gallons were being consumed in the District daily in excess of amounts set by the Petroleum Administration for War.

If further reductions in consumption are found possible they would have to come from car pools, Thompson said, adding that "doubling up on gas rations" by misrepresentation of need will be eliminated. He added, however, that such action could not, as things now stand, expect to save much gas.

New Beef Subsidy Confusion 'Cleared'

Order to Affect Cattle Killed After Nov. 30, OES Says

To clear up confusion existing yesterday on the livestock markets—following the Office of Economic Stabilization order establishing price controls over cattle and changing the beef subsidy rates—OES last night said only cattle slaughtered after November 30 will be covered by the new graduated subsidy plan.

The special subsidy of 80 cents per hundredweight on cattle held by non-processing slaughterers—the group considered most tightly squeezed between retail beef ceilings and uncontrolled prices on cattle—will begin November 1, OES explained.

Earlier yesterday, attorneys of the Office of Price Administration were working on a "clarification" of the OES order, in response from queries from Capitol Hill and throughout the country.

Trading at the Chicago market was suspended at one time when commission houses and packers, called together at a special meeting, telephoned OPA headquarters here for clarification on the new rules. OPA promised the clarification and instructed continued trading.

Livestock men said prices above the ceilings were paid because it was felt the regulations did not set minimums or maximums for any specific day, but represented a price range in which an average of all purchases made during the month must fall if packers were to receive full subsidy payments.

OES spokesmen attributed most of the confusion o the markets to the misunderstanding that all parts of the pricing order went into effect immediately. Price ranges established by OES, however, were merely at the Chicago base and OPA and the War Food Administration were given a month to work out prices for the other markets.

Although protests over the new cattle prices were coming in from both Congressmen and packing house representatives, pricing officials expressed belief the regulation was "entirely workable" and said it would go far toward establishing a real "hold-the-line" victory. They placed in with the order now being prepared to bring the citrus crop under a subsidy price control plan and the "battle to hold prices on crude oil" as the most significant news on the "economic front."

To Save Carrier

Pilot Chose Death Luring Japs Away

A young Navy pilot—his gasoline tanks nearly empty—flew into the darkness to lure away Japanese pilots and save the aircraft Lexington from attack early in the war.

PAUL BAKER

The sacrifice of Lieut. (j. g.) Paul Baker, San Diego, Calif., now listed as missing, was told yesterday by Admiral C. H. Woodward in a Navy Day address.

"On the eve of the Coral Sea engagement," said Woodward, "an American task force of which the Lexington was part, caught up with the tail-end of the main Japanese invasion force near Tulagi and accounted for three enemy carriers.

"In the savage air fighting that day, Baker had brought down five Jap aircraft. Towards nightfall, he was hovering over the Lexington awaiting the signal to land with only a few gallons of gasoline left in his tank.

"Suddenly 10 Japanese planes approached overhead. The light was poor for shooting, and it was feared that the enemy, rendered desperate by the loss of their own carriers, might make a suicide attack on the Lexington and inflict serious damage by crashing their planes. Baker was ordered via radio to turn off his landing lights and under no conditions to attempt a landing.

Lured Japs Away

"He sized up the situation instantly. During the radio exchange the Japs had located his position and were closing in. Without hesitation he turned his plane away from the carrier and headed for the open sea, luring the Japs after him.

"The men aboard the Lexington saw his plane disappear into the night, deliberately facing certain death at the hands of the enemy or in the ocean to make certain that his carrier was safe."

R. L. Hinton To Get Army Burial Today

Military burial services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in Arlington Cemetery for Robert Lee Hinton, 49, retired member of the Washington Metropolitan Police force and native Alexandrian. Funeral services will be in Fredericksburg, Va., at noon today at the Wheeler and Thompson Chapel with the Rev. Robert F. Caverlee officiating.

Hinton died Monday at his home, Rose Hill Farm, in Stafford County, Va., within three weeks to the day of the death of his brother, Manley W. Hinton, retired master sergeant in the Army, at his home near Fort Hunt, Va.

Robert Hinton served in the last war with the Cavalry at Fort Myer in Arlington.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Frances Brooks; his daughter, Mrs. James S. Roland, both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Gee and Mrs. Bessie Schooley, both of Alexandria, and four brothers, Charles Hinton, who lives in Maryland; Joseph Hinton of Lorton, William Hinton of Washington and Richard Hinton of Fairfax County.

Sergt. Manley Hinton had been in the Army for 32 years, and was retired 11 years ago. He had enlisted in the Army at the age of 18 and was stationed at Fort Hunt in the 47th Coast Artillery. He remained at the post on coast defense duty and training during World War I.

Court Refuses To Free UAW Head In Contempt Case

Austin, Tex. Oct. 27 (AP).—The State Supreme Court denied today the petition for discharge of R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, and ordered him remanded to the custody of the Travis County sheriff to serve a contempt judgment of $100 fine and three days in jail.

Thomas was cited for contempt for violating a restraining order prohibiting him from soliciting membership in a union without obtaining an organizer's permit as required by Texas' relatively new labor union regulation law. He has 15 days in which to file a motion for rehearing.

Thomas, who came to Texas from Detroit and addressed a labor rally at Pelly, near Houston, was released from jail here September 25 on $1000 bond after he had spent a few hours in custody of the sheriff. He was cited for contempt in 53d District Court by Judge J. Harris Gardner.

Bay Freighter Safe at Salisbury

Baltimore, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Coast Guard announced tonight that the small freighter Henrietta Francis had docked at Salisbury, Md., approximately 16 hours overdue. All hands were safe. The boat was reported overdue after a severe storm yesterday.

Officials Move To Speed D. C. Job Placement

On the heels of civil service action to speed handling of applications for District jobs, Commissioner Guy L. Mason will meet tomorrow with health and welfare leaders in the first of several conferences to work out means of hastening applications through District agencies, departments, and the executive offices.

Manpower shortages are said to be most pressing in District institutions. Slow handling of applications has been credited with keeping agencies open. Applicants have gotten other jobs, while their applications were being processed, institutional heads report.

Mailing Costs 48 Hours

Commissioner Mason said yesterday that applications have often taken 10 days to 3 weeks to get through District channels in addition to being delayed in Civil Service Commission offices. Part of the delay, he said, has been in use of the public mails instead of messengers. Usually 48 hours is lost each time applications are mailed from the agency to the department to the executive offices and back again, he said.

Yesterday, following a conference between District and Civil Service Commission officials, W. A. McCoy, chief of the examining division, announced that arrangements were being made to send a civil service representative to the District Building more frequently to pass on applications there. He said also an arrangement would be made to have one representative pass on applications for both the departmental and field service.

Much Time May Be Saved

Previously, a civil service representative was coming to the District offices about once a week to pass on applications that accumulated at the rate of about 10 a day. Although in some cases referrals must be made back to the Civil Service Commission, most of the applications can be handled by the commission representative, it was understood. Often as much as 10 days is saved by a single telephone call made by this representative.

Although civil service registers are used in placing District government employes in jobs, many of these registrars are empty, so that qualified persons discovered by the agency are placed automatically.

Japs Fear Air Raids, Plan City Evacuations

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—Japanese worries over the possibilities of air raids were reflected today in a "complete reorganization of the air raid precaution system" cailing for evacuation of the population of large towns.

The Berlin radio reported the plans, saying they were announced in the Japanese Diet by Kisaburo Ando, Minister of Interior.

Next 5 Years Seen Hardest For Students

Predicting that the next five years would be the "hardest years" high school students have ever experienced, Dr. Douglas Hudgins yesterday advised Eastern High School seniors to be "physically strong, mentally alert and spiritually aware" to face life's issues.

Dr. Hudgins, pastor of First Baptist Church, Houston, Tex., was among visiting Baptist clergy speaking in local high schools yesterday as a highlight of the city-wide Baptist evangelistic drive. He was presented by Dr. Charles Hart, Eastern principal. Dr. Hudgins last night concluded his series of addresses at Second Baptist Church, near Eastern High School.

Meanwhile, Dr. Roland Q. Leavell of Tampa, Fla., general director of the evangelistic campaign, told the Roosevelt High School assembly to "play fair with God, ourselves and with others."

"'Work hard, play hard and don't foul,'" Dr. Leavell urged the students, quoting from sayings of Theodore Roosevelt, whose birthday anniversary was yesterday.

"One of the happiest moments of any man's life," said Dr. Leavell," is when he takes his bride to the home prepared for her, and can honestly tell her that his life has been as beautiful and clean as hers."

Dr. Leavell was presented by the Rev. Alva A. Smtih, assistant pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church, where Dr. Leavell is speaking during the campaign.

Dr. William Ward Ayer, pastor of New York City's Calvary Baptist Church, addressed the Central High School assembly.

Ship Wrecked In Atlantic Gale To Be Total Loss

Belmar, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP).—The Navy said today that one of four merchant ships blown ashore in a storm which caused more than a million dollars damage along New Jersey's Atlantic Seaboard, appeared "to be a total loss."

Her back broken, and sinking at bow and stern, the 7916-ton James Longstreet was piled up on Sandy Hook just outside New York Harbor.

Aground off this resort community but in "good shape," the Navy said, was the 7821-ton F. J. Luckenbach. Salvage efforts already were in operation.

The 4971-ton Exilona and 7100-ton Fort Douglas, which also had been whipped onto bars off Sandy Hook last night, were freed today.

The Navy said the wind which drove the vessels aground at times reached a velocity of 70 miles per hour last night.

Captain Ruled Immune in Swindle Case

Capt. Ernest A. Hough, 36, one of five men named defendants in an indictment charging a three-million-dollar stock swindle by the Southeastern Industrial Bankers, Inc., yesterday was decreed immune from prosecution in the case by Justice David A. Pine in District Court.

The ground for the ruling was a section of the Securities Act of 1933 which states that a person who testified before the Securities and Exchange Commission when he had been compelled to testify after claiming his privilege of self-incrimination is immune to prosecution in the resultant case.

Justice Pine said of Hough's case: "Defendant was subpenaed as a witness for the commission . . . and without warning of any kind found himself confronted by an inquisition determined to wring from him evidence on which to base a prosecution against him. He was first lulled into believing he was a Government witness, and after 50 pages of testimony, suddenly became suspicious or aware that he was a prospective defendant. . . . It was the examiner's duty, when defendant claimed this privilege, to determine from the character of the questions asked and the circumstances of the inquiry, whether there was likelihood that the answers might be incriminating, and if there was such a likelihood, it was his duty to determine whether he wished to exchange immunity for testimony."

Hough was an auditor for the Southeastern system and then entered the Army.

The other defendants, who face trial next month, are Clifton M. Eisele, 49, of Bethesda, Md., former president of the company; Louis Eisele, 46, of Chevy Chase, Md., vice president and treasurer; Charles R. Wilson, 56, former vice president, and Harry J. Donoghue, 42, vice president.

There were 3000 local investors in the now defunct company.

Aground 9 Hours, Bay Ferry Is Safe

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 27 (AP).—The ferry, John M. Dennis, was held aground for 9 hours by high winds and lashing waves, but finally steamed back into the channel with her 40, passengers and several vehicles, including two buses.

The Annapolis-Matapeake Ferry reported little damage.

Another Chesapeake Bay Craft, an oyster schooner, lost one of its two masts off Black Walnut Point, Tilghman's Island, but was reported at an island landing later.

Wickard Warns Of Land Boom Peril

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard declared today that a big concern of agriculture "is the currently threatening land boom," and that the increase in both sales and values of land in many areas "is alarming."

He told the Land Grant Colleges Association that "neither real nor fancied inequities in our stabilization program justify any action which fosters inflation, for neither real nor fancied inequities in our stabilization program can be of any consequence when the alternative is inflation."

Wanted by Fleischmann!

Good Judges of Good Whiskey To Try a Great New Brand!

TASTE! BODY! AROMA! These are the three qualities of a superb whiskey—and in Fleischmann's PREFERRED you find all three! The taste is rich, delicious! The body round, and full! The aroma, delicate!

Wouldn't You Like to Serve a Whiskey that has the Full, Ripe Richness of the World's Finest, Most Limited Brands? If you would, now you can! Read why!

● This invitation is written for the few men who are really good judges of good whiskey . . . who can appreciate a whiskey that is as gloriously rich, creamy and delicious as the world's finest, most limited brands—and who do not need a high price to confirm them in their judgment.

We set out several years ago to see if we could make such a whiskey. We spared no expense. We experimented. We drew from the world's choicest reserves. We selected the finest grains, and backed them up with the world's most delicate skill.

The result is—Fleischmann's PREFERRED, one of the world's most remarkable whiskies. Velvety! Creamy! Full! Delicious! We are sorry that we can offer Fleischmann's PREFERRED only in limited amounts as all our distilling facilities are devoted 100% to the war effort. If your dealer has Fleischmann's PREFERRED, try it! You'll always be glad you did!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST "MANHATTAN"? We say so! Take 1 dash of Angostura Bitters, ¼ oz. sweet vermouth, and 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED! Stir with ice, strain into 4-oz. glass, add one Maraschino cherry!

FOR AN "OLD FASHIONED" that tastes like cream—to ½ level teaspoon granulated sugar, 2 or 3 dashes of bitters in an Old Fashioned glass, add just enough water to dissolve sugar. Muddle! Add ice cubes, 1½ oz. of Fleischmann's PREFERRED. Garnish with cherry, twisted lemon peel, or orange and pineapple!

FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED BLENDED WHISKEY

FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED Blended Whiskey. The straight whiskies in this product are 4 years or more old; 35% straight whiskies, 65% neutral spirits distilled from grain. 90 Proof.

Masaryk's Legacy

A quarter of a century has now passed since that October day in 1918 when the Czechoslovak Republic was founded. That once fair and smiling land and its brave and talented people live today, as they have lived for more than five bitter years, under the ruthless tyranny of the Nazis. Their country has been despoiled, their people massacred by the hundreds and thousands, their towns ravaged, their freedom and independence destroyed. But nowhere in Czechoslovakia today will the anniversary go unnoticed. For if the present is grim the future is bright with hope, a hope that takes nourishment from the magnificent accomplishments of the past.

Of all the nations that emerged from the wreckage of empires that followed in the wake of the last war none proved its right to independence more clearly than Czechoslovakia. It was endowed with truly great leadership in the person of Thomas G. Masaryk and Masaryk's friend, disciple and successor, Dr. Eduard Benes. It made enormous strides during the years of peace and remained, even after the totalitarian blight had begun to spread over the Continent, an island of functioning democracy. Sacrificed by the appeasers of London and Paris in the days of Munich, the people of Czechoslovakia have since made a valiant and dogged fight from within against their Nazi overlords. Lidice is both a monument to the insensate savagery of the Nazis and a witness of the continued resistance of a nation which, though overrun, has never been conquered. On this, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovak Republic, the American people salute their Czechoslovak comrades in arms and wish them, in a very literal sense, happy returns of the day.

Virtue In An "An"

The whole question concerning the Connally resolution on the extent of American participation in the postwar reorganization of the world can be reduced to very simple terms. Which is the more important: that this resolution should be adopted by the Senate unanimously, or by a very large majority of the Senate, or that it should represent some tangible statement of American policy?

The first of these notions is evidently in the minds of the Foreign Relations Committee, which has prepared a statement so ambiguously phrased that the most unregenerate isolationist can accept it without gulping. Even Senator Nye, it is said, proposes to vote for the resolution, if it remains in the form in which the committee has reported it. It would be very difficult, in fact, to find anyone who would go to the length of rejecting the principle of "international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world." "International authority" in the context is a vague and generalized concept which might mean nothing more than a reaffirmation of the Golden Rule, or of the sanctity of treaty obligations. "Authority" in this sense means no more than legal or rightful as opposed to arbitrary power. In this sense a bandit who robs his victim does so without any authority, and a nation which undertakes a war of aggression does so contrary to authority.

As Senators Ball and Pepper pointed out in the debate on Tuesday, the mere insertion of two letters before the words "international authority" would have made a vast difference in it. The use of the indefinite article would have served to point the resolution in a definite direction. "An international authority" would have meant at least some definite international body whose authority and jurisdiction could be implemented with power, in the sense that the authority of the law is implemented by the courts and by the police.

Indeed, the whole point could not have been made much plainer than it was by Senator White, speaking in defense of the resolution. "I assume," he said, "that an authority will be set up, or that existing authority will be used, and that one or the other, or both, will have power to do, as I expressed it, whatever may be necessary and appropriate to the attainment of the ends." Note, however, that as far as Senator White is concerned, this is merely an assumption. A moment later, in answer to a question as to whether all the Senators placed this interpretation on the resolution, Senator White was obliged to confess: "I cannot answer definitely for other Senators, but I know what it means, and I believe that it means substantially the same thing to the other members of the subcommittee and the full committee."

This, it seems to us, is an admission that the resolution can be made to mean whatever any given Senator may wish it to mean. And this, as it also seems to us, is a roundabout admission that it means actually nothing one way or another.

Immigration

One of the resolutions adopted by the American Legion convention last month expresses, perhaps unconsciously, the very essence of isolationism. This resolution urges that "All immigration be barred from the United States from the date of the end of hostilities of the present war until employment has dropped to less than 1,000,000." In the course of the House debate on repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Law, Representative Allen of Louisiana offered an amendment embodying the Legion proposal almost verbatim. The effect of his amendment would have been to put China on a parity with other nations by making exclusion universal. Happily it was ruled out of order. It remains sublimely ironic, however, that Mr. Allen chose to tack on to this particular piece of legislation a proviso designed to erect a Chinese wall around the United States—a wall of the very sort which for centuries was intended to keep out the Tartars.

This idea of barring all immigration runs directly counter to the contemporary currents sweeping America into larger participation in world affairs. We have long been a potent factor in international economics and are now readying ourselves for a prime part in the world's politics. We have been proclaiming loudly that we mean to have a dominant position after the war in the skyways and the maritime trade routes of the earth. We are talking already of postwar markets and sources of raw materials. We are looking forward to a vast program of reconstruction both at home and, with assistance from us, in the countries ravaged by the war. In the face of all this ebullient progressivism, it is essentially ludicrous to think of locking our gates against foreign ideas, skills and energies.

The American Legion resolution is based on a profound economic misconception. Its aim, as Representative Allen phrased it, is to "protect the American worker and the American veteran from the influx of aliens" and to guarantee that "American jobs after the war will go to American workers." But immigrants do not merely take jobs; they also create them. They are consumers as well as workers. Like natives, they spend as well as earn. And what they spend goes into the pockets of other workers to be spent in turn and to invite more production. It is a fallacy to suppose that we can enhance prosperity or diminish unemployment by limiting the number of workers available for jobs. The contrary is the case. The greater the number of consumers, the greater is the incentive to produce.

The American Legion approach is essentially defeatist. It assumes a stagnant economy and a contracting market. If we were to follow its implications to their logical end, we should not only ban immigration but also prohibit procreation. For if an expanding population means unemployment, then obviously the younger generation must be a handicap. But what nation has ever prospered through a declining birth rate? A people grows in strength and rises in its standard of living as it grows in numbers.

We shall have enough to do in America when this war is ended, if we have the wit to do it, to provide endless work for many more hands than we possess. Even now, the greatest impediment to our war effort is a manpower shortage. After the war, we shall have a tremendous pent-up consumer demand to satisfy. We shall have to produce food and industrial commodities for those far-flung foreign markets we hope to supply. And we shall have an immense job of building and rebuilding to do at home—roads and schools and hospitals and houses and airports and a thousand other developments to enrich and improve our national life. We shall need fresh blood to carry forward all this work. We shall need the kind of energy which for three centuries has brought a stream of immigrants from the Old World to the New—immigrants seeking freedom and opportunity. They have made America. We can use more like them.

Economic Diplomats

Slowly but surely order is being built out of the confusion in the administration of our war economic agencies having to do with foreign affairs. Now these agencies are to be combined into one big organization. It is, as Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, says, "the most far-reaching consolidation of Government agencies in the war." Whether to make this radical transformation was Mr. Crowley's main problem when he was given this over-all assignment. He might have maintained the separate identities of the constituent agencies: Lend-Lease, Office of Economic Warfare, Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation, foreign procurement division of the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Office of Foreign Economic Coordination of the State Department. In that event Mr. Crowley would have been merely a coordinator. His decision to be administrator is, we believe, a wise one. Obviously, with these agencies doing very much the same type of work, overlapping would have been perpetuated. One organization will save not only duplication; it will make for coherence abroad and economy of administration at home.

It has taken Mr. Crowley some time to make up his mind. Perhaps the alternative of maintaining the separate agencies and keeping himself as a coordinator had some merits which do not seem apparent. Or maybe Mr. Crowley wished to reconstruct his immediate staff before he announced his decision. But the fact is that the delay must have been harmful to the morale of the staffs in the constituent agencies. As to the reaction upon the economic representatives abroad, that may be easily imagined. For weeks they have not known who was their chief, and there must have been a good deal of treading water by these bewildered agents. With some bearings now established, Mr. Crowley can proceed to build on the new organization and unify the work abroad. If he chooses his agents in foreign countries with the same care as he has chosen his immediate staff, the Senators who grumbled about our diplomatic weakness abroad may change their tune.

Propaganda Abroad

Among the charges made by the globe-girdling Senators which are still reverberating through Congress is their criticism of the overseas branch of the Office of War Information. Those charges have been obscured by the transatlantic heat engendered by the references to our allies. The report on OWI abroad is of interest to Congress because it was due to the absence of necessary data that at appropriation time virtually all legislative attention was devoted to OWI's domestic operations. Now that the overseas branch has been put under the searchlight, however, we may expect some reaction in Congress. The five Senators, evidently, are afraid of what might happen when the promises we are disseminating throughout the world are presented for redemption. The question naturally arises as to the proper function of the Office of War Information and its organization.

It has been the view of this newspaper that the prime function of the OWI abroad is to sustain our military forces in winning the war. But this is not its only function. OWI in its propaganda abroad can help considerably in laying the foundation for a secure peace. However, in neither respect is OWI anything more than expositor of policies laid down by the armed services and the State Department. It is when it departs from the official line that trouble is courted. That danger always is present. With liaison with the armed services and the State Department weak, with foreign policy toward most countries inchoate, OWI in its propaganda abroad may feel that in the absence of guidance it should supply guidance.

Mr. Elmer Davis must always be on the alert to arrest this policy-making in our propaganda abroad. OWI should think of its role as a guardian of the fair name of America. If it arouses hope without foundation, if it makes promises without substance, then there will be a reckoning for this country in the form of a boomerang. The danger is sufficiently great to warrant serious consideration of a suggestion we have several times made. This is that the heads of the foreign division of OWI should have official status in both the Office of Strategic Services and the State Department. There would be no question then about the status of liaison. It would be established without question, and it would promote a responsibility of comment which cannot be guaranteed under the present arrangement.

Cattle Ceiling Prices

A short time ago the OPA set an over-all ceiling price for live hogs which farmers protested was too low. The result was that farmers have shipped their poorest specimens of hogs to markets, while packers have bid up prices of limited shipments regardless of quality. Undeterred by this rather inauspicious start, Director Vinson of the OES, acting with the approval of OPA officials, has at long last dared to impose ceiling prices on live cattle to relieve the squeeze on packers caught between high prices for cattle on the hoof and fixed wholesale price ceilings for meats. Graded subsidies, paid to processors and slaughterers, are expected to aid the efforts of the authorities to maintain the announced schedule of ceiling prices for live cattle. Ceiling prices, moreover, are so scaled as to encourage shipment of cattle to feeders and discourage the prevalent practice of slaughtering skinny animals.

The regulatory agencies have bowed belatedly and reluctantly to the inevitable in deciding to risk the administrative—and political—pitfalls of attempted control of livestock prices. Whether the system will work or not is a question about which there is a great difference of opinion. However, partial price control has certainly been thoroughly unsatisfactory, and it appears to be both logical and economically sound to extend control over meat products at the farmer-producer level.

THE SUN RISES

"Describe the one you love," men sometimes ask,
And then I grope in vain and find no word,
And feebly say, "It is a hopeless task
To tell the glory I have seen and heard."
But when the day was new, with thoughtful eyes
I faced the east; the sky was calm and still,
As I stood waiting for the sun to rise
At last it came, with such a flood of light
That I looked on and gasped and caught my breath;
O here was splendor born of winter night,
And here was life from what had seemed like death!
It bathed all things that had been dark and dim,
And then I cried, "This is like him—like him."

New Zealanders

A YEAR AGO, Peter Fraser, the Prime Minister of New Zealand, said that "we in New Zealand visualize our role in Pacific strategy as an offensive one." And early in 1943, Walter Nash, Minister to Washington from the antipodean dominion, declared that "we want to see a blitz against Japan that will knock her out of the war the moment such a blitz becomes a strategic possibility, and we want to play our full part in that action." Up to that time we had heard of the magnificent exploits of the New Zealand Division of the Eighth Army in Greece, Crete and Libya under General Freyberg. Now it is revealed that New Zealand ground forces are in action in the South Pacific, side by side with Americans in the main drive through the Solomons toward Rabaul.

New Zealand Infantry, including veterans from the Middle East, played the major role in the taking of Vella Lavella Island. New Zealand's role in the South Pacific has, until this action, been played by her air forces, which have operated from the Solomons since October, 1942, and by her naval units, which have operated with American task forces since the earliest days of the Pacific war.

It was not until recently, as more American troops arrived in the South Pacific and as the Japanese threat to the islands lying along the Pacific supply lines was lessened, that the New Zealand ground forces in the Pacific could be concentrated into a fighting division for offensive operations against the Japanese.

Solomon Islanders

Dispatches from official New Zealand war correspondents attached to the New Zealand forces on Vella Lavella reveal that black-skinned native Solomon Islanders, mostly from Guadalcanal, served with great distinction as scouts with the New Zealand army in the recent campaign.

The islanders, who had been enlisted specially for scouting work, pin-pointed the main Japanese positions for the New Zealand patrols during the days preceding the opening of the attack on the Japanese lines around Timbala Bay.

Sometimes creeping barefoot within 25 yards of enemy bivouac areas, the Solomon Islanders enabled the New Zealanders to move up for the attack in a way which saved expensive casualties. Without the skill and bushcraft of these native troops the work of locating the main bodies of the enemy would have been much protracted.

Patrols of Fijian natives officered by New Zealanders served with the American forces in the final stages of the campaign of Guadalcanal, but this is the first occasion on which Solomon Islanders are known to have been in action in this war.

After the initial American invasion of the island the Japanese retired toward the north, where in hilly bush country around Timbala Bay they built defenses in gullies ranging down to the sea. It was these positions which the New Zealand task forces captured after heavy fighting. This is the first battle in which New Zealand ground forces of any size have been in action in the Pacific area.

The Japanese fought fiercely in the defense of Vella Lavella. One New Zealander who was taken prisoner after he and a fellow soldier had fought for more than five hours in a game of desperate hide and seek against more than 20 Japanese soldiers was stripped naked by the Japs, but he subsequently knocked out the two Japs guarding him and escaped in the darkness. He hid for two days among rocks in the sea before he was ultimately rescued.

New Zealand Forces

The present New Zealand Pacific forces have Maj. Gen. H. E. Barrowclough, DSO, as their commanding officer. He served with the New Zealand forces in the Middle East, in Greece, Crete, and Libya, where he commanded the famous New Zealand Sixth Infantry Brigade. He was recalled early in 1942 to lead the New Zealand forces in the Pacific islands.

Squadrons of the New Zealand Air Force have been operating from Henderson Field in the Solomons since 1942. During a recent month one New Zealand fighter squadron destroyed at least 22 Japanese aircraft. The New Zealand cruisers Achilles and Leander have served with distinction in action in the South Pacific with American task forces.

Off Guadalcanal in January, 1943, two 530-ton New Zealand corvettes, Kiwi and Moa, fought a gallant and successful action with a 1600-ton Japanese submarine, which returned fire with her 5.5-inch gun. After three rammings by the Kiwi the submarine was wrecked. The Moa has since been lost in action off the Solomon Islands.

The presence of a New Zealand division in the South Pacific means probably that the total manpower of the Australians and the New Zealanders combined is probably equal to that of the American forces. More than that, it is a further indication that the hard-hitting Anzacs, praised the world over for their ferocity in battle and lustiness on furlough, in the Middle East, are yet to chalk up an equally impressive record in the South Pacific.

Why Germany Fights On

IN THE INTERVIEW he gave to American newspapermen the other day, Marshal Pietro Badoglio threw an interesting and revealing light on one of the great mysteries of our times.

That mystery is why Germany, which in 1918 capitulated only three months after the tide had turned on the Western Front, is still fighting today after a solid year of unbroken defeat and mounting disaster.

The answer, the Badoglio interview makes clear, is in large part to be found in the nature of the totalitarian system.

MARSHAL BADOGLIO tells us that the decision to wage war on France in June, 1940, was made by Mussolini alone, without notice to any of his collaborators and in the face of the strenuous opposition of the Italian military leaders. Even Ciano, the Duce's son-in-law, was against Italy's entrance into the war. So, for that matter, was the overwhelming majority of the Italian people.

But neither the Italian army nor the Italian people rebelled against this high-handed action of their megalomaniac leader. They were bitter but they submitted. The Italian troops sent to Libya and Egypt and Albania and Russia had no heart in the enterprise. But if they fought indifferently they nonetheless fought on.

AT HOME the Italians continued to keep the wheels of the war machine turning. They did not rebel. They could not rebel. Even after Tunisia had been lost, Pantelleria had been occupied, Sicily had been invaded and Mussolini had become hopelessly discredited in their eyes, and in the eyes of the world the Italian people were still weaker than the regime.

"The Italian people," says Badoglio, "had for some time felt an intense hatred of fascism, which they considered rightly to be the cause of all their misfortunes. But none could rebel, considering that all the power was in the hands of the government.' And, he adds, significantly:

"The attack against Mussolini was carried out by the Fascist hierarchs themselves."

IF THAT WAS the situation in Italy in July, 1943, after three years of ruinous war, it is not hard to understand why there has been no popular uprising in Germany up to now and why there is not likely to be any before the Reich is finally defeated.

For in Nazi Germany to a far greater degree than was ever true in Fascist Italy, the regime dominates every avenue of national life.

The bureaucratic apparatus which Hitler heads is at once larger, more efficient and more ruthless than that which existed in Italy during Mussolini's reign as dictator.

Public opinion in Germany can express itself only indirectly and negatively with the shadow of Himmler over everything and everybody

There is no Reichstag capable of serving even as a debating society, as was the case in William II's Reich. There is today no vestige of that freedom of the press which, though in abbreviated form, did exist in 1918.

THERE CAN BE no doubt that Hitler realizes that what happened to Mussolini can happen to him.

He knows that his overthrow may result from (1) the complete military defeat of Germany in the war; (2) the complete collapse of Germany's industrial machine and her transportation system, making it impossible for her armies to fight on; (3) the revolt of the army; (4) the revolt of certain elements in the Nazi Party, and (5) a popular uprising.

The last is least likely. To make sure of that, Heinrich Himmler, the head of the Gestapo and the Elite Guards, was recently made Minister of the Interior, as well, thus giving him control over the civilian police.

Furthermore, the policy of brutality pursued in the occupied countries is deliberately designed to complete the identification in German minds between the fate of the Third Reich and their own individual fate, and thus get the Germans to fight on, even if their plight is hopeless.

A REVOLT within the Nazi Party is unlikely for the same reason that a revolt of the people is unlikely. Every member of the Nazi hierarchy knows he is a marked man; that if Germany is defeated he, personally, will be doomed. So they have no choice but to go along with Hitler.

A revolt within the German army is possible even though the army chiefs realize that this time they will not be able to save even a nucleus of the German military machine which survived the defeat of 1918. But such a revolt is far more likely to be the result of defeat rather than a contributor to it.

There remains, then, military defeat. To smash Hitler Germany herself, the German industrial machine, the German army will have to be smashed so that when the end comes there will be a total collapse of the Third Reich.

We are well on our way to that goal. But the end is not yet in sight.

Dispute Over Northern Epirus

We have read with great interest the publications appearing in The Washington Post of October 1 and 5, relative to the question of northern Epirus occasioned by the letter to you, dated September 26, from the Greek Ambassador, Mr. C. P. Diamantopoulos. As American citizens, most of whom were born in that region, we feel that we are entitled to express an opinion on the question under discussion and to interpret the sentiments of our brethren in our native land.

1. The section of the Balkan Peninsula known as Epirus was Greek since ancient times, and it is well known that it has always been, even during the period of Turkish domination, a center for Hellenic learning and culture, especially in the towns of Jannina, Korysta, Argyrocastro and Moschopolis. In 1912-1913, when so many Greek lands of the Balkan Peninsula were liberated, we and our fellow countrymen hoped that the whole of Epirus would have been freed. But unfortunately, Italy succeeded by diplomatic maneuvers, to have northern Epirus, including the cities of Argyrocastro and Korytsa, incorporated in the then created Albanian State, which, as is generally known, later served as a springboard for the execution of Italian plans. It is notorious that the protocol of Florence, of 1913, was made against the wishes of the inhabitants of this section, and so great was their indignation on the announcement that they would be turned over to Albania that they revolted and declared their independence, and finally succeeded in having signed between the then six great powers and the Epirote representatives, at Corfu, in May, 1914, a new protocol which recognized the Greek character of their province, granting to it broad autonomous rights in the matter of administration, education and policing.

2. Regardless of the contribution or lack of contribution by the Albanians to the war effort against the Axis, it is common knowledge that they were the tool of Italy since 1925 until their country was occupied by Italy, and it is a fact that they cooperated with that power in its attack against Greece. Moreover, Albanian authorities have been most oppressive to the inhabitants of northern Epirus. The latter were oppressed even more cruelly than during the period of Turkish domination. Especially did such persecution affect the schools and the church. During the years of 1925-1926 there were 113 schools in northern Epirus. In 1934 not one was in existence. For that reason the Greek population was compelled to appeal to the League of Nations, and in 1935 the International Court of Justice gave an opinion requiring the reopening of the schools by the Albanian government.

3. There is no secret diplomatic deal bearing upon the future boundaries of Greece and Albania, as Mr. Hart suspects in his communication to you of October 1. Mr. Eden, Secretary for Foreign Affairs of Great Britain, openly declared in the House of Commons about a year ago that the boundaries of Albania would be considered after the war. We, of course, hope that this time, northern Epirus, on whose soil so much Greek blood was shed in resisting the Italian aggression of 1940, will be united with Greece. In addition, it must not be forgotten that the resolution of the United States Senate of September 17, 1920, constituted an unquestioned recognition of the Greek character of northern Epirus. This resolution reads as follows:

"Resolved that it is the sense of the Senate that northern Epirus (including Corytza), the 12 islands of the Aegean, where a strong Greek population predominates, should be awarded by the peace conference to Greece and become incorporated in the Kingdom of Greece."—Congressional Record, May 17, 1920. Volume 59, Part VB-p. 7100

We, consequently, believe that the question has been definitely answered and have no intention of protracting the controversy. Our wish has been to set forth the unalterable feelings of our brethren of northern Epirus, who confidently await justice from the great democracies which signed the Atlantic Charter on August 14, 1941, and the declaration of the United Nations of January 1, 1942.

Connally Resolution

I cannot resist congratulating you on your editorial, "Eyes On the Senate." It is a clear-cut exposition of the issues involved in the postwar policy resolution in its alternate forms, and it is indeed a pleasure to read such a courageous presentation.

Peace Offensive

By Paul Winkler

Intensive Stage

Germany's attempt to get out of the war on terms favorable to herself has reached an intensive stage.

Her latest moves have been these:

1. American banking circles have received feelers concerning the possibility of backing Dr. Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht in case Schacht succeeds in overthrowing Hitler and forming a government which would be the German counterpart of the Italian Badoglio government.

2. Ernst von Weiszaecker, one of the ablest diplomats of the Wilhelmstrasse, recently appointed to represent Germany at the Vatican, is credited by informed circles in Switzerland with being on a peace mission.

3. According to private information from London, the Wilhelmstrasse has established in strictest secrecy a "special office" entrusted with studying the various so-called Free Germany groups in foreign countries, with the object of seeing how they may best be turned to the advantage of the Reich in procuring a favorable peace.

Dr. Schacht

There is nothing new in the attempt to build Schacht up in the eyes of foreigners. Several months ago, two stories, planted in foreign countries, but emanating from Berlin, reported, first, that Schacht had resigned from the Nazi Party, and, second, that he had not resigned but been expelled. The object was to dissociate Schacht from Nazidom and prepare him for the role of opponent to Hitler and successor to him, for the benefit of the same men who put Hitler himself into power. There was even a suggestion, which may still be followed, that Schacht should be arrested, to establish his anti-Nazi nature even more strongly.

It's interesting to note that it is just at this time that a book has appeared in the United States written by a German woman who has now become an American citizen (and who has always claimed to be an anti-Nazi), in which the idea is cleverly built up that Dr. Schacht would be an ideal choice to secure stability in Germany after the peace. He and Otto Meissner are described alike as Talleyrands—that is, opportunists who did, it is true, serve nazism, but who would be quite as ready to serve democracy as well.

But the record shows that "opportunist" Schacht did not simply take advantage of the fact that Hitler came to power in 1933 to gain a good position for himself. He made the opportunity.

Dr. Schacht was in large part responsible for bringing Hitler to the Chancellorship. In 1930, when the Nazi Party was still far from being the dominant group in Germany, Schacht had already entered into close association with Hitler. In that year, he resigned suddenly from his position as head of the Reichsbank, precipitating by that act a financial slump which played into the hands of Hitler. In the fall of 1930, he made a trip through Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland and America, during which he explained to the big bankers with whom he was on familiar terms that Hitler was not at all as dangerous to big business as he was supposed to be. He was the wizard who established the whole economic framework of Hitler's regime, an essential part of its structure, and his present absence from control of Germany's economy is only apparent. He continues to direct it through his close associate, Dr. Walter Funk, its official head.

Otto Meissner

Otto Meissner's record is no better than that of Dr. Schacht. Germany's permanent "secretary of state," he served the Socialist Ebert, the militarist Hindenburg and the Nazi Hitler, preserving throughout the consistent orientation of German foreign policy toward the objective of world domination. A powerful man through all these changes, Meissner has preferred to avoid the limelight.

Meissner's function in Germany has been to serve as the principal liaison agent between the powerful Junkers, the real directors of German policy, and the men, like Hitler, to whom they had intrusted Germany's affairs. He was quite as successful in his performance of this task with Ebert as with any of the others, for Ebert was one Socialist who knew who his masters were, and who stood at attention whenever a German general spoke to him. Under Hindenburg it was Meissner and Hindenberg's son, Oscar, who organized the Osthilfe—the government bureau which, under the guise of aiding distressed East Prussian farmers, gave millions of public money to wealthy Junkers.

If the Allies should accept either of these two men as "opportunist" leaders to replace a vanquished Hitler, the dangerous leaders of Germany will have won their battle. The situation is actually the opposite. Hitler was the "opportunist" who accepted the dangerous role of front man for the sinister forces who backed him. Schacht and Meissner are members of those very forces. To allow them to replace Hitler would be like arresting a gangster holding public office, and turning the office over instead to corrupt politicians who had protected the gangster hireling whose extortion had been carried on for the profit of the higher-ups.

The Sacred Pledge

THERE ARE SOME who say that the effort to establish a concert of power as the core of a world-wide council of the nations is reactionary. They say it is a return to "power politics", and that it does not offer to the suffering masses of mankind a great and dynamic purpose.

LIPPMANN

They are, if I may say so, like visitors who would take one look at the site of a great building, and then come away exclaiming that the architect who promised to erect a towering mansion is in fact excavating a deep hole in the ground and is filling it with steel and stone. Where, they ask, are the spacious living rooms in this thicket of girders and beams?

THE TRUTH of the matter is that the effort to bind together the great powers for the peace of the whole world is the most ambitious undertaking in the history of man. It is an ancient dream of the saints and the sages. But never before has it been made the urgent business of states which embrace the world.

Far from its being a return to power politics, as they have been conducted since the end of the Middle Ages, the project on which the Allied governments are now working will, if it is successful, inaugurate a new epoch in human history. There has never been before a concert of power in the world as a whole, and it may be that we in our time will not be able to establish it. But if we fail, it will not be because our purpose is lacking in grandeur. It will be because we ourselves have not the mind, the heart, and the discipline which the great purpose demands.

IF WE FAIL, if, as this war comes to its end, the Allies separate and go their separate ways, then we shall all find ourselves at once enmeshed in power politics of the most intense and desperate character. For what is power politics? It is the maneuvering to isolate your next enemy in anticipation of the next war. If the great powers are divided, the fact that they are divided means that they must expect, and must therefore, unless they are reckless fools, prepare for the next war.

The opponents of a concert of the powers are, however, numerous. They consist, first, of the wholly innocent who, knowing nothing that is useful about the history of nations, never believe that war can happen until they are attacked. The opponents consist, second, of those who do not want peace unless they can dictate it. They object to agreements and to compromise and accommodation with other nations. They object because they dislike the other nations, because they distrust the other nations, because they want what they want when they want it.

YET WE CAN proceed with confidence. For this conception of a new order of things in the world is not the mere invention of those who make speeches about postwar plans. This conception has been forced upon the nations by the terrible experience in which they have so very nearly perished. The United Nations became united by the deepest of all human instincts, the instinct to survive, and that instinct to survive impels them now to persist in the unity they have already achieved, and to perpetuate it.

Instinct, however, is blind and so when the danger which aroused it has passed, the impulse fades away unless there are institutions, designed intelligently, to carry on. That is why we cannot wait any longer to found the institutions of peace which virtually all responsible men and women now profess to favor. That is the reason why we have gone to Moscow, and why we must go from there wherever else it may be necessary to go, resolved and tireless to achieve the great purpose.

THIS IS OUR DUTY. This is the honoring of the pledge which every civilian has given to all who fight and toil and suffer. It is the pledge that we shall not stupidly, negligently, selfishly squander the blood, the sweat, and the tears with which the age we live in is now sanctified.

Cathedral Rites To Mark Czech Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of Czechoslovakian independence will be observed with solemn services today at 11 a. m. in Washington Cathedral's Bethlehem Chapel.

The Right Rev. George W. Davenport, retired Bishop of the Easton (Md.) Episcopal Diocese and acting Bishop of Washington, will speak. Vladimar S. Hurban, Ambassador of Czechoslovakia, will lay a wreath on President Wilson's Tomb.

Ellis Varley, Cathedral organist, will direct the Boys' Choir in singing "The Twenty-third Psalm," a composition by the Czech composter, Antonin Dvorak. Also participating in the service will be the Revs. Charles W. F. Smith, Cathedral canon chancellor; W. Curtis Draper, jr., acting canon precentor, and Theodore U. Wedel, warden of the College of Preachers.

Famine Dead Put At 100,000 Weekly

New Delhi, Oct. 27 (AP).—Approximately 100,000 persons are dying of starvation in Bengal each week, K. Santhanam, former member of the Central Legislative Assembly and a widly known Indian journalist, declared in the Hindustani Times today after a study of the famine situation. He predicted this figure would increase weekly until the end of December.

U. S. International Air Line Urged For Postwar Era

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Oct. 27.—Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways System, urged last night that a single strong American international air line, to be owned and controlled by all American transportation interests able to contribute, should be set up under a Government-approved plan to enable the United States to compete with the great foreign air transport monopolies in the "age of flight" which will follow the war.

He expressed these views in a speech accepting the Capt. Robert Dollar Award "for distinguished contribution to the advancement of foreign trade," presented at the World Trade dinner of the thirtieth National Foreign Trade convention.

Bus, Taxi Operators Warned To Prepare for Mileage Cut

By Walter Wood

ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman yesterday warned the Nation's bus and taxicab operators to be ready for a possible emergency curtailment of their mileage in the "critical" months ahead.

Eastman said the country was "approaching the most serious stage of the war in relation to domestic transportation."

Long Holiday in Prospect

At the same time ODT made a request that makes it likely that many college and prep school students will get a month's vacation in the Christmas-New Year holiday season.

The agency asked that holiday vacations start not later than December 15, and terminate not before January 11, 1944, to eliminate expected crushes on railroads and bus lines.

If schools cannot comply with the extended vacation request, the ODT urged that vacations start and end in mid-week, to eliminate weekend traffic jams.

Eastman's Office of Defense Transportation asked all operators of fleets of 10 or more rubber-tired passenger vehicles to revise their existing plans for limitations of service that may be compelled by urgencies arising with respect to rubber, gasoline, equipment, repairs and manpower.

Asked to Check Plans

Each carrier, who last January was asked to submit plans for a 10, 20 or 30 per cent mileage cut in case of emergency, is now requested to review those plans and bring them up to date.

Operators must file the revised plans, Eastman said, with the appropriate regional office of the ODT's Division of Local Transportation by November 30.

Similar ODT orders last year prepared bus and taxicab operators in the Eastern gasoline shortage area for the 20 per cent mileage cut which went into effect during the summer of this year.

For example, taxicab fleets in Washington and Capital Transit Co. buses put their plan for a 20 per cent reduction into effect in May of this year. A gradual return to normal routes was not begun until August, when the three-month critical period was over.

"A 65-mile-long headache to us . . . an endless mystery to them"

This is the true story of an unusual cargo that had to go half-way 'round the world . . . and of the riddles it posed, the suspicions it aroused . . . as told by the skipper of an Alcoa ship.

"I knew we were in for trouble the minute I saw those 6 gondola cars. There was the cable scheduled for our #3 hold . . . but what a cable! This baby was about 3" in diameter, and 65 miles long! . . . a tough loading job, believe me.

"Our stevedores went to work on it . . . but that cable was as ornery as a mad boa constrictor. In desperation, we sent an SOS to the manufacturer. Their men came to direct the loading. The trick was to walk it 'round and 'round, making one great, solidly-wound coil, 21' high. Loading took 6 days.

"The cable was needed in such a hurry that we couldn't travel in convoy. We sailed alone . . . on a course that took us half-way 'round the world. We hit plenty of dirty weather. But luckily, no subs. We arrived on schedule.

"Then the real fun began. The stevedores were native tribesmen. The only way we could tell them what to do was through picture and sign language. To top it off, they soon became superstitious about the cable . . . thought it had no end and was coming up out of the sea.

"The port captain was inclined to agree with the natives. He had a log-jam of ships, waiting for us to get out. There was quite a celebration on the twelfth day, when the cable was finally unloaded. Just before we left I said to the port captain, 'I'll send you a cable when we get back to New York'." He shuddered.

Calumet's Miss Keeneland Wins Selima

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Late last November on Navy's chilly practice field hard by the bay clouds were lowering and a storm was whipping up, and Capt. John Whelchel, the four-striper who coaches Navy's football team, was matching the wind, moan for moan.

POVICH

The day is easy to recall. The Army game was coming up, only three days away, in fact, and Coach Whelchel was relating his woes to a group of football writers. Navy couldn't win. It was a crying shame to send them out against that Army team. The melancholy Navy coach saw no hope of averting disaster.

"We don't belong on the same field with that Army team," he was saying. "They'll run us right out of the park. They're too big and too smart, and they've got too many good football players for us. I'll be surprised if we get a touchdown. Our captain may not play a minute. But we've got to go through with this thing."

Three days later Navy showed up for the game with Army. The teams were unevenly matched, and it wasn't much of a contest. Navy beat the daylights out of Army, more than the final score showed. Whelchel's poor, overmatched kids gave the West Pointers an awful shoving around. After the game Whelchel professed surprise, but we'd guess he wasn't exactly stunned by the outcome.

We were thinking of all this the other night when Whelchel was talking of the up-coming game with Notre Dame in Cleveland this weekend. The Navy coach hasn't changed much. His pre-game spiel sounded completely familiar. He said he didn't like Navy's chances, at all.

"How can we beat a team like Notre Dame?" he was saying. "My boys don't belong in that class. Every week the newspapers keep rating us the third best team in the country, and that's a laugh. Who have we licked this season? We've had trouble every week. We just did get by Penn State and last week Georgia Tech had us licked for a long time. We're not one of the great teams in the country."

He said "we're just a pretty good football team, that's all. Maybe it's a little bit better than the average Navy team, but we can't lick any national champions. Thirteen of our players missed practice after the Georgia Tech game because they were hurt. A lot of 'em are still in tough shape. They're not a big team to start with."

Notre Dame, now there is a football team, says Whelchel. "Bill Alexander tells me they're better than ever. I guess they're just unbeatable. If they were human, maybe we'd have a chance, but there's no sense kidding ourselves. We're overmatched. Good little teams don't beat big teams that are great teams. We'll take our beating and be good sports about it."

And so, beware you Irish of Notre Dame. When Whelchel talks like that it bodes no good for anybody Navy happens to be playing. It smacks exactly of the stuff with which Whelchel sand-bagged West Point last year. This weekend at Cleveland Navy won't exactly be defenseless or weaponless. It seems that nobody has licked them yet this season.

Notre Dame at this point is rightfully the heavy favorite to beat Navy, but that Notre Dame line, which has been eliciting rapturous press notices and aweing the scouts will have no pushover in the Navy line. In fact, the line play at Cleveland ought to be something wonderful to see. Many a back is going to be piled up at the line of scrimmage.

Navy will be meeting up with the T-formation in the Notre Dame game, but the "T" didn't bother Navy much against Georgia Tech despite Whelchel's protestations that Tech was very tough. Notre Dame's line will be bigger than Navy's, but everybody Navy has met this season has had a bigger line.

Navy has the perfect counter-threat to Angelo Bertelli, the passing ace of the Irish. He's Hal (Babe) Hamberg, the 150-pound, 5-foot 7-inch tyke who might outdo Bertelli on any given day. Hamberg is no flash in the pan. He has been a great back with Navy for two years now, despite his size. All he did against Georgia Tech was throw three touchdown passes and bang off tackle himself for nine yards and the fourth Navy touchdown.

In the case of Hamberg, incidentally, Whelchel actually breaks down and admits a great satisfaction. "You know," he says, "that Hamberg is the best football player I ever saw, for a man of his size." Aha! A clew, perhaps.

To Slow 'Em Down

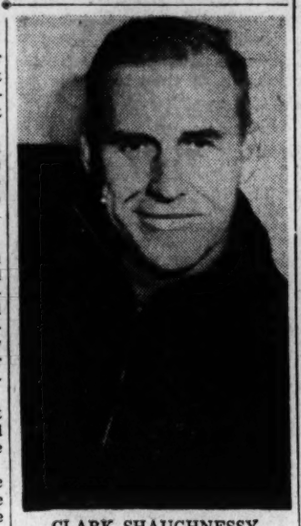
15-Yard First Downs Seen As Trend in Wide Open Game

Clark Shaughnessy Says Postwar Football Will Be Fast, Have Elements of Surprise

Pittsburgh, Oct. 27 (AP).—The day may come, in the opinion of Clark Shaughnessy, when you'll see 12 or 15 yards stepped off on the gridiron for a first down, instead of the traditional 10.

It's all because football offense is becoming so wide open and tricky that its shoving power football out of the picture and outreaching the defense.



CLARK SHAUGHNESSY

The lean, gray-haired University of Pittsburgh coach said today he believed the fans who crave their football fast and with an element of surprise—a style of play exemplified by the T formation—will get it in th epostwar world.

"The offense," he said, "will have so far outreached the defense by that time that it may be necessary to make teams travel 12 or 15 yards for a first down.

Speed, Agility Stressed

"Everything will be centered on agility, speed, quick-thinking, ball handling, and the element of surprise rather than power. You will see the offense scattering the defense laterally and longitudinally instead of being pushed together and held there as in power football," he added.

"Just like our armies, you won't know where this type of offense will strike. The whole accent will be on surprise."

Correspondingly, he thought the offense and defense would have to be equalized somewhat and he mentioned the lengthening of the yardsticks as one suggestion that might do the trick.

Citing the powerful high-scoring teams of Notre Dame, Penn and Army as indicative of the swing to wide-open football, he said:

"Even though competition has been one-sided this year, I think even in Notre Dame's case 12 to 15 yards for a first down would have meant a difference. The Irish would have had to give up the ball more."

Shaughnessy, who is credited with putting the "T" back in college football, said the postwar trend wouldn't necessarily be toward the "T" formation.

"Wide open football can come from a variety of formations," he said.

Bears Lead Pro League Statistics

Chicagoans on Top In Total Offense, Passing; Green Bay Is Rushing Leader

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—The way the Chicago Bears point to their statistical superiority—shared in one instance with Green Bay—in the National Football League, you'd think the Western Division had the only real pro football teams. As a matter of fact, Washington of the Eastern Division has the only unblemished record in the league, even though the Redskins don't talk much about the team figures. (The Redskins have played only three games, other teams four, five and six).

League statistics showed today the Bears were No. 1 in total offense by averaging 366.4 yards over half of their 10-game schedule. They also were first in passing with 1009 aerial yards or 201.8 a game, and second only to Green Bay in yards by rushing with 154.8 a game to the Packers' 165.6.

Bears' Passing Up

But the Bears, although undefeated, have been tied once, by Green Bay—a team the Washington club blasted, 33 to 7. Meanwhile the Redskins haven't been stopped in three games.

The Bears' passing proficiency also shows up in percentage of completions with a .536 average, with Washington right behind at .522.

Along the defensive front the Redskins, defending league champions, really shine. Their opponents have averaged only 169 yards of total gain and only 62 yards by rushing. Washington foes in each game have made 107.7 yards by passing, a mark exceeded only by the Bears' aerial defense yardage yield of 105.6 yards.

Dodgers Worst

The Phil-Pitt Eagles, although beaten twice in four games, have kept up a good defensive record and are second to the Redskins in total defense and rushing defensive. The league's poorest defensive record has been posted by the downtrodden Brooklyn Dodgers who have seen their opponents infiltrate by passes and runs for 333.7 yards a game.

The Chicago Cardinals, who, like Brooklyn, haven't won a game, have the second worst defensive record but have done their best to stave off the opposition with solid punting, their kicks averaging 41.6 yards.

The statistical leaders:

Total yards gained per game—Chicago Bears, 366.4; Green Bay, 337.

Yards rushing per game—Green Bay 165.6; Chicago Bears, 154.8.

Yards passing per game—Chicago Bears, 201.8; Green Bay, 171.4.

Per cent of passes completed—Chicago Bears, .536; Washington, .522.

Opponents yards gained per game—Washington, 169; Phil-Pitt, 196.

Opponents' gains by rushing, per game—Washington, 62; Phil-Pitt, 72.7.

Opponents' gains by passing per game—Chicago Bears, 105.6; Washington, 107.7.

Punting average—Chicago Cardinals, 41.6 yards; Washington, 39.8 yards.

He Rings Scoring Bell

Brian Bell's Big Feet Make Him a Very Handy Fellow

Western Quarterack Stomps Aside Opposition When He Charges Through the Enemy's Lines

By Tom Moore McBride

When the Roosevelt Rough Riders meet Western High School in the weekly spot game of the interhigh series at Central Stadium Saturday they will have two tough points of opposition to contend with, the Red Raiders' heavy plunging line and Brian Bell.

Coach Artie Boyd of Roosevelt is familiar with both of the threats. He has scouted the Red Raiders from all angles, but whether the Riders will be able to counteract the complementing factors which have won Western all of its interhigh games except one so far is a moot question which won't be answered until game time.

Unlike some of the high school stars who have run rampant over all opposition in past years, Quarterback Bell is not a triple-threat man in the larger sense of the word. He runs, he passes, he kicks, but Bell is a standout because of his running game. At that he excels. At the others he's all better than average, not in the class with some of the high school crop this year.

Some Better Than Bell

There probably are better broken field runners than Bell in the league, despite the lad's 85-yard runback on the kickoff of the opening game against Tech. Coach Fred Mulvey would like his hips a bit more swiveled.

But as to gaining ground when there seems no more ground to be gained—when there are a couple of opponents hanging on his hips—Brian Bell is the best there is in local high competition.

That is the doing of Coach Mulvey.

Whe nit comes to quick kicking, another of Bell's handy little attributes, the score may be laid to a gentleman named Clark Shaughnessy. The present Pitt and former Maryland coach was an intimate friend of the late Brian Bell, sr., an Associated Press writer who knows something of sports himself.

Bell was an end last year. Not an especially good end, because he wasn't an awfully good blocker. He did nicely on pass receiving and Mulvey saw to it that Bell was made his assistant during the summer at Glen Echo playground. As tennis instructor Brian didn't have too much time to concentrate on football, but Mulvey made a quarterback out of him through a little kicking and passing practice.

But above all Fred Mulvey made a running back out of Brian Bell. He taught him how to keep his legs moving after he was tackled, how to keep churning, to keep those big No. 12½ feet moving until they were up in the air.

And if nothing else, Brian has learned that lesson well.

Bell Is Spark Plug

Watch Bell when a couple of Roosevelt men tackle him Saturday. Look and see whether he doesn't gain another 6 inches, another foot, another yard. It's beautiful football, and above the average of high school football determination.

That's another reason Mulvey likes Bell: He doesn't quit when the going gets tough. He's a spark plug, even though his quarterbacking may not be the best of the league—he pushes the other boys on. He's a nice man to have on a team.

Coach Mulvey reminded that Bell wouldn't be much good without the strong line that protects him, the other swell blocking backs on the Raider team. We agree, heartily. But where would they be without a spark plug like Bell?

Western has plenty of other good players, too. Otherwise Bell would look like a palooka. There's Stratos and Bishop in the backfield, who make it possible for Bell to look so good. And there's the line, with a big boy named Krause who does nicely, which punches holes the like of which haven't been seen hereabouts lately. And there are a lot of other factors.

But you can't dismiss Bell. Besides, he's sports editor of the Western Breeze, and his ambition is to be a sports writer, so he deserves a lot of sympathy.

Stablemate Twilight Tear Runs Second

Whirlabout Third In Lengths Apart Finish; Double Pays $318 Sum

(Pimlico Charts on Page 18.)

By Walter Haight

Pimlico, Oct. 27.—Trainer Ben Jones, who developed Whirlaway, saddled the first and second horses in the eighteenth running of the $10,000 added Selima Stakes, transferred here from Laurel. Miss Keeneland and Twilight Tear, in the devil's red and blue of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, finished a length apart and another length back came A. B. Hancock's Whirlabout to be third in the group of eight going over the 1 1-16 miles course.

Today's finish in the famous 2-year-old filly test reversed that of the previous race of the Calumet stars. In that event Miss Keeneland coasted into second position behind her winning stablemate, but today both were under a drive.

Jockey Smith Aboard

Jockey F. A. Smith rode Miss Keeneland and steadied her within striking distance as Twilight Tear set the pace and shook off the speed horses. Jockey B. Thompson on Twilight Tear had his mount going strongly in the stretch but Whirlabout moved up menacingly on the outside.

At this point, Smith probably figured Twilight Tear was in danger of bowing to Whirlabout. Anyway, he put Miss Keeneland to a drive and she responded by rushing between horses and into the lead to win going away.

The victory was the fourth for Miss Keeneland in seven outings and her best triumph of the year. By adding $20,750 today, she brought her earnings to $29,975. Her time was 1:48 2-5 over a muddy track. Some 12,000 customers saw the program conducted under threatening skies.

Daily Double Pays $318

The early portions of the program brought excitement. In the second race, B. B. Jones' Gambling Andy, Cedar Farm's Ariel Mission and C. S. Howard's Sabu hit the wire as a team. The camera gave first money to Gambling Andy, a $44.50 shot and called it a dead heat for place between Ariel Mission and Sabu. Those who coupled Gambling Andy with H. H. Haag's Amazed, an easy $9.70 winner of the first race, collected $318 in the daily double.

In the third event, the steeplechase, Mrs. J. B. Balding's Cupid had the race won but bolted off the course approaching the finish and presented victory to Mrs. E. DuPont Weir's Burma Road, an $8.10 shot.

It is not necessary to stay at the track to bet on the seventh and eighth races . . . Early wagers for these events are accepted at the information window . . . Shining Waves, a 2-year-old filly by Wise Counsellor, had to be destroyed this morning when she broke an ankle in a workout . . . Col. E. R. ## Scout Reports on Dodgers Worries Coach, but Not 'Skins

While Coach Dutch Bergman studies and worries over last week's scout reports on the greatly improved showing of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Redskins are taking the attitude of "Who did they ever beat?" in the daily practice sessions.

Despite last Sunday's close call over the Chicago Cardinals, like Brooklyn without a victory, the 'Skins have not been showing much enthusiasm for Sunday's game at Ebbett's Field. Bergman's problem is not a new one as for years Redskin teams have been taking the league's weak teams lightly, and they have several beatings to show for their carelessness.

"Brilliant in spots," is the way the Redskin scout reports described the Dodger attack as Brooklyn scored its first touchdowns of the season in losing to the Bears, 33-21.

Although any team which takes a four-game, minus 11 yards rushing figure into a pro league game is almost sure to show improvement, the Dodgers came up with an unlooked-for offense built around two Texas rookies, Ken Heineman and Cecil Johnson, who did not show against the Redskins here.

Merlyn Condit, injured when the Dodgers lost 27-0 to the Redskins in the first game here, was one of nine Brooklyn backs to play against the Bears. As a unit the Dodgers showed a lack of cohesion, but compared to previous showings, they were world beaters. What's worrying Bergman is that the Dodgers may be on their way up and catch the Redskins standing still.

The Dodgers have played five games and have 440 fewer yards gained than the Redskins in three, which is one reason the 'Skins cannot be blamed for taking them lightly. Brooklyn has gained 569 yards and their opponents 1667.

Bob Masterson is still favoring his injured ankle, but otherwise the Redskins will be ready for Sunday. Bergman ran the team through a 2½-hour workout yesterday after Tuesday's practice was confined to under the stands, due to the rain.

Umpire Barlick Gets Draft Call

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 27 (AP).—Al Barlick, whose colorful baseball umpiring in the National League has delighted fans for the last two seasons, leaves tomorrow for a draft examination in Chicago.

The 27-year-old arbiter completed his second full season in the league this year. He makes his home in Springfield with his wife and child.

Pitcher Hal White Gets Induction Exam

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP).—Hal White, Detroit Tigers' pitcher, was given a blood test today preparatory to being inducted into military service. White said his final classification will not be disclosed for several weeks and in the meantime he is working in a war plant.

Speaker Resigns As Boxing Boss

Cleveland, Oct. 27 (AP).—Tris Speaker, famed Grey Eagle of baseball, resigned today as chairman of the Cleveland Boxing Commission to devote more time to his business as a salesman.

The man who led the Cleveland Indians to their only American League pennant and world championship in 1920 has been head of the boxing commission for nearly eight years.

Widener Funeral Scheduled Friday

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Funeral services for Joseph E. Widener, sportsman and art collector, who died yesterday at his Elkins Park estate, will be held Friday at the St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, Elkins Park.

Burial will be private at Laurel Hill Cemetery.

Peter A. B. Widener 2d, ill in a Lynchburg (Va.) hospital, has not yet been told of his father's death.

Grid Dodgers Add UCLA Guard

Brooklyn, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Brooklyn Professional Football Dodgers today added Bill Armstrong, a guard and center on the University of California at Los Angeles team last year, to their roster. He replaces Pete Owens, who was called to his Littlefield (Tex.) ranch, where his father is ill.

Dan Biggers Booked For Monday Bout

Dan Biggers, Baltimore Negro heavyweight, has been booked to meet Walter Hafer for a six-round bout on Promoter Joe Turner's boxing card at Turner's Arena Monday, featuring Perk Daniel, Chicago lightweight, and Clent Conway, winner of eight of nine fights locally.

Cadets Stress Pass Defense For Penn Tilt

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP).—Coach Earl Blaik put the Army squad through a long session on pass defense in preparation for the Cadets' first big test of the season against Penn Saturday. Doug Kenna, though still running with a limp, took part in the practice by throwing passes against the varsity. Capt. Jack Buckler, star Army halfback of 1933-34 who now is stationed at Stewart Field, assisted with the backfield coaching.

BIG RED SCRIMMAGES

Ithaca, N. Y.—Cornell had a light scrimmage with a patchwork first team in preparation for Columbia. There were 24 players in uniform, including Capt. Bud Cushing, Tony Lascala and John Tully, who took things easy because of injury. Ed Schneider, naval aviation cadet who was transferred from Colgate this week, was at fullback on the first team.

YALE AT FULL STRENGTH

New Haven, Conn.—Yale, at full strength after examinations and a two-day vacation, had its longest practice of the season. Most of it was devoted to running signals to freshen up its plays for Saturday's Dartmouth game. Scooter Scussel and Eddie Egan worked on punting and Scussel practiced pitching passes to his former Connecticut teammate, Len Arntsen.

PENN LOSES TWO ENDS

Philadelphia—George Munger, Penn coach, announced that Bob Odell will captain the Quakers for the second time this season against Army Saturday. He also announced that the Navy has transferred two ends, James Cantwell and Mike Sotack, to other schools.

CORDOVANO IN CHARGE

New York—For the third successive day, Columbia's gridders, whose practice time has been short all season, took advantage of the extra time afforded by the Navy trainees' vacation to stage a three-hour outdoor workout. Due to the soggy condition of the field, the Lions were limited to ground plays as they rehearsed their offense for Saturday's clash with Cornell at Ithaca. With Coach Lou Little still unable to attend, Assistant Sam Cordovano was in charge of practice.

Draft Board Puts Chandler in 1-A

St. Petersburg, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP). Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, leading pitcher of the American League for 1943 and winner of two games for the New York Yankees in the World Series, said today he has been reclassified 1-A by his Royston (Ga.) draft board and expects an early call from Uncle Sam.

Chandler arrived last night from Georgia, rejoining his family which came to St. Petersburg, the Chandlers' winter home, after the World Series games in New York. Chandler has a 2-year-old son.

Yank Hurler Byrne Gets Navy Commission

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Thomas J. Byrne, relief pitcher last season for the New York Yankees, has been commissioned an ensign in the U.S. Naval Reserve, the Office of Naval Procurement here disclosed today.

Byrne went to the Yankees from Wake Forest College, where he played intercollegiate ball.

Leahy Pessimistic, but Irish Keen for Navy

Second Team Keeps First On Hurry Up

Regulars Explode In First Period, Then Fresh Reserves Keep Scores Moving Up

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP).—Admittedly Frank Leahy has some good reasons for his continuing and growing pessimism over his great Notre Dame football team, including the many problems of keeping the team at high pitch week after week. But as Athletic Director Doug Mills of Illinois says, they're the kind of problems any coach would enjoy having every season.

One of the best reasons the Irish have been razor-sharp against all five of their opponents—good and bad—so far, and why they should be just as keen against Navy Saturday, is a strong and capable set of reserves that keep the regulars on the "hurry up" all the time.

Using Same Formula

Leahy has achieved success in all five games by the same general formula—explode all his massive first-team power in the opening period and part of the second quarter, then shoot in the reserves, who usually keep right on going until the score reaches war-debt proportions. If the regulars return to action later, they're usually muttering "Let's show those subs how we do it"—and they do.

Look at the record. Notre Dame led Pitt 27 to 0 at the half and won 41 to 0. It had Georgia Tech only 21 to 13 at the half—its closest call—but swept on to its highest point total to win, 55 to 13. It pinned down Michigan 21 to 6 at the intermission and won 35 to 12. It rocked Wisconsin's defenses for 25 points in the first two quarters and triumphed 50 to 0. And the Irish had Illinois 26 to 0 at the half as the starter to a 47-to-0 triumph.

Perhaps Not So Good

Many a Notre Dame alumnus—real or adopted—has asked this season what would happen if Angelo Bertelli, Julie Rykovich, Jim Mello and Creighton Miller and the first team line played most of the game. Quite possibly Notre Dame's margins wouldn't have been as emphatic because the lads might have tired.

This way, with the reserves—led by Bertelli's heir apparent, Johnny Lujack—taking over in the second period, the Irish T machine has kept going at a terrific pace and has made the first stringers realize they've got serious competition from their own teammates even if the opposition hasn't much to offer.

The return to eligibility of Bob Kelly, freshman halfback who was declared scholastically deficient at the start of the season, was the big news in camp today.

Kelly passed all examinations in his Navy V-12 courses last week and will be relied upon as a replacement for Julie Rykovich for the remainder of the campaign.

Middie Soccermen Beat Lehigh, 4 to 0

Annapolis, Oct. 27 (AP).—Despite a stubborn defense by the soccer squad from Lehigh University, Navy's varsity booters made it three straight without a defeat this season today, 4-0.

The Tar eleven was held to one goal until the third period when tricky Art Calisto and Johnny Swank dribbled through the Lehigh defense and scored.

Navy now boasts wins over Duke, University of Pennsylvania and Lehigh as the Middies aim for the National Collegiate soccer championship.

| Lehigh. | Position. | Navy. |

Scoring: Navy—Calisto (2), Swank, Botts (sub for Calisto). Substitutions: Lehigh—Dinon, Kirkhan, Johns, Hamme, Moore; Navy—Baldwin, Pfefferkorn, Purkabeck, Nicklas, Botts, Drake, Polk, Barnes, Griffin, De Mayo, Vander Wolk, Rogers, Kern, Horgan.

Trainers to Box At Camp Simms

Seven National Training School bouts will be presented at Camp Simms, D. C., tonight under the direction of Coach Bill McGeever, of the Trainers. The card:

112-pound class—Leo Tozzola vs. John Kelly.
118-pound class—William Colon vs. John Davis.
126-pound class—James Madison vs. Bill Fagan.
126-pound class—John Carter vs. Junior Smith.
135-pound class—Ted McIntosh vs. James Balderson.
135-pound class—Billy Waugh vs. Charles Rockinberg.
140-pound class—Bernie Barry vs. Robert Rayburn.

Rangers Get 2 Wingers From Montreal Club

Winnipeg, Nov. 27 (AP).—Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, announced tonight that the club had obtained Wilbert (Dutch) Hiller and the veteran Charlie Sands from the Montreal Canadiens in exchange for Phil Watson. Hiller, who played with the Rangers from 1937 to 1941, is a left-winger and Sands a right-winger.

Wakefield Reports for Duty

Dick Wakefield, Detroit Tiger batting star, is measured by Yeoman Harry Wolf as he reports for active duty as a naval aviation cadet. He's now at Naval Preparatory School at Delaware, Ohio. Oh, yes, the physical examination tape said he was just 6 feet 4 inches tall.

Touchdown Club Supporting Boys Town Game Here Nov. 7

The Touchdown Club of Washington yesterday had lined up to a man behind the mammoth intersectional football benefit game in which the Gonzaga Eagles meet the Boys Town, Nebr., team at Griffith Stadium a week from Sunday, November 7.

A complete sellout of the special luncheon to be addressed by Father Flanagan at 12:30 Tuesday was announced by Executive Secretary Jim Magner.

The Nebraska State Society of Washington, D. C., also has volunteered the game its unqualified support, and will honor Father Flanagan at a combination meeting and party scheduled for the Statler Hotel next Thursday.

Smiling Sam Trewolla, a guard, formerly of the District, will be numbered among the key players to represent Boys Town against Gonzaga here.

Tickets for the approaching classic remain available at Griffith Stadium, and in the lobbies of the Mayflower, Shoreham and Willard hotels.

Chief Goes to War, Squaw Will Lead Illini Game Songs

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 27 (AP).—For 16 years the Indian war dance of Chief Illiniwek has brought University of Illinois football homecomers to their feet for the traditional singing of "Illinois Loyalty." Here it is homecoming time—and Chief Illiniwek has gone to war.

But a squaw will carry on. In full warrior's regalia, Idell Stith, senior from Fairfax, Okla., will dance and also smoke the peace pipe at the halftime of Illinois' game with Michigan Saturday.

Miss Stith's parents reside on an Indian reservation and she is an honorary princess of the Osage tribe, so the routine won't be new to her.

Egan to Perform With Red Wings

Detroit, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings were informed today by President Mervin Dutton, of the National Hockey League, that defenseman Pat Egan had received a medical discharge from the Canadian army and that he would report to the Detroit club tomorrow.

The Red Wings purchased Egan for $15,500 from the defunct New York Americans a year ago but he never has played here. Last winter he worked in a shipyard before entering the army.

Manager Jack Adams said he hoped Egan would adequately replace Jack Stewart, Detroit's top defenseman now in the RCAF.

Fritzie Zivic to Meet Bobby Richards Friday

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—Fritzie Zivic, former welterweight boxing champion, will try to put a stop to young Bobby Richard's record of ever having been knocked out when they meet in a 10-round bout Friday night.

The veteran Pittsburgh fighter and the 21-year-old Cleveland boxer will headline the opening boxing match of the fall season at the Chicago Stadium.

Navy Squad Leaves Today For Cleveland

Tars Are Expected To Uncover Plays That'll Give Bertelli Of Irish Trouble

Annapolis, Oct. 27 (AP).—An undefeated Navy football squad will leave Annapolis tomorrow afternoon for Cleveland to meet on Saturday one of the strongest and highest scoring Notre Dame teams of many years.

The Middies are scheduled to arrive in Cleveland about noon Friday, thus having an opportunity for light drills before their clash with the undefeated Irish the following day.

Although Capt. John E. Whelchel, the Tars' head football coach, would not divulge the names of his players who are on the sick list from colds and injuries, other sources indicated that two of the Sailors' star backfield members probably would not make the trip West.

Pettit, Jenkins Out

Backs Jim Pettit and Bob Jenkins, both of whom were injured in the Duke game, probably will remain at the Naval Academy.

This week's clash will be the seventeenth between the Irish and the Middies, the series having started in 1927.

During the unbroken sequence of games, the Irish have emerged with 13 wins, against Navy's 3.

So, keeping this record in mind, don't be too surprised if Whelchel's boys uncover some plays against Angelo Bertelli and Co. that give the Irish plenty of uncomfortable moments.

That's the way the Tar grid mentor likes to operate.

Applications Returned

The Navy Athletic Association, meanwhile, announced today that it had completed the job of refunding money sent with applications for the Army-Navy game at West Point on November 27.

This work, an official said, started immediately after announcement from the White House on October 9 that attendance at the service classic would be limited to bona fide residents living within a 10-mile radius of the Army Stadium.

A similar ban was ordered last year when the game was played in Annapolis, and only about 10,000 persons saw the battle.

Probable line-ups for Saturday:

| Notre Dame. | Position. | Navy. |
|---|---|---|
| Kuffel | L.E. | Channell (C.) |
| White | L.T. | Whitmire |
| Filley | L.G. | Brown |
| Coleman | Center | J. Martin |
| Sirnaigo | R.G. | Chase |
| Czarobski | R.T. | Sprinkle |
| Yonaker | R.E. | Johnston |
| Bertelli | Q.B. | Nelson |
| Miller | L.H. | Hamberg |
| Rykovich | R.H. | B. Martin |
| Mello | F.B. | Hume |

3 D. C. Boys Score At Mercersburg

Three boys from the Washington area won honors in the fifty-first annual field day of Mercersburg Academy, the Mercersburg Press Club announced yesterday.

Maurice L. Brewton, jr., of 4417 River rd. nw., won the Williams Cups for the best all-round track man, won third place in the handicapped broad jump.

Jonathan K. Woods, 3612 Veazey st. nw., won first place in the pole vault and won third place in the mile run.

James R. Peers, 6922 Glenbrook rd., Bethesda, Md., won second place in the pole vault and first place in the 100-yard dash, with a time of 10.3 seconds.

Thumbs Up Scratched, Slide Rule in Special

Baltimore, Oct. 27 (AP).—The prospective field for the $25,000 Pimlico Special Saturday, lost one good colt today and gained another.

Trainer Cecil Wilhelm notified Maryland Jockey Club officials that he would ship W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule to Baltimore tomorrow to start against Shut Out in the weight-for-ages, winner-take-all special.

Slide Rule, a 3-year-old son of Snark and runnerup to Count Fleet for money earning honors among the current crop of 3-year-olds, became eligible for the Special by winning the Arlington Classic. He had been regarded an unlikely starter, and Wilhelm's decision came as a surprise to track officials.

Thumbs Up Declared Out

Thumbs Up, the Louis B. Mayer son of Blenheim II, was declared out of the race today by Trainer C. A. "Slim" Roles.

Thumbs Up suffered a cut foreleg while being pulled up after an impressive victory in the Havre de Grace Handicap here October 16, and bad weather retarded his return to form.

Greentree Stable's Shut Out, the other principal candidate for the Special, worked out on the muddy strip between races today.

He went a half in 50 4-5, the mile in 1:41 4-5 and 1¼ miles in 2:09 eased up.

Other probable starters in the 1 3-16 miles test are Foxcatcher Farm's Fairy Manhurst, Havahome Stable's Eurasian and Hal Price Headley's Anticlimax, which became eligible only last Saturday when he romped home ahead of Son of Peace and Shut Out in the Washington Handicap.

Entered in Both Events

Fairy Manhurst will be entered in both the Special and the Exterminator Handicap, also Saturday, and the final decision regarding him is not expected before the morning of the race.

Eurasian, which became eligible for the Special through his victory in the Travers, will be shipped down from New York tomorrow.

'Red' Hickey Leads Scorers In Maryland

Sports lovers found a new name at the top of the Maryland gridiron scoring list last night—Howard (Red) Hickey of the Bainbridge Navy Commodores—who took over the honors with a total of 30 points.

Hickey, who has scored in every game this season, added two more touchdowns to his total Sunday against the Bulldogs of Camp Lee, Va., hitting pay-off territory twice on as many passes from Hilliard Cheatham of Auburn.

Attracting attention on the football field is nothing new to Hickey, who was on of Arkansas' great ends, gaining fame throughout the Southwest in 1940. He played in the East-West game in San Francisco January 1, 1941, doing sufficiently well to bring pro scouts around to sign him for the Cleveland Rams. He stayed with the Rams until he joined the Navy.

In taking over the scoring leadership in Maryland, Hickey displaced Navy's Bill Barron, who failed to tally against Georgia Tech. Tied for second place at 24 points each were two Navy and two Bainbridge backs—Barron and Joe Sullivan of Navy, and Jim Gatewood and Charley Justice of the Commodores.

The leaders:

| | TD | PAT | FG | TP |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Hick, Bainbridge, end | 5 | 0 | 0 | 30 |
| Sullivan, Navy, back | 4 | 0 | 0 | 24 |
| Justice, Bainbridge, back | 4 | 0 | 0 | 24 |
| Barron, Navy, back | 4 | 0 | 0 | 24 |
| Howlett, Bainbridge, back | 2 | 0 | 0 | 12 |
| Tushak, Maryland, back | 2 | 0 | 0 | 12 |
| Gennock, Curtis Bay, back | 2 | 0 | 0 | 12 |
| Vandeweghe, B'bridge, end | 2 | 0 | 0 | 12 |
| Johnson, Bainbridge, back | 0 | 5 | 2 | 11 |

Wolverine Players Out Of Scrimmage

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP). Michigan's Wolverines had difficulty with the Illinois "T" formation, as demonstrated by the reserves in today's practice session. Center Fred Negus and Fullback Bob Wiese were out of the defensive scrimmage with injuries. Don Lund replaced Wiese and Harold Watts and Frank Kern alternated at center.

HOOSIERS STUDY FILMS

Bloomington, Ind.—Indiana's Hoosiers went to the movies today to study the film version of their 30 to 0 triumph over Wisconsin last Saturday and then adjourned to the practice field to strengthen their defense.

Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin stressed secondary defense as he sought to bolster the line against the speedy thrusts of Ohio State, which the Hoosier meet Saturday at Columbus.

FURLOUGH FOR PURDUE

Lafayette, Ind.—Preparations for Purdue's encounter with Wisconsin's Badgers at Madison Saturday were all over today for Marine trainees on the Boilermaker squad, most of whom were home on furloughs granted at the end of the semester. The majority of the Marines will join the squad at Chicago Friday night.

Coach Elmer Burnham sent a skeleton squad through a brief scrimmage and devoted attention to three newcomers, James Lockwood, center, and Chalmers Elliott, halfback, both V-12 prospects, and Joe Winkler, letterman last year, who has returned to school with a medical discharge.

HAUSER SEEKING SUBS

Minneapolis—Coach George Hauser today continued his search for substitutes to back up his starting Minnesota football team for its game with Northwestern Saturday. There were no outstanding changes in the first string today.

The accent was put on pass defense today, with most of the session being devoted to it.

WILDCATS PLAY SPOTTY

Evanston, Ill.—Northwestern spent half its practice session today on defense against Minnesota plays and then had an offensive workout in which blocking appeared rather spotty.

Herman Frickey, former Gopher star now playing halfback for the Wildcats, was the standout in the offensive drill, ripping off several long gains. Coach Lynn Waldorf had Freshman Dick Eggers at first string left tackle, replacing Bill Ivy.

BUCKEYES TAKE TO AIR

Columbus—Ohio State's football practice session today indicated Coach Paul Brown's Buckeyes intend to unleash their most powerful aerial barrage of the season against Indiana this Saturday. While the Bucks concentrated on their overhead game, they also were in the market for some defensive measures guaranteed to halt the aerial maneuvers of Indiana's Bob Hoernschemeyer.

Golden Greek, Near Defeat, Rises to Vanquish Leone

George Macrocostas, the Golden Greek (for some reason they always have to be golden—never green or red, or even a pastel blue), scored a bloodless victory over Michele Leone after 36 minutes of the main wrestling match before 1500 at Turner's Arena last night.

Mac won with a body press after he had almost been pinned by the Italian. Leone previously had tossed the winner through the ropes three times and had stomped and gouged Macrocostas until the fans were crazy for blood—Leone's blood.

As a final offensive gesture, Leone body slammed Macricostas twice and pinned him for a 2-count. Then Mac broke loose to floor Michele and pin him for the count.

Once during the skit Leone stuck a pair of grimy fingers in the Greek's mouth to gouge him and Macricostas clamped down on the digits enthusiastically, rationing being what it is. Leone gave out with an anguished scream and proceeded to jump out of the enclosure to show the ringsiders the extent of his injuries. While thus engaged, Macricostas clouted him lustily.

Cliff Olson won the seminal in 10 minutes when the hooded Blue Streak was disqualified for being naughty. Throughout the match the Halloween character had been slugging and choking the amiable Swede.

Ed White made short work of one Pat Cunningham, who proved an excellent example of the evils of the manpower deficit.

Handsome Billy Darnell defeated Chief Bamba Tabu with a knockdown and body press in 27½ minutes, and Washington's Dick Craddock drew with John Vanski in a 30-minute opener.

Mrs. Clifton Lee Again Appointed To Post at GWU

Mrs. Clifton Lee, a former Washington University hostess, has been appointed housekeeper at Staughton Hall, it was announced yesterday. She was at Strong Hall from 1936 to 1942.

MRS. LEE

Mrs. Lee is a native of Bath, Me. She is well known in Washington, and George Washington University officials term her return a "pleasing development."

Mrs. Lee came here from Richmod, where she served as receptionist at the Richmond Professional Institute, a branch of William and Mary College.

The house mother has one daughter of her own, who is in Panama with her husband, Alexander Maxwell MacKenzie, a civil engineer in the Navy Department Canal Zone office.

Sliding Scale Called Pepco Thermostat

The sliding scale plan by which the Potomac Electric Power Co. computes its electricity rates is a "thermostat acting on the company's earnings," Lloyd B. Harrison, counsel for the Public Utilities Commission, told Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday in District Court.

Justice Bailey is hearing the trial by which the Government seeks a two million dollars rate reduction to consumers here. The Government contends that the rate this year should have been reduced 10 per cent instead of 1.5 per cent.

Harrison denied the OPA assertion that the PUC hearing last March had been arbitrarily limited to prevent introduction of evidence attacking the sliding scale. "There has never been any effort on the part of the commission to exclude any facts pertaining to power rates and their computation," asserted Harrison.

S. R. Bowen, attorney for PEPCO, said that the sliding scale was the only answer until a revaluation of the company's finances.

War's Impact On Transit Line Stressed Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Capital Transit Co. expects its passenger load to reach a record 411 millions this year, more than double the total of 1940.

And the heaviest demand for transit service is yet to come, declared J. E. Heberle at a dinner meeting of the District of Columbia Controllers Institute in the Carlton Hotel Tuesday night. Mr. Heberle is controller of Capital Transit Co.

"The heaviest demand for transit facilities," said Mr. Heberle during a roundtable discussion of the impact of wars on public utilities, "occurs at the conclusion of a war period."

1919 Figure Cited

He cited figures showing that passenger traffic on local transit lines in 1915 amounted to 115 millions and this increased to 174 millions immediately following the First World War in 1919.

"It is estimated," he added, "that this year the Capital Transit will carry more than 411 million passengers. At the present time, 895 streetcars are in service along with 1249 buses."

Records of Capital Transit show the following sharp rise in traffic and vehicles in service with 1943 estimated:

| | Passengers | Vehicles |
|---|---|---|
| 1938 | 161,236,211 | 1095 |
| 1939 | 171,965,729 | 1138 |
| 1940 | 186,312,871 | 1287 |
| 1941 | 228,663,986 | 1542 |
| 1942 | 346,895,459 | 1686 |
| 1943 | 411,000,000 | 2144 |

"Robots" Help C. & P.

Also participating in the roundtable discussion were H. G. Haydon, controller of Potomac Electric Co. and F. H. Kenworthy, controller of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Mr. Kenworthy declared that during the last war the facilities of the company were on a manual basis, while at the present time, approximately 99 per cent of the facilitiees are on the dial basis. It is now possible for operators in Washington to dial Philadelphia subscribers direct from this city, he said.

The shortage of coal, manpower, and critical materials, along with the possibility of sabotage and the bombing of Washington were declared by Mr. Haydon to be the five threats which the Potomac Electric Power Co. must be continually on the guard against in maintaining electric service in this area. He strongly urged the conservation of electrical energy.

Ritenour Elected Chairman

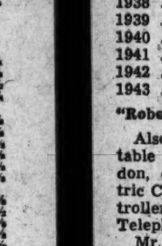
O. H. Ritenour, controller of the Washington Gas Light Co., was elected chairman of the accounting section of the American Gas Association at the annual meeting this week in St. Louis.



RITENOUR

A native of Virginia and graduate of the University of Virginia, Mr. Ritenour has been associated with the local gas firm since 1925 in various executive capacities. He has been active in the national association as well as in local civic affairs. At present he is a member of the headquarters committee of the Community War Fund.

He received his BCS degree from Southeastern University here.

PCA Passengers Up 35 Per Cent

Return of a single airliner coupled with the greatest utilization of equipment already in use has reflected sharp gains in the service Pennsylvania-Central Airlines has been able to render, PCA Vice President J. J. O'Donovan revealed yesterday.

Revenue plane miles flown in September totaled 289,827 as compared with 230,113 in September, 1942, an increase of 26 per cent. Revenue passenger mile increased from 3,907,495 to 5,145,058 while the passenger load factor was boosted from 81.50 per cent to 84.90 per cent. Revenue passengers carried totaled 24,401 in September this year against 18,107 last year, or an increase of 35 per cent.

Mark-up Rules Clarified

The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., said yesterday in a letter to its Washington members that it shall consider it "inconsistent with just principles" for a member to sell any security to a customer at "any price not reasonably related to the current market price of the security."

From a study of questionnaires filed by 82 per cent of its membership the association said it found that most transactions were "just and equitable."

It was found that 47 per cent of the over-the-counter transactions reported to the association were effected at a gross spread or mark-up of not more than 3 per cent, whereas 71 per cent were not more than 5 per cent, Chairman Henry G. Riter 3d said.

The letter emphasized that approved standards are flexible. "In the case of certain low-priced securities such as those selling below $10, a somewhat higher percentage may sometimes be justified. On the other hand, 5 per cent or even a lower rate is by no means always justified."

The association stated further that where transactions are consummated on an agency basis the commission charged must not be unfair and "should not exceed the amount which, were the member to act as a principal, would be in accord with the standards of practice discussed."

"I see by Newsweek . . .

A Harvard professor may be Germany's new chancellor! Heinrich Bruening's name is returning to prominence as one who might, after this war, be able to bring a beaten Germany back to the ways of humanity. Privately, Bruening has called it 'all poppycock' that he might again be chancellor. But others see in Bruening a man who could be drafted, and who could command the ready-made respect of a vast number of 'good Germans.' In his favor is his clean political record. Against him is the belief in some quarters that a 'strong man' is needed in the field of postwar politics rather than a man who would make a good priest, teacher, or counsellor."

"I see by Newsweek . . .

New plastic lens makes big improvement in television! A revolutionary optical system for telescopes, developed some years ago by an obscure German optician, has been applied to television with startling results. It makes possible television pictures of undreamed of size and clarity. Striking fact of the new development, revealed to a Newsweek reporter behind closed doors in an RCA laboratory, is that a way has been found to mold the complicated lens of plastic—instead of grinding it from glass. Thus the prohibitive cost of the advance is reduced to an economically practical level."

The man who knew when the world would end . . .

ONCE there was a man who specialized in predicting the end of the world. The first time he announced the debacle, there was a terrific furore.

But with each successive failure, he got less and less attention. In fact, he finally went out of business.

Moral: It takes a lot of courage to look into the future, because even carefully studied predictions have a way of going awry. That's why the record of Newsweek's "Periscope" is so remarkable—its forecasts have been fully confirmed 88 times out of 100!

This is only one of four ways in which Newsweek brings you a true perspective of the news:

. . . through impartial, objective reporting of news facts.

. . . through careful analysis of the facts for news significance, often more important than the facts themselves.

. . . through the signed opinions of recognized authorities — Pratt, Malone, Masefield, Lindley, Moley, Robey.

. . . through frequent glimpses into the future, not alone in The Periscope, but in Postwar Horizons.

Today Newsweek is publishing, in newspaper pages like this, a few highlights from current issues. We hope you'll find these . . . taken from the November 1st issue . . . helpful and interesting.

Because of wartime limitations many people are unable to get a copy of Newsweek. We suggest that you share your copy with as many friends as possible.

A well-informed public is America's greatest security

"I see by Newsweek . . .

The mysterious announcement of 98 Jap ship sinkings by U. S. subs is still baffling some observers. The explanation that 'security' caused the delay doesn't ring true in this particular instance, whereas reasons for delay in announcing some U. S. losses are clear. For instance, a ship lost in a Mediterranean day action can be announced quickly because enemy reconnaissance is known to be good. Enemy successes in a Pacific night action are a different matter. The lack of a logical reason for this 'all-at-once' announcement is causing reporters to credit the revelation to Elmer Davis' insistence that Navy news be released while it's still news."

"I see by Newsweek . . .

Predictions of 'famine' for next year are unjustified! Barring a catastrophe of unprecedented proportions, we'll still get plenty of food. Shortages of some foodstuffs, such as butter, will continue. But even these may be relieved by drawing upon Lend-Lease or rehabilitation reserves. No over-all shortage of meat is in prospect. There may be a little less next summer than is now available, but the prospect should cause no panic. That's the considered opinion of Department of Agriculture experts—and they've been pretty accurate so far in their food forecasts."

"I see by Newsweek . . .

No matter why they joined—Waves love the life! This is the conclusion of Vera Clay of Newsweek's Washington Bureau, just returned from a press visit to the Waves at the Atlanta Air Station at Pensacola. Highlights from her report: The average enlisted Wave is 22, brown-eyed, has light brown hair, weighs 117-120 and stand about 5' 4". Waves cannot date officers or cadets on the base but even a Rear Admiral is fair game ashore (in town). And they wish handcrabs (civilians) wouldn't always watch them with the expectation they're going to do something wrong!"

An illustration of the comparative sizes of "Battle Baby" and the regular edition of Newsweek

"Nothing more appreciated by soldiers at the front!"

"Whoever thought of it must be a genius!"

"They are literally read to pieces in a few days!"

"It sort of brings the States a little bit nearer to us . . ."

These excerpts from letters written by men at the fighting fronts will give you an idea of how much servicemen appreciate "Battle Baby"—Newsweek's pocket-size edition for fighting men abroad.

"Battle Baby" brings the news to American soldiers, sailors, and marines all over the world—while it is still news. It is printed on lightweight paper, carries no advertising, and contains virtually every editorial feature of the home edition.

There's still time to send this Christmas gift to your serviceman overseas. All you have to do is send us his name and his A.P.O. or F.P.O., and "Battle Baby" will reach him by Christmas.

Subscriptions are $3.50 per year. Address Newsweek, New York 18, N. Y.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Lovett, Job Abolished, Back on U. S. Payroll

Robert M. Lovett, whose job as secretary of the Virgin Islands was abolished by Congress in July, is back on the Federal payroll as assistant to the Governor of the Virgin Islands. His new assignment is the forerunner of a congressional and legal battle. Congress ordered Lovett, along with William Dodd and Goodwin Watson of Federal Communications Commission, nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate by November 15 or else bounced from their jobs. Interior Secretary Ickes and the FCC have no intention whatever of abiding by the congressional order and instead the trio will sue for their salaries in court. It will be argued that the congressional ban is unconstitutional.

This is how the Justice Department got an unexpected $25 gift toward its Community War Fund: Sam Isseks, one of the department's antitrust lawyers in New York, is to come here soon and argue a case before the Supreme Court. Lawyer Isseks must have been uneasy over his appearance before the highest court for he wrote Solicitor General Charles Fahy:

"If you can arrange it so I won't have to wear striped trousers and a cutaway coat before the court I'll give $25 to any charity you name."

It's customary for Government lawyers to wear the formal getup in appearances before the court, but it isn't necessary. Fahy, an old hand before the court, first believed Isseks was joking, but he wrote him anyway that he had fixed it up with the justices for him to wear a business suit.

But it was no gag to Isseks and he sent his check for $25 to Fahy. The Solicitor General turned the money over to the Community War Fund.

Now that Foreign Economic Administration has absorbed Lend-Lease, Office of Economic Warfare, various RFC and State Department functions, Director Leo T. Crowley has given his administrative people 60 days in which to get the new organization working and the personnel shaken down. And the personnel will be shaken down. That's definite. Office of Economic Warfare already has 400 fewer employes than it had when Crowley took over. The merger of the various organizations will give FEA many overlapping and duplicating functions which Deputy Administrator Henry Riley and S. S. Shepherd, on loan from the Budget Bureau, must work out. However, State has been doing some of the acounting work, and services for OEW and Lend-Lease have been supplied by the Central Administrative Services. FEA will now take over this work and employes in some sections will have to be increased. However, total personnel several months hence is expected to be substantially smaller than it is now.

Navy Department is making its own inquiry into its deferred personnel. Navy Secretary Frank Knox is reported to have ordered it before the Costello Committee recommended a restudy of Navy's deferred employes. The department has roughly half of all deferred employes in Government. However, all draft-eligible Navy employes are on replacement schedules and before the schedules can be placed in effect they must be approved in detail, name by name, by Selective Service officials . . . Representative Kleberg of Texas has introduced a resolution to investigate the accuracy, value and dependability of Government statistics and planning and fact-finding agencies. If the inquiry is voted the Congress will discover that figures can lie.

The office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General will be the next office to be shaken up . . . Everyone was talking about Navy Day yesterday except the Navy itself. Not a word about it was mentioned in the official log . . . The moot question whether fathers in Government will have their inductions postponed can be settled by Congress if the Senate agrees to the House bill to call all nonfathers on a national basis before fathers are touched. However, the bill stands a good chance to be vetoed if it can get by the Senate.

Federal workers living in Virginia will be given time off Tuesday to vote in the local elections being held in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties. The Civil Service Commission will instruct Federal agencies to give their Virginia voters time off to vote without it being charged to annual leave. The War Department has told its employes they will be given voting time off. The authority for its statement is William H. McReynolds, the President's administrative assistant on personnel. Incidentally, a Federal worker is running for the Arlington County Board. He's Al Carretta, an Office of Price Administration lawyer. . . . The War Production Board symphony orchestra will give concerts tomorrow and Saturday night in the Social Security Board autditorium. . . . The Army has just about stopped commissioning people from civilian life. It's reported to have a surplus of 20,000 officers now.

Grapefruit, Oranges Begin To Arrive Here

Oranges and some grapefruits are beginning to arrive in Washington and market reports yesterday indicated an ample supply of bananas. Apples, however, had disappeared, but were expected to be available Monday when a somewhat higher price ceiling will go into effect.

Relief in the citrus fruit situation was forthcoming with the beginning flow of Florida fruit. Arrival of two carloads of Florida oranges and one carload of Florida grapefruits was reported here yesterday by the Department of Agriculture. Another carload of grapefruits came in from Texas and two carloads of oranges from California brought the total supply of citrus fruit at hand yesterday to about 10 carloads.

At the same time, Washingtonians were promised all the bananas they would want in the market report disclosure that seven carloads of the fruit arrived here yesterday, bringing the total supply on hand to a dozen.

OPA Announces Prices

Meanwhile, the District Office of Price Administration yesterday announced "estimated price maximums" on fresh vegetables and fruits for the week, starting today.

Urging customers to file complaints with local Price and Rationings Boards whenever higher prices are charged, the OPA pointed out that "prices must be posted where the commodity is sold."

OPA ceiling for grapes is 16 cents a pound. Oranges vary between 10 and 14 cents a pound for Californias and 7 to 10 cents for Floridas. Depending on size and store, prices per dozen range from 26 to 93 cents.

Lettuce, which appears to be plentiful, is priced 15 cents a pound trimmed, according to OPA, and grapefruit prices will range from 6 to 10 cents a pound.

Apples, which are failing to find their way from the storage houses to the retail shelves because of a newly imposed price ceiling, according to growers and dealers, will be raised in price slightly November 1, under OPA regulations, and are then supposed to sell under a 7½ cents a pound ceiling plus retailers' mark up.

Other fruit and vegetable price ceilings per pound include:

Cabbage, 4 cents; lemons, 10 to 14 cents; onions, 6 to 7 cents; potatoes, 3.6 to 5 cents; spinach, 8 to 13 cents; string beans, 12 to 19 cents, and tomatoes, 12 to 16 cents.

District Approves Parking Lot Lease

District Commissioners yesterday approved lease of the parking lot on Municipal Center grounds at 6th and C sts. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. to Grand Plaza Parking Area, Inc., for an annual fee of $561. The lease will take effect November 1 and will cover 40,500 square feet of ground capable of parking 200 vehicles.

Commissioners also approved two street parking restrictions on Pennsylvania ave. nw. One forbids parking at any time on the north side of the street from the driveway at 923 to 10th st. The other prohibits parking on the south side from 12th to 13th sts. nw. except by taxicabs in stands.

Rodeo Rides on Rims

The "Wild West Rodeo and Thrill Show," currently at Uline's Arena, was ordered by Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday to stop using rubber-tired vehicles in stunt acts, because their use violates the Second War Powers Act.

A representative of the rodeo said later that the management would comply with the order and that the vehicles would perform minus tires—riding on the rims.

The temporary restraining order was obtained by the Office of Defense Transportation and the United States Attorney's office. Respondents are Harry Sunbrock, operator of the show; Michael Uline and Uline Ice, Inc.

Children Confronted With Mud-Laden, 50-Foot-Wide Pool

By Adele Bernstein

Added to overcrowding and three-hour classroom shifts for their studies, the 900 young pupils at Patterson Elementary School, a temporary, one-story structure at Chesapeake st. and Nichols ave. sw., yesterday had nowhere to play—other than their makeshift playground covered with 2½ feet of water.

The 50-foot-wide pool, forming a mud-laden obstruction between the schoolhouse and the unpaved lot on which students customarily gather during recess and after class, formed yesterday morning following the heavy rainfall Tuesday.

Small boys poked sticks tentatively in the muddy water at the noon recess, and one or two ventured into what they thought was a wading pool.

Water Diverted

Informed of the situation yesterday morning, Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock ordered District workmen to the school grounds, where they spent the afternoon building a ditch to divert the water into Nichols st.

The situation is bound to recur with every heavy downpour, Haycock declared yesterday, since the school was built without downspouts or underground sewers to carry off rain falling on its roof. In their absence, the other alternative would be to grade the playground and alley way leading into Nichols st., so that water would naturally run off the grounds, he said.

He foresaw little likelihood of this happening, however, since the District Commissioners claim they lack funds to improve the grounds adjoining the school.

Meanwhile, a citizens' committee representing 572 parents of pupils attending the school has petitioned the Commissioners for improved facilities and larger quarters to house the students.

No Money

To this, Brig. Gen. C. W. Kutz, Engineer Commissioner, yesterday again claimed lack of money for the project.

In addition, he pointed out, proximity of the school property to Bolling Field has brought warnings from the Army that injury to the school building or children may result during plane take-offs.

Arrangements have been made by the Commissioners to acquire a new site on South Capitol st. and Darrington place sw. on which to replace the present Patterson School with a longer, permanent structure. Congress will be asked for funds for the building.

Meanwhile, the citizens' group, headed by Joseph Bockovoc, and represented by the Rev. George J. Cannon, pastor of the Washington Highlands Baptist Church, indicated that it plans to bring to public attention what it called a "scandalous situation" involving use of District funds in behalf of a private citizen.

House School Property

The situation, it is claimed, involves the building of a "dike" or embankment and fence between the school playground and a house and grounds immediately adjoining. The house, it was pointed out, is actually part of the school property and should have been torn down to allow better play space for the pupils.

Instead, the District authorized building of the "dike" to "keep children off the grounds rented to a private citizen," according to the citizens' statenment.

'Hatchet' Now Tabloid

The George Washington University Hatchet, judged the best all-around college paper in the Middle Atlantic area last spring, has been reduced to tabloid size, beginning with this week's issue, due to the newsprint shortage.

Lack of local and national advertising was also blamed in a front-page announcement which added: "We expect to put out a good tabloid. Although the body is changed, the spirit of The Hatchet remains."

Curran Studies Court Action On Gallinger

By Joseph Paull

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran declared yesterday that his office has just completed a six-week investigation into charges of maladministration and irregularities at Gallinger Hospital and promised he will make a decision on the advisability of court action as soon as he examines the transcript of the Senate District subcommittee investigation.

Visited by FWA Agent

Meanwhile, three Federal Works Administration officials visited the hospital for a preliminary investigation pending a proposal by District Commissioners for Lanham Act funds to improve the laundry and kitchen there. No action will be taken by FWA until architect's drawings and cost estimates are completed, according to Henry J. Sullivan, assistant FWA regional director in charge of this area.

Although the Senate group had reported necessity of administrative action to remove five officials connected with Gallinger, no recommendation was made as to criminal action. It was this aspect that Curran's office was investigating.

50 Witnesses Examined

More than 50 witnesses have been examined by the investigators of the U. S. Attorney's office, which had sent daily reports to the Senate committee.

A conference was to be called of Curran and his chief assistants today or tomorrow to decide whether it would be in the public interest to present the case to the grand jury. There also is the possibility that the grand jury might make a report on the general situation, but not indicting any particular person, and misdemeanor charges also might be pressed.

Mrs. Irene Brown Found Dead of Gunshot Wounds

Mrs. Irene C. Brown, 42, wife of Comdr. Pearson B. Brown, attached to Admiral King's staff, was found dead from shotgun wounds in the attic of her home, at 4325 8th st. nw., by her mother, shortly before noon yesterday.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

Her only brother, Leo Collier of West Haven, Md., said Mrs. Brown had suffered from melancholia and had been under a physician's care. The Browns were married in February, 1925, in St. Gabriel's Church and had no children.

Mrs. Brown was born in Mount Carmel, Pa., and is survived by her husband, her mother, Mrs. Catherine Collier, her brother and a sister, Mrs. Robert L. Owen.

The body is at Collins funeral home, 3821 14th st. nw.

Postal Clerks Ask End of Substitute Classification

Calling the Post Office Department's substitute service practices "antiquated, vicious, and thoroughly unsound from every standpoint," the executive board of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks yesterday urged complete abolishment of "substitute employment in the Postal Service."

The executive board asked passage of H. R. 2715, pending presently before the House Post Office Committee, which would assure substitutes a definite yearly salary, promotion to the next higher grade after one year's service, credit for time served as a substitute, promotion to the regular position after three year's service, and 15 days' vacation and 10 days' sick leave.

Police Feel Mergner Case Is Airtight

Detectives last night revealed they were "ready to try" Frederick C. Mergner, 45-year-old bakery fortune heir, in the brutal slaying of Mrs. Charlotte Robinson, 30, German-born stenographer for the Recreation Services, Inc.

Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide squad, said "we have a pretty substantial case" against Mergner and added that there probably will be no further attempt to question the suspect at the District Jail.

Police activity in the case yesterday included the obtaining of statements from several persons, corroborating evidence already in hand; ballistic tests of two bullets taken from the dead woman's head and comparison with bullets fired from a .32-caliber revolver taken from Mergner; laboratory tests of blood specimens removed from the seat cushions of his expensive sedan.

Inquest Date Not Fixed

No date had been set for an inquest last night.

In the meantime, the victim's body remained unclaimed at the District Morgue. Word of the tragedy was sent to Joseph Green at Chicago by police. He, it was said, is either a business associate or a friend of the dead woman. His name was obtained from the FBI as the person to notify in the event Mrs. Robinson needed assistance.

Mrs. Robinson's husband, whom she married and divorced twice, was Brown Wiley Robinson, now serving a 10-year term in Leavenworth Prison for jewel robbery. She divorced him the second time in Washington in January of this year.

Parents in Berlin

Her mother and father, both German citizens, are reported to be in Berlin. Her father is an officer in the Nazi army, it was said.

Officials said that if the body remains unclaimed, funeral expenses up to $300 will be deducted from some $900 she had deposited in savings bank.

Mergner, who told police he shot the woman at Fourth and A sts. ne., Monday night when she refused to continue living with him, remained at the District Jail. He was committed to the institution without bail by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage Monday.

Victory Sidelights

2 Appointed To Defense Center Jobs

Appointment of two Civilian Defense control center clerks was ordered by District Commissioners yesterday to serve regularly at communications centers at salaries of $1440 a year. They were Raymond B. Carroll and Charles W. Fox.

These are the first of six clerks to be appointed since reestablishment of the positions nearly a month ago by the Commissioners upon recommendation of H. C. Whitehurst, director of Civilian Defense.

The positions were terminated in May when it was thought insufficient work was being done to justify expenditure of funds and that one clerk could perform such duties in all centers.

However, Whitehurst said since that time it has become evident that the deputy controllers, who are all District officials and volunteer workers, do not have time to attend to many details.

Officer to Speak

Lieut. Col. G. R. Montford, assistant director of ordnance service, British army staff, will address the annual banquet of Calvary Methodist Men's Class tonight at 7 o'clock in the guild hall, 1459 Columbia rd. nw. W. Elwood Baker, class president, will preside.

Jewish Party Postponed

A party for officers of the Junior Council of Jewish Women, originally scheduled for October 30, has been postponed until Saturday, November 6. The affair will be held in the club's studio in the Hotel Fairfax at 9 in the evening of November 6.

To Sponsor Submarine

Mrs. Emory S. Land, wife of the chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, will sponsor a submarine to be launched October 31 at Groton, Conn., at the plant of the Electric Boat Co. Mrs. Land will christen the U. S. S. Sealion. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Land live at 2500 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Reward for Poster

A $25 war savings bond will be awarded the designer of the best poster depicting the activities of the American Women's Voluntary Services submitted before December 1. The contest is sponsored by the District unit of the AWVS.

The judges are AWVS District Unit Presidents Anita Phipps, Mrs. Robert Lovett, Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Ben Lamb.

Church Luncheon Talk

Mrs. Douglas Dillon, 2431 Kalorama rd. nw., has been designated by the Secretary of the Navy to sponsor the USS Walke, which is scheduled to be launched at Bath, Me., on Monday. ## Second Concert Increases Prestige of Music Guild

By Ray C. B. Brown

Chamber Music Guild presents its String Quartet (Mishel Piastro, Harold Kohon Felix Frost and Marcel Ancher) on Wednesday night in Memorial Continental Hall. Assisting artists: Shirley Effenbach, piano; Emma Otero, soprano (Allison Sanderford, accompanist). Program: Intermezzo for String Quartet, Op. 17 (Daniel Gregory Mason). Piano Sonata No. 3 (Prokofiev). "C'est fait" for soprano and string quartet (Jean Berger). Songs by Jomelli, Rosa, Granados, Obradors and Chapi; Piano Quintet (Borodin).

With four novelties on the program, the Chamber Music Guild presented its second concert of the season last evening in Memorial Continental Hall. As each of the unfamiliar compositions was given a first local performance, the organization increased by that much its prestige with those auditors who enjoy exploration of musical literature. An American composer, Daniel Gregory Mason, headed the list with his Intermezzo for string quartet, an early work which nevertheless discloses his intellectual approach to music. It has geniality to a marked degree, a distinct vein of humor and an imaginative quality — characteristics that combine to make it an interesting conversation piece.

Prokofiev's third piano sonata, actually a sonata movement of extreme compression, was capably played by Shirley Effenbach, the youngest of three talented sisters in whom Washingtonians may well take pride. The sonata exemplifies two of Prokofiev's prominent traits, his deliberate barbarism and his lyric facilitiy. It starts out with a frenetic dissonance and a savage energy that excite a purely emotional response until the plan of the work catches the attention. The structure is compact and well proportioned, with a central section of pleasant singing effect.

Miss Effenbach also participated in the performance of Borodin's piano quintet, a work so little known that it is not even mentioned in two reputable encyclopedias of music. In three movements—an andante, a scherzo and a finale—it has the same melodic attractiveness as his two string quartets. In a certain indefinable way it reminds one of the ingenuous spontaneity of Dvorak, though it lacks his skill in construction, Borodin was an amateur of genius with small regard for fame.

The program originally prepared was disarranged by the illness of Eileen Farrell, who was to have sung Jean Berger's "Quatre Chants d'Amour" for soprano and string quartet. Emma Otero, well known here for her flexible and pleasing voice, came to the rescue, and on short notice rehearsed one of the songs, "C'est fait," a delightfully atmospheric allusion to the French trouvere style, graciously harmonized and slightly archaic in the melodic line.

Senorita Otero filled in the space allotted to Miss Farrell with two groups of songs including Jomelli's "La Calandrina," Rosa's "Star' vicino," Granados' "El Tra-la-la," Obradors' "Chiquilla" and Penella's "Cancion de los Pajaritos." Her expertise in fioritura and her engaging tone won her so many recalls that she added Delibes' "Les Filles de Cadix."

SE Citizens Protest New Housing Plan

Southeast citizens yesterday visited Commission John Russell Young to protest construction of low cost houses in Congress Heights as proposed by the National Capital Housing Authority.

Led by J. L. Gelbman, Congress Heights Citizens Association president, residents of the area and of Anacostia, Hillcrest, Summit Park, Washington Highlands and other adjacent areas said the construction would depreciate their properties, the District would lose in taxes and other problems would arise.

It was said that 300 houses are projected for public construction and 148 by private enterprise in a 30 acre piece of land between 13th st., Camp Simms, Alabama ave. and north of Congress st. The delegation said NCHA already has suitable land for the projects in neighboring territory.

Citizens also plan to petition NCHA to change plans, it was said.

Objection also was raised to proposed construction near the overcrowded Stanton School. It was said these grounds are needed for expansion of school facilities due to increased population in the area.

Commissioners Grant Promotions To Four Firemen

Three temporary promotions for firemen and one change from a temporary to a permanent position as captain, effective October 31, were approved yesterday by District Commissioners.

Capt. John T. Sharp was named captain in place of Oscar R. Anderson, retired, instead of temporary captain replacing Leo B. Wilson now in the military service.

Temporary appointtes were Lieut. Alexander Whiteman, promoted to a captaincy at $3000 a year, replacing Wilson; Sergt. Walter Watt promoted to be a lieutenant at $2840 a year; Joseph A. Carter, jr., promoted to be a sergeant at $2600 a year in the position left vacant by Watt.

Memorial Marks CU Bond Rally

Catholic University's war bond drive to raise $75,000 for a fighter plane was highlighted yesterday with a rally of students and faculty in memory of alumni who have lost their lives in action on the battlefronts.

United States District Attorney Edward B. Curran, an alumnus of the University, addressed the meeting, warning that while "our armed forces . . . daily face a rendezvous with death, we on the home front face a rendezvous with our consciences."

Total traffic deaths in 1942 . 108

Matthew Byrnes, 72, of 4923 N. Capitol st., died yesterday of injuries suffered early Sunday when he was struck at New Hampshire ave. and Gallatin st. nw., by a Capital Transit bus, operated by Lawrence Collitt, 3003 Longfellow st., Queen Chapel Manor, Md.

Mr. Byrnes was removed to Emergency Hospital at the time of the accident, but was later transferred to Gallinger. Collitt, who has had 5 years driving experience, was released in the custody of the Capital Transit Co., to appear before a coroner's jury.

Mrs. Bessie Parks, 48, of 423 23rd pl. ne., was admitted to Casualty Hospital yesterday suffering from head and back injuries received when the car in which she was a passenger collided with another car at F and 8th sts. ne. The car in which she was riding was operated by her husband, Earl A. Parks, 43, of the 23rd st. address. Police said, the operator of the other car was Leon C. Holmes, 28, of 643 Callan st. ne.

Mrs. Katherine Sayers, 39, of 1525 16th st. nw., was treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for minor injuries received when the streetcar in which she was a passenger collided with a truck at 14th and N sts. nw. Police said the operator of the car was Mary F. Clark, 22, of 2262 Hall pl. nw.

Missionaries Plan Return to Posts

Christian missionaries, despite hardships arising from the war, are determined to return ot their posts when peace comes, Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer said last night at Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3146 16th st. nw.

Dr. Diffendorfer, executive secretary of the foreign missions division of the Methodist Mission Board, addressed laymen and clergy from 200 Methodist churches in Maryland and the District, attending the annual fall rally of the Methodist Union.

Retreat for Women Starts Tomorrow

A retreat for women will be held at the Washington Retreat House, Harewood rd., Brookland, tomorrow through Sunday, concluding with a Holy Hour. The 40 hours devotion will be held.

The retreat conference will be conducted by the Rev. Raphael M. Huber, O. F. M. C., D. D., professor of church history, Catholic University. Men will be admitted to the retreat Sunday.

Five More Bitten, 41 Dogs Seized

Five more persons were reported bitten by dogs, and a year-and-a-half old girl was either bitten or scratched by a pet yesterday as Frank Marks, poundmaster, reported that 41 additional dogs had been brought to the already overcrowded pound.

The baby was Susan R. Hoppock of 4924 Albemarle st. nw., who was injured by the family's black cocker Spaniel while playing in the living room.

Muriel Kennedy, 4, of 327 13th st. se., was bitten on her lip by a stray dog in the 2200 block Channing pl. se. She was treated at Casualty Hospital. Marguerite Walker, 20, of 660 Morton pl. ne., was bitten on her left thumb by a stray dog in the rear of her home. She was removed to Providence Hospital and later sent home.

Phillip Harrison, Negro, 7, of 1000 4th st. se., received dog bites on one leg while on his way home from school and was treated at Providence Hospital, and Grace Allison, Negro, 53, of 1217 Walter Place se., was treated at Casualty Hospital for dog bites to the right arm and left thumb, received while she was passing through an alley in the rear of her home.

Girl, 4, Bitten

Frances Callahan, 4, of 4521 Harling lane, Bethesda, was bitten on her hand by a neighbor's dog near her home. The animal was taken to Maryland University for examination.

Dr. James G. Cumming, Chief of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, meanwhile summarized the common symptoms of rabies briefly. He said there are two forms of the disease, the dumb form and the maniacal form.

If a dog contracts the dumb form it will try to drink water but will be unable to, its hind legs will become paralyzed, its jaws will drop and it will drool.

Eight Since Sunday

If a dog contracts the maniacal form, it will show signs of nervousness, will listen to imaginary noises, and will begin chewing on rags and furniture, finally turning to biting.

Dr. Cumming said eight dogs have been brought in since the black and white pointer, shot by the police Sunday, was proved rabid. Of this number, two were reported by their owners yesterday, who asked that the dogs be destroyed.

Dr. Cumming also said rabies can develop in a dog anywhere from three weeks to three months from the time the dog is infected.

Maritime Post Of Legion to Seat Officers Nov. 17

Officers of the newly chartered United States Maritime Post, No. 47, American Legion, will be installed Wednesday, November 17, in the Auditorium of the Department of Commerce Building. The United States Navy Orchestra will play and District Department Commander C. Francis McCarthy and his staff, including a uniformed guard of honor, will install the officers.

GILBERT

Cabinet officers and high-ranking officials of the Army, Navy and shipping interest, are expected to attend the ceremonies, which will begin at 8 o'clock.

The prime mover in organizing the post was B. Eugene Gilbert, contract analyist of the Maritime Commission, who was chosen commander at the election last Wednesday. Other officers are Gordon W. Stuart, first vice commander; Alvis C. Waller, second vice commander; William T. Riley, third vice commander; Joseph F. Barnes, finance officer; Paul D. Page, jr., judge advocate; Walter E. Daniels, chaplain; Clinton D. Winant, brother of Ambassador Winant, historian; Paul J. Hughey, sergeant at arms, and Walter R. Rowe, second sergeant at arms.

City News In Brief

Members of the Sunshine and Community Society of the District will gather for their November meeting at 2400 16th. st. at 1:30 p. m., Monday. Mrs. Ross G. Snyder, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, will report on the plans for the annual card party, proceeds of which will be used for the society's charitable activities. The entertainment will consist of a program of readings under the title of "Think of These Things," by Mrs. Sheldon Tyler.

Boys' Leader Resigns

Oscar I. Bergstrom, associate Boys' Work secretary, of the Y. M. C. A., has resigned his position to accept the associate general secretaryship of the Cumberland, Md., Y. M. C. A. Bergstrom came to Washington in February of 1940 from Gloucester, Mass., where he was a boys' work secretary. His successor is expected to be named in the near future, Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., announced.

Church Luncheon Talk

William M. Brewer, professor of economics, Miner Teachers' College, will address the Churchmen's Club today at 12 p. m. at the Twelfth Street Branch, YMCA, on "Freedom From Want."

Halloween Fun in District To Be Spread Over Weekend

Halloween falls on Sunday, so the goblins will have more time to operate, as celebrations will be spread over the weekend.

The Boys Club of Washington is doing its part to mitigate "mischief" activities by holding one of its several parties tonight. At the Eastern Branch rooms, 17th st. and Massachusetts ave. se., which have been elaborately decorated, boys and girls from 10 to 12 will be entertained tonight beginning at 7:30.

The club is featuring four Hallowe'en parties. For the Midgets, 6 to 10, entertainment will start in the auditorium at 6:30 Saturday night. The Juniors, 11 to 13, will have their fun in the gymnasium on the same night and at the same hour. Intermediates and Seniors, 14 or more, will have their party tomorrow night from 9 to 11, and the Midget coeds, 10 to 12, will be joined by boys of the same age for their entertainment tonight, stating at 7:30, in the Coed Club room.

Saturday, boys living in the central area of the city will be given a party at 2:30 p. m. at the Central Branch, 230 C st. nw. In addition to a costume parade and appropriate games and contests, Marlow, the magician, will be present, a Punch and Judy show will be given, and several song and dance numbers are on the program.

The Georgetown Branch Club will join in the community party to be held in that section.

The Iowa State Society will have a Halloween dance Saturday night at the Shoreham. Senators and Representatives will be in the receiving line to assist Representative Ben F. Jensen, president.

Preparations are being made by the Naylor Gardens Citizens Association to entertain between 200 and 300 children at a Halloween party Saturday night. Programs in three buildings at the gardens have been arranged. A Halloween parade in costume will precede the entertainment, which will start at 7 p. m.

IT'S SCHOOLGIRL STUFF . . .

By Ruth Gregory

A bright plaid skirt, the brighter the better, is at the top of all schoolgirl wardrobe lists—from grade school through college. We found some beauties, all-wool, which range from around $6 to $11. This particular store has a large stock of them in many different styles, box-pleated all the way around (like the one sketched), kick-pleated, knife-pleated, etc. And they come in wonderful plaids from genuine Scotch plaids to the very new winter white ones.

If She's a Career Girl:

Here's one blouse that shouldn't make you ask yourself: will she like it? If she's a working girl she will, because it's one of those basic blouses that will change its look according to the way it's dressed. A perfect jewelry blouse, utterly simple, it gains its distinction via the tiny upstanding neckline. Black only and made of 100 per cent wool jersey. It's available in misses sizes for under $8.

If She's a Housewife

Why not give her a pretty, warm robe and slippers like these sketched? The robe is made out of floral-patterned rayon crepe and is cotton-quilted. And very charming with its flower designs splashed against different colored backgrounds (black, red, white or blue), and a contrasting rayon lining. (Incidentally, it's reversible). Under $13, sizes, 12-20.

We found some wonderfully warm slippers made out of brushed felt wit ha little cuff that rides up like a galosh or can be tucked down. Comes in French blue, tearose, or camel, in a complete size range. About $4.

If She's a Large Woman:

Why not look around for some nice lingerie? That's a gift she'll welcome. Here's a rayon crepe gown, daintily ornamented with floral sprays. It's under $4 and is available in sizes 42-50. The satin-finish slip, seam-proof, is a good fitting one by virtue of the gored skirt. It comes in sizes 46 to 52 and is under $3.

And what about stockings, gloves, scarves? You can't go wrong if you'll stick to the things every woman needs.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

I am unalterably opposed to taking small babies into public places. One cannot control the persons with whom one comes in contact or keep them from the baby even though suffering mild colds or sore throats.

One spares the small baby by keeping him safely at home where one can be on guard. This is hard on parents who want to go to church—or the movies—but baby must be protected even at the expense of their pleasures.

Mrs. J. B. did not ask my opinion of going out in public, but that was implied in her real question which was to ask for a formula for a substitute bottle.

"I don't like to nurse him in public," she writes, "and would like to have you tell me what I could use for a substitute feeding.

"My sister thinks I am cruel to put the baby to bed and turn off the light. I insist that he sleep in the dark."

Wait a few more months before you take the baby to public places. It is such a short time in your life and his good foundational health habits are so vitally important to him.

If you want to leave him in charge of a relative or friend some day, this formula would be suitable to a 3-month-old baby weighing 12 pounds: Two and one-half ounces of evaporated milk, 5 of boiled water and 3 level teaspoons of corn sirup.

It is your sister who is afraid of the dark, not the baby. Darkness offers no dangers to the child.

If the baby were restless a light in the room might attract his attention. Because he would stare at it he would grow weary and fall asleep. Otherwise, the dark is more soothing than the light. Children of this age are mercifully free of all fears except those foolish ones engendered by fearful persons like your sister.

A Wondering Mother: Yes, it is quite possible to become pregnant even though you are still nursing your baby.

Our leaflet, "Sweet Milk Formulas," contains information on both complementary and relief bottles. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Glove Washing Is Easy

Light cotton gloves are a cinch to wash by dunking them in warm water and plenty of suds. Wear and tear on both the laundress and gloves can be saved by soaking in sudsy water before beginning the actual washing operation when colors are fast. Cotton gloves needn't be washed on the hands, incidentally. If the gloves are dark-colored, don't soak them and wash as fast as possible. Rinse thoroughly and press out as much water as possible before hanging to dry.

Unused Soal

Don't throw out small bits of unused soap. Make them into a soap jelly with boiling water. Westinghouse home economists say soap jelly is splendid for washing stockings, gloves, lingerie and other finery.

Secret Witness

Disguised as a Capitol scrubwoman, Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer, was halted by several newspaper sleuths yesterday as she was about to enter a room where a Senate hearing was rumored to be in progress. At first, Mrs. DeGoofey stoutly denied her identity, but under persistent questioning finally confessed she was to appear before the Senate Committee for Public Meddling.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"This hearing," explained the reformer, "is closed, secret and executive. The committee is considering a colossal stroke of war strategy against the Japs, so please don't say anything about it."

"What is the stroke?" asked a London correspondent.

"I would not think of telling you!" replied Mrs. DeGoofey. "The Senate does not want your country to find out for fear you will try to get Lord Mountbatten in on this to steal the glory."

By this time a large company of newshounds had gathered and were pressing Mrs. DeGoofey for "background information." Finally mounting her scrub pail, she announced she would give an off the record "picture of the situation."

To Bribe Savages With Pink Panties

"This is entirely secret, confidential and private," she warned. "Now is everybody here? Can everybody hear me? . . . Now please don't breathe a word of this or there would be international repercussions. However, as you may know, the War Labor Board has started a campaign for 50 million discarded garments. Now it is planned—and remember not a word of this to anyone—to send these garments to the natives of the South Pacific to bribe them to revolt and annihilate Japan. I have been asked to make a list of the garments and articles that American women could best give away in this national scrap heap.

"First on my list are all girdles with nonelastic supporters. I am suggesting that these be sent to the head hunting tribes who wouldn't care if these girdles rode up and ruined their figures, and who have no stockings to hold up anyway.

"My second suggestion is that all pink rayon panties that have shrunk after their first washing until they are midget size be sent to the pigmy tribes, if there are any of these in the South Pacific and if not, to those in Africa.

"All spike heeled shoes I would send to the Bali women as a safety first measure to protect American men from their charm. Once on these heels, the women of Bali would begin tottering around and we would have no more ravings about their grace and posture.

Peek-a-Boo Blouses For Tahiti Belles

"All rayon hose that develop strange colors with pink and purplish casts after they are washed would be sent to any tribe that would accept them. All the little hand knitted or crocheted shawls, fascinators, etc., should be sent posthaste to the tribes in the Aleutian Islands. I would also include in the old clothes for natives collection, the following: All remaining hats composed of a flower and a veil; and remaining kiltie hats worn by adults, all 'pencil slim' skirts that are too tight over the derriere; all so-called simple little basic dresses adorned with jet, nailheads, sequins etc.; all garments of any kind with fringe on them; all organdy blouses with set-in medallions and lace (these for the women of Tahiti); all large frilly white collars designed to "liven up" last year's dress; all tall quills and waving feathers on women's hats; all junk costume jewelry, all fussy short evening dresses that are advertised as being suitable to wear on anywhere from the office.

"This is only a start on my list but you see the possibilities. My whole philosophy back of this thing is that up to this time we have always in our contact with so-called savage tribes endowed them with all of our vices, and to be logical I think we should dress them up in our worst clothes——"

At this point the door opened to a crack and Mrs. DeGoofey was beckoned inside.

"The committee is waiting for me," she explained. "Now remember this is all entirely confidential and off the record! Anyone wishing a transcript of my remarks may obtain a mimeographed copy at my office."

Navy Day Is Marked By Brilliant Dinner

Eric Johnston Is Speaker at Significant Event; High Ranking Officers Attend

With "Anchors Aweigh" pitching the tune, the Navy Club dinner got under way at the Mayflower last night.

Navy "blues" bright with gold braid were predominant, naturally enough, in the gathering of more than 700, and the more elaborate uniforms of foreign attaches sprinkled throughout and lovely ladies in gay gowns contributed pictorially to the scene.

The fete, an annual event, is sponsored by the District of Columbia Council of the Navy League of the United States and also marks the birthday anniversary of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who did much to put the United States Navy "on the map."

Practically everybody at the event last night entertained or was entertained at a cocktail party earlier in the evening.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the speaker of the evening, was guest of honor at cocktails at which Bennett Crain, president of the District of Columbia Council of the Navy League, and Mrs. Crain were hosts.

Gen. George Marshall Among the Guests

Welcoming the guests with Mr. and Mrs. Crain were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ferdinand Reichmuth, Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of Staff, and Mrs. Marshall, were among the 300 guests, and others were Admiral and Mrs. William H. Standley, Vice Admiral Russell Waesche, and Mrs. Waesche; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Alexander Van Keuren, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Harry A. Stuart.

Envoys of all the United Nations and their wives took part in the celebration and were guests at the Crains' party beforehand. Then there were Rear Admiral Joseph Redman, Rear Admiral H. L. Vickery, Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, Capt. R. R. Workman, Capt A. Loring Swasey, Vice Admiral Raymon Fenard, chief of the French Naval Mission, Sergio Osmena, Vice President of the Philippines, and a number of committee members of the Navy League and a generous representation from resident society.

Lieut. George Abell, USNR and Lieut. Luther Bolton, USNR, were joint hosts at cocktails at the Mayflower, taking their guests later to the dinner. Among those in this group were Admiral Arthur Davis, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter Anderson, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mrs. Edward Treglown, Mrs. Harold Hinton, and Lieut. John Orr.

Samuel E. M. Crocker, national vice president of the United States Navy League, and Mrs. Crocker entertained guests at this brilliant fete.

Iran Envoy Marks King's Birthday

By Marie McNair

The war seemed very remote for a brief span of time yesterday if you happened to look in at the Legation of Iran.

There was a reception going on—a very gay and happy fete—to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Iran's youthful King, Moahhamed Reza Pahlavi.

There was champagne being dispensed at the bar; there was a lavish buffet covering the long table in the dining room, bringing back prewar days with its mounds of salads, sandwiches, canapes, baked ham and fish mold. And there was ice cream—great bowls of it, and tiny cakes, tea and coffee. Truly, happy days seemed to be here again.

The Minister and Mme. Schayesteh had invited all the chiefs of mission of the Diplomatic Corps and practically all of them turned up, from the dean of the corps, Don Manuel de Freyre, down to the new Minister of Afghanistan, Abdol Hosayn Aziz.

The Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun were there; so, too were the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels, Sir Ronald Campbell, Charge d'Affaires of Great Britain; the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Concheso, the Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. Loudon, the Greek Envoy and Mme. Diamantopoulos, and the Portuguese Minister and Mme. Bianchi, with the latter's daughter, Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, now officially an American citizen.

"I'm so happy," said Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, "I've got my husband back from England." And she hurried off to be home when he came back from his office desk at the State Department. Mrs. Patrick Hurley was also there, and others were Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Senator Joseph Guffey and Miss Pauletta Guffey, Represenattive Sol Bloom and his daughter, Vera.

About Washington . . .

INDEPENDENCE celebrations in party form are as much a part of the Capital scene as the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial. But something different in that line will accent the calendar this morning when a solemn service in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the independence of the Czechoslovak Republic.

Envoy Hurban

The Ambassador of Czechoslovakia, Vladimir Hurban, who courageously refused to turn his country's residence over to the German Embassy here when Nazi hordes seized control of Czechoslovakia, has issued invitations to the ceremony. The Right Rev. George W. Davenport will officiate, and guests will include members of the Diplomatic Corps, Capital officialdom and a number of Washingtonians who have long been friends of the Czechoslovak Minister and his American-born wife.

"Old" Washington will recall, of course, that Envoy Hurban was serving as military adviser to the great Slovak statesman, Masaryk, when the latter was here to obtain aid in 1918. It was here that the government of the new republic was planned and the independence was proclaimed. Shortly afterward, Mr. Masaryk sailed homeward to take over the helm.

Because the Czechoslovak Embassy is undergoing repair, there will be no reception after the service. The Ambassador and Mme. Hurban will leave a few hours later for New York, where they will attend the Czechoslovak anniversary concert at Carnegie Hall tonight. The program will feature the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and two famous Czechoslovak musicians—Jarmila Novotna, Metropolitan soprano, who formerly was a member of the National Theater in Prague; and Rudolf Firkusny, pianist.

REPRESENTATIVE Clare Boothe Luce faces facts as frankly as anybody I know—man or woman. "My bill, of course, already has three strikes against it," she said yesterday, referring to the bill she recently introduced to create an Army-Navy manpower pool of deferred men not now employed in industry.

"The three strikes?" she went on. "Well (1) I'm a woman; (2) I'm a freshman in Congress, and (3) I'm a Republican."

The bill, incidentally, would not only make further drafting of fathers unnecessary but it would also release countless men "of combat caliber" from the home front and at the same time prevent a wholesale labor draft. Then, too, it would provide that men called to work would "stay put" in their jobs; and would get Army rank (though no uniforms), Army pay and dependency allotments. It makes sense, and I wonder why somebody hasn't thought of it before. Furthermore, as Mrs. Luce expressed it, "It's the first bill introduced in ages that wouldn't require an extra appropriation; that, in other words, would put money into the pocket . . . rather than taking it out. I hope it passes . . . and, incidentally, I'd like to see it get through Congress still bearing the name of the woman who introduced it. That would be something.

YOU CAN'T put anything over on Washington saleswomen . . . not even when it's on the level. Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, whose husband is a nephew of the famous general, found that out the other day when she tried to give a telephone order to a local store.

"What's the name?" she was asked.

"Mrs. MacArthur."

"There are a lot of MacArthurs around here. Just which one are you?"

"Mrs. Douglas MacArthur."

There was a pause, and then, with a rising inflection the voice came over the wire, "Oh, yeah? Well, you can just go peddle you papers!"

Surprised, and no end disturbed, Mrs. MacArthur at that point gave up trying. She went to the store, made her purchase, and carried home the package. No more telephone orders from her.

ROBERT SHERWOOD did a mighty good evening's work for OWI on Tuesday when he spoke before the dinner meeting of the Women's National Press Club. His story on purpose, plan and line of action followed by OWI went over with a bang. Even Senator Brewster, who was among the guests and whose criticism of the way Mr. Sherwood's outfit handles affairs in the foreign field has been none too gentle, liked the talk.

Admitting that the organization has made mistakes, many of them in fact, the speaker went on to point out—off-the-record—some of ways in which OWI is materially aiding the war effort. "When I was a playwright, some critics accused me of getting too much propaganda into my plays," he said. "Now that I'm a propagandist, everybody seems to remember what a good playwright I was."

In the open forum that followed the speech, Mr. Sherwood was asked if he thought there would be many antiwar plays on Broadway after the current conflict is over. "I don't know," answered the author of "Idiot's Delight," the war drama that is a highly trenchant plea for peace. "I only know I won't write any. The ones I've done along that line have always been read in countries where they weren't needed. Germany and Japan, apparently, never heard of them."

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Rearing Four Children in Idyllic Marriage, Couple's Happiness Is Marred by Husband's Recent Drinking, Which He Laughs About, as Wife Worries

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: First, a short sketch of our background. We've been married 27 years and are the parents of four children, three boys and a girl, ranging in ages from 16 to 25. The three boys are now in the service, and the girl is a senior at high school, still at home. All four children have been outstanding in church, school and Scout work. Our early years of marriage were "lean" ones, bordering on poverty at times. But now, our income is $6000 a year, adequate in any community and bordering on wealth in the small town where we live.

My husband,—well educated, highly intelligent, attractive, likable,—is an official in a national organization, in which he began at the bottom, over 20 years ago. We are very congenial and he has always been most complimentary of my abilities in the role of wife and mother. Our children are devoted to both of us, and we are considered an ideally happy family. We are,—except for my husband's arguments with me over his drinking. He admits he hasn't a worry in the world; and says he drinks to celebrate his good fortune. Lately, he has been losing heavily in poker games, played at one or the other of three clubs to which he belongs; and drinking while on the job.

He laughs at my suggestion that he consult a psychiatrist; but I have become so nervous, worrying about his drinking, that I feel the need of a psychiatrist myself. Although formerly quite active in community affairs, I have worried so much about this problem that I have lost interest in outside activities. I have too much pride to discuss this worry with friends. And his relatives (of whom I am very fond) would be very much disturbed if they knew this condition existed,—as they are conservative, highly respectable people. I feel, too, that the boys should be spared any distress about home conditions. Their father, however, doesn't seem particularly concerned when his daughter sees him under the influence of liquor. He is always willing to promise to do better, but he never does! We love each other very much and see eye to eye in every other way. We are both ardent readers of your column, and he has "dared" me to write and ask your advice. W. L. S.

Barleycorn Has Him Hanging on the Ropes

DEAR W. L. S.: One gets the impression that your husband's drink problem is of comparatively recent origin,—at least, in its present form of steady (tending to heavy) tippling. Your story of an extraordinarily happy and successful family life for 20-odd years justifies that assumption. And so does the fact that neither his off-to-war sons nor his "relatives" know the existing conditions. Therefore, the incisive question is: Why is liquor getting the best of him now? (And since he "dared" you to ask my opinion on the subject, let me say to him, over your shoulder: Drink IS threatening to throw you, my friend; and it avails you nothing to try to laugh off the fact.)

When a man's memories of, or reactions to, the last drink he took irresistibly impel him to have another, and the sooner the better,—which is the conditioned reflex that starts a man "drinking on the job,"—he is already hanging on the ropes in his bout with John Barleycorn; and it is nip-and-tuck thereafter as to which of the two is finally going down to the count of ten. Now, as to why your husband drinks,—which is what he first must know, if he is to get the upper hand of his encroaching alcoholism,—it is possible he gives a clew to the truth when he says "he drinks to celebrate his good fortune." It has been said that any fool can stand adversity (he has no choice); but it takes a real man to stand up under prosperity, with its myriad temptations to easily financed self-indulgence. And as a brilliant man of stupendous wealth,—a lifelong student of practical psychology,—once remarked in my hearing: "When times are hard and the going is tough and uncertain, as in the 1929 depression cycle, daring and optimism are the best rules for success. When the going is easy, when prosperity is in the bag, that's the time to watch your step."

What's He Afraid Of? Prospect of Old Age?

About that "drinking to celebrate success,"—scholarly analysts of the drinker mentality are familiar with that explanation, and equally familiar with its hidden connotation, its real meaning. In that high-tension "celebrating," fear or its equivalent is involved. Fear of what?—in your husband's case. He says he "hasn't a worry in the world." Is it fear that his hard-won prosperity won't last? Or fear of another kind,—fear that it's almost too late now, at his age, to get the kick out of life he had set as his reward, when he "got in the money?" Is he drinking to get away, in a rosy alcoholic haze, from the fact that he is fiftyish and per se facing the sunset? Or is he throwing himself headlong at that realization, drinking in a latently desperate mood of, "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you may die?" Inasmuch as he is well educated and highly intelligent (so you say), I am assuming he isn't the kind of fool who could be thrown off his course simply by the example of "fast company," even supposing his latter-day success has newly exposed him to such association.

As for advice: I am reminded of what an unusually candid psychiatrist once said to me, when I posed a drink problem to him. He said, "Only God can help a drunkard; and then only if he is willing to be helped." That blunt statement, published in my column of that day (several years ago) brought a startled, reproving reaction from other members of the psychiatric profession. However, I have always considered it a magnificent instance of plain speaking on the part of a specialist weary of laboring with recalcitrant drinkers, who secretly preferred their ailment to its cure. Nobody and nothing can help your husband until he is ready to admit he needs help; until he sincerely wants and seeks help. And apparently he hasn't reached that turning point yet. But maybe this exchange will set him thinking along the lines that will lead to restored equilibrium. M. H.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Attend Club Luncheon

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by the American Newspaper Women's Club at the Mayflower Hotel at one o'clock.

Due to the luncheon today, the opening of the American Newspaper Women's Club Poster Bond Drive, which was scheduled to open tomorrow at the Mayflower, has been postponed until November 12. The exhibit of posters of the First World War will open that evening with a formal reception, and will continue through November 15 for the purpose of raising a mobile operating unit for the Armed Services. Those attending will be urged to buy at least 50 cents worth of war stamps toward the purchase of the mobile operating unit.

Tasted fish baked in White Wine?

And with wine at table

POINT-THRIFTY RECIPE

Brush 4 small fish (about ½ lb. each) inside and out with melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle with salt, celery salt, and pepper. Slash sides lightly to prevent curling. Lay in shallow baking pan, add 1 cup Rhine Wine and a bay leaf. Bake in hot oven (450°) 20 minutes, or until done, basting occasionally. Remove fish and slightly thicken wine remaining in pan to make sauce. Serves 4.

● Baked fish is really "something"—baked in pale golden, flavorful California Rhine Wine! This wine is also grand to serve chilled at the table along with your wine-baked fish. You'll find this sprightly wine points up delicate flavors. Why don't you try it tonight? Wine Advisory Board, San Francisco.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells Soroptimists of Trip

By Genevieve Reynolds

In the swamps of Guadalcanal and the jungles of New Guinea our boys are dreaming about the kind of world they expect to find on their return. They are asking: Will we have the chance to get the kind of education we want? Will there be legislation that we can depend on? Are we going to have jobs? All this Mrs. Roosevelt, the First Lady, told members of the Soroptimist Club of Washington and their guests at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the Willar Hotel.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Referring to her recent trip to the Pacific war zone, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"All the way and after I got home, the thing that stuck with me is that it is our responsibility to see that the sacrifices the boys are making—giving up the things they want—are made worth while."

She told how the boys must lead a Robinson Crusoe type of life. If they want floors in their tents they must build them; also furniture, for on many islands there is nothing to buy except those things furnished by the Army store. Vividly, she told how the boys must wade knee deep in swamps, learn to camouflage and in fact be completely resourceful in a strange land under almost primitive conditions.

Want to Stay and Fight

While she found many boys eager to get home, she pointed out that no matter how homesick, they declared they preferred to stay on the island and fight if it meant fewer supplies for the fighting men. Many recalled how they fought with insufficient supplies.

On many of the islands no white woman has been allowed. Mrs. Roosevelt recalled that as she rode by a group on Guadalcanal, some of the boys yelled to her: "Hi Baby." I knew then there was a real need for women on that island, she explained smilingly.

Whether the boys will have jobs to come back to depends in a large measure upon what we think through on international affairs, Mrs. Roosevelt said. For our economy must be based on international events, according to the First Lady, who urged her listeners to sit down and face things as they are today.

"The boys have the dreams but have no time or opportunity to put them into effect," she declared. "Whereas we have both time and the opportunity to translate their dreams into reality."

It was while she was on one of the islands that she heard the Lord's Prayer sung for the first time. The young aviators sang it feelingly before starting out on bomber missions. Incidentally, the guest soloist, Shrama, sang the Lord's Prayer at the luncheon, and received a big compliment from the First Lady on his rendition.

Tribute to Nurses

Mrs. Roosevelt paid high tribute to the nurses and Red Cross women whom she encountered in the various Pacific areas. She told how many get up two or three times during the night to make beds for the aviators or to get their breakfast before they start out on missions.

She made it clear that the Army matures quickly and that those who come back will be different people than those we knew before fighting in the far corners of the world.

Rose Robinson Cohen, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Roosevelt, and Miss Mildred Clum, president, presided and introduced other distinguished guests. Mrs. Harriet P. Tyler, president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, gave a short talk. She came from San Francisco especially to attend the luncheon. Mrs. Pearl Sharpe, Atlantic regional director, was present, as was the president of the Venture Club, Verna Steines. Approximately 300 Sorops and their friends turned out to hear Mrs. Roosevelt.

Medal Given To Col. Okie Of Virginia

The Soldier's Medal, awarded for extraordinary heroism, has been presented to Lieut. Col. Frederick W. Okie, U. S. Army, of Piedmont Farm, Marshall, Va.

Lieutenant Colonel Okie is the son of Mrs. H. L. Gaddis of Marshall and the late Frederick W. Okie of Washington.

Last summer the Virginia officer received the Legion of Merit Medal for personal valor. The new decoration has been made as a result of Colonel Okie's action when a fire broke out in a captured railway freight depot containing enemy ammunition. The citation stated:

"With utter disregard for his personal safety, Colonel Okie supervised and assisted in coupling and removing cars of American ammunition, rations and bridge material from which shells were exploding in all directions. His action, even though in danger of death or injury from flying fragments, resulted in the saving of much badly needed supplies and prevented serious damage to vital railroad facilities."

Colonel Okie is commanding officer of the 727th Railway Operating Battalion, which has established a brilliant record for outstanding performance in the North African and Sicilian campaign. In civilian life, he was connected with the Southern Railway, stationed at Birmingham, Ala.

Senor Copello To Succeed Dr. Troncoso

The retiring Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Troncoso will leave in early November to return to their own country, and Anselmo Copello, named to succeed Dr. Troncoso, is expected to rrive in Washington shortly thereafter.

Senor Copello is taking his first assignment in the foreign service field. A businessman for 30 years or more, the new Ambassador is president of the Dominican Reserve Bank and president of the largest of the island republic's tobacco firms.

A delegate to the food conference held at Hot Springs, Va., last summer, Senor Copello has been a visitor to this country many times. When he comes to take over his post here, it is expected that he will be accompanied by Senora de Copello and their children. There are four girls and one son, the latter married to an American girl and living in the Dominican Republic.

Congratulations are due Dr. Julio Vega Julio Batlle, first secretary of the Dominican Republic, who has received word of his promotion to Minister-Counselor of Embassy.

Dr. and Senora de Vega have with them for a visit Senora de Vega's cousin, Manuel de Moya, member of the House of Deputies of the Dominican Republic. Senor de Moya will go to California shortly and will return for another visit here before returning home.

Mr., Mrs. Townsend Here for Visit On Way to Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's shoals of friends are giving them a real welcome during their few days in Washington before they leave next week for their winter home at Pass-a-Grille, Fla. They are staying with Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr at her home on Wyoming ave., after spending the summer at their cottage at Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Since selling their house on Twenty-first st., where they lived for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend divide their time between Florida and Schroon Lake, but never fail to stop in Washington on their journeys North and South.

A gifted musician, Mrs. Townsend is a pianist as well as a composer and her morning musicales held at the Mayflower were leading musical as well as social events for a number of years.

Artist to Exhibit His Latest Portrait

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin will be hostesses for Nicholas Pavloff, at the cocktail party he will give tomorrow afternoon at the Shoreham to show his recently completed portrait of Sir Henry French, permanent secretary of the British Ministry for Food.

Other portraits to be on view will be those of the Duchess of Crussol and Mrs. Alexander Gordon, both of whom are coming from Baltimore to attend the party, and that of Mrs. Sherman Pratt of Long Island.

Mr. Pavloff will entertain at dinner following the cocktail party.

Candlelight Concerts to Be Revived at Gadsby's Tavern

William R. Adam Is Making Plans For Concert Early in December

Important news for lovers of music is the announcement by William Robert Adam, young Alexandria impresario, that the Candlelight Concerts at Gadsby's Tavern, setting of the George Washington birthday balls, are to be revived after more than two years.

Mr. Adam, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Adam of 120 East Walnut street in Alexandria, is one of the city's returning servicemen and has been honorably discharged from the Army for physical disability after a two-year tour of duty.

Now that he has made the readjustment to civilian life and is continuing his work for the war in an essential occupation as a member of the censorship staff of the War Department, he is resuming his other activities.

In addition to planning a gala concert for this winter—which Mr. Adam says will be held early in December—he is donating one evening a week, on Wednesday nights, at the Alexandria Library, 717 Queen st., where he was formerly an assistant.

The third and last concert before the two-year interlude in the Gadsby's series was held in May of 1941, just one month after Mr. Adam entered the Army and was assigned to the Third Corps Area reception center at Fort George G. Meade, Md., for duty with the 121st Engineers in the Twenty-ninth Division.

Because he was not available to complete the arrangements, Mr. Adam invited Mrs. Joseph Prendergast to take charge as sponsor. She is the wife of Lieutenant Prendergast, who was then special assistant to Attorney General Francis Biddle and assistant chief of the war policies unit in the Department of Justice. He is now an officer in the Armored Force and is serving as aide de camp to Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Camp, assistant commander of the Armored Force Replacement Training Center at Fort Knox, Ky.

Mr. Adam, in opening Gadsby's for music once more, will have the same Colonial background of quiet charm with huge fires burning in the open fireplaces, the brilliant glow of numerous candles casting reflections on the highly polished Georgian period furniture, and the cheer of a friendly welcome for his guests in a reception in the downstairs drawing room.

Billie Byrd West To Be Bride of Ensign W. T. Bell

Mr. and Mrs. William H. West announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Billie Byrd West, to Ensign William Tompkins Bell, USNR, son of Mrs. Virginia Tompkins Bell of Seminary Hill, Alexandria, Va., and the late Cecil Paul Bell. Ensign Bell is now on active duty.

Miss West was graduated from Holton-Arms in 1939 and made her club debut that year at the Sulgrave Club. Ensign Bell is a graduate of Yale University, where he was a member of Skull and Bones, DEKE, and the Aurelian Society. He received his commission at Columbia University.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Dance for Officers

The Officers Service Club of the United Nations will give a special Halloween dance tomorrow evening beginning at 8:45 in its newly decorated and enlarged quarters at the Burlington Hotel. Mrs. Clyde B. Parker is in charge of the dance.

MRS. JOHN DAVIES STAMM who was married to Lieutenant Stamm, USNR, Monday in St. Bartholomew's Church in New York. She is the former Miss Sara Barney Babbitt, daughter of Mrs. John Edward Babbitt of New York and Walpole, N. H. Lieutenant Stamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Stamm of Milwaukee, Wis., is a nephew of Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, who served as best man in the ceremony

Spanish Group To Hear Talk By Senora Baralt

Senora de Baralt of Cuba will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Spanish group this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr., on Thomas circle.

Prof. Ramon Ramos, instructor of the group, will show a Cuban film which will be interpolated by Senora de Baralt.

Senora de Baralt, who is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. Mariano Brull, Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, and Senora de Brull, will be a guest of Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin at the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon today at the Mayflower in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Among Mrs. Goodwin's other guests will be several wives of Latin-American envoys, including Senora de Castillo Najera, Senora de Guachalla, Senora de Escalante and Senora de Blanco.

Two Methods To Cut Down Overweight

By Logan Clendenning, M.D.

There have been several classical forms of treatment of overweight, which can roughly be divided into two classes—one based on the theory that overweight is due to a disturbance of the internal glands and that giving one or other remedy by mouth corrects the difficulty, and the other the simple idea that a person gains weight because he eats too much.

The first method depends on the administration of thyroid extract or pituitary extract and works all right in the proper cases.

The principal trouble in treating the second class of cases is that they say they hardly eat a thing. According to them, they have the appetite of birds, and very small birds at that.

If, however, you want to get the real lowdown on this group, do what my friend Dr. Newburgh, at Ann Arbor, does with them. He locks one in a room and sees to it that only so much food is brought to him a day. About the end of the twelfth hour a howl goes up that sounds as if the Michigan Central were passing under a culvert. If Dr. Newburgh can keep one in that room long enough he reduces him from 300 to 150 pounds simply by giving him just what a bird would eat.

The latest form of treatment for overweight is to give them something to take their appetite away. The substance is called amphetamine sulphate. This is taken an hour before meals and then you don't eat hardly any meals.

What the stuff does, apparently, is to stop all motion, or nearly all motion, in the stomach. It also has a psychic effect in that you do not feel like eating.

The system seems to work out, according to the investigators. The average weight loss is reported at 2 pounds a week.

What the final outcome of the treatment will be I naturally don't know. It is better than being locked in a room for six months and having nothing but some lettuce and tea brought to you, but anything that you take by mouth that makes a blueberry pie look like a mud-puddle cake hasn't much future, in my opinion.

The Met. Jumps the Gun; Columbia Changes Mind

THE DECISION having been of the eleventh-hour variety, it may interest a considerable number of prospective show-shoppers to know that the Metropolitan Theater is beating the gun this week by opening the second downtown engagement of RKO-Radio's "A Lady Takes a Chance" this morning, instead of tomorrow

JEAN ARTHUR

This is the whimsical comedy of a cross-country bus trip that ended in a rodeo romance, in which Jean Arthur and John Wayne are the costars, each in a hand-tailored, perfectly-fitting role. No frenzied "Western" this, but a quietly and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment, nevertheless. Occasionally, it is uproariously funny—as when Miss Arthur samples a slug of "cactus milk," for example, thinking it a first cousin to a chocolate-malted!

At any rate, it reopens today.

The vacillation contagion even has spread up the street to the west and attacked Loew's Columbia. The Columbia has just now purged the back of its mind of the idea of breaking out Sonja Henie's "Wintertime" for a repeat F Street engagement the week of November 4 and has popped the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Paris After Dark" into that spot, instead. George Sanders, Philip Dorn and Brenda Marshall are at the top of the cast of this one.

ᔓᔕ

And another thing. That Halloween midnight show complex is working its way from the fringes down into the heart of the city, too. Loew's Capitol Theater is the first of the midcity first-runners to announce gay goings-on for the witching hour Saturday night. At the stroke of 12 midnight—give or take a minute or two, one way or the other—the big-seater will take off with a complete presentation of the bill opening today, including Woody Herman and His Orchestra in a hepcat session guaranteed to keep even the wildest of the revelers in the groove. This is the band, it will be recalled, that does the tootling for Miss Henie in "Wintertime," the one that won't be reopening at the Columbia's week from today. Frances Wayne is the new vocaliste with Mr. Herman's harmonists, in case you have been wondering. Or if you haven't, for that matter The Earle's regular Saturday midnight performance, as usual.

Heavy, Heavy Hangs Just Ahead

With the advance seat sale as heavy as it is—and it is plenty hefty—the eager theatergoer might be pardoned for expecting Olsen and Johnson's "Sons o' Fun" to open next Sunday night, instead of Monday, at the National Theater. There's a reason. Two of 'em, in fact.

One is that it took the stage crew 26 hours to rig up the production for the first performance at the Forrest Theater in Philadlphia. While the practice that makes perfect may since have reduced that time to 16 or 18 hours, the production is still so big—or so we are told—that it isn't safe to take the risk of getting it to Washington and set up in time for a Sunday opening.

Anyhow—and this is the second reason—Actors Equity rules that eight performances constitute a week's work for any cast and that a week's engagement normally is from Monday through Saturday, with two matinees. Those will fall, as usual, on Wednesday and Saturday at the National.

However, and this is the balm in Gilead, there will be an extra afternoon performance on Sunday, November 7. From the looks of that box-office line, those wishing to buy seats could do worse than be getting about it!

ᔓᔕ

"Whisker," the 2-year-old Scottie that plays an important role in the Warner Brothers "Princess O'Rourke," already briefly celebrated in this space, is about to leave Hollywood for a transcontinental tour of "personal appearances." The canine actor that plays the part of the President's Fala in the White House sequences of the film, will visit the leading kennel clubs throughout the country and end his junket in Washington, in the hope that he will be honored by an introduction to the distinguished subject of his apparently flawless impersonation. It would be all right with us if M-G-M would follow the same course with the Collie that plays the title role in "Lassie Come Home."

Just-a-Peanut-Feeder-at-the-Zoo Note

Band Vocalist to Dramatic Actress

who first attracted Hollywood's attention while singing with an orchestra and then made it really sit up by the skill of her comedy performance in "My Sister Eileen," next will be seen in a straight dramatic role in Columbia's production of "Curly." And that isn't all. Later, she will be costarred with Rita Hayworth in "Heart of a City" and then be importantly cast in "Victory Caravan," having to do with the Army camp tours.

Film Upsets Banana Planters' Routine

Hollywood.—Time-honored seasonal routine among the banana planters of Tapachula, Mexico, finally gave way to the shooting schedule of Cecil B. De Mille.

On the first day of production, D. Mille's associate director, Arthur H. Rosson, who is shooting location scenes for "The Story of Dr. Wassell" in the southern republic, fretted for hours while waiting for a thick haze to clear up. Finally he learned that there was nothing the matter with the weather; it was just that workers on a banana plantation 10 miles away were engaged in the annual spring chore of burning dry weeds.

When Rosson went over to the plantation and remonstrated, the planter obligingly called off his men. The weed burning waited until the movie was filmed.

The girl answered: "It was the best seat—because I sat next to Frank Sinatra" . . . As soon as Jack Benny can get another leave he'll make another tour overseas . . . The Yacht Club Boys, who returned from Cairo, have been signed by Universal.

Prop Men Have Hard Time Finding Toys

The toy factory set for "Standing Room Only" at Paramount studio was stuffed with panda bears, wooly dogs, pink and white kittens, Bambis, penguins, wooden soldiers, doll houses, sail boats and a horde of small donkeys.

Getting enough toys to fill the factory set was no easy task for Art Kemp, prop man on the picture. Local toy shop shelves were as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, so most of them were obtained from Eastern factories. Some of the larger pieces were rented, all others were bought, and with this start Paramount plans to set up a toy factory of its own, which may come in handy next holiday season.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THE AMERICAN PUBLIC doesn't know it, but blame for current civil war in Greece traces direct to the doorstep of the United States and its new policy of following the British policy of king-bowing. Here is the inside story, as told by uncensored diplomatic dispatches.

More than a year ago, a British colonel, sent as a sapper to blow up a railroad bridge between Athens and Saloniki, failed to make connection with British naval units which were to take him out of Greece, and was forced to remain there. For one year he led and mingled with Greek guerillas, finally making his way back to Cairo this past summer.

In Cairo he reported that while the Greek underground controlled much of the country away from the main highways and cities, the chief thing which held back greater anti-Nazi insurrection was British-American support for King George II.

George II, sponsor and abettor of the hated Metaxis dictatorship, had been brought to the USA, wined and dined by President Roosevelt, and groomed to take over Greece after the Nazis were driven out. This, the British colonel reported, did not go down well with fighting Greeks, who could not see much difference between Nazi rule and royal Greek rule.

Following this, the Greek underground groups sent representatives to Cairo. Simultaneously, George Exindaris, representative of old line Greek political parties, was persuaded by the British colonel to come to Cairo, independently of the underground leaders.

No King for Greece

WHEREUPON, the seven underground leaders, meeting with Exindaris in Cairo, agreed that the Greek people should shun politics and concenerate on the enemy, and that King George should remain out of the picture. He should be given a regular allowance, they declared, but should not come back to Greece until the Greek people had had a plebiscite after the war on whether they wanted a monarchy or a republic.

The underground leaders drew up a protocol to this effect and handed it to the Greek cabinet. In a joint meeting it was unanimously approved. This was one of the few unanimous decisions taken by the Greek cabinet recently. Even the Prime Minister, a close friend of the King, signed the protocol. However, because he was so close to the King he asked that the Vice Prime Minister present it to him.

After receiving the protocol King George invited the cabinet to a crown council, at which the underground leaders set forth the sentiment of the Greek people and warned that any other policy than a plebiscite regarding a monarchy would plunge Greece into civil war.

King George listened politely, replied, in effect:

"Gentlemen, I thank you for your courtesy and enlightenment, I shall give my answer after consulting my friends, Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt."

Roosevelt and King

MEANWHILE, ALEXANDER KIRK, United States Ambassador to Egypt and Greece, had been dropping quiet and persistent hints that King George was the great and good friend of President Roosevelt.

Two days later, the Greek cabinet and guerilla chiefs were called in by British Minister-for-the-Middle East, Richard Casey, former Australian Minister in Washington. Present at the meeting was Sir Maitland Wilson, British army commander for the Balkans.

Casey immediately launched a tirade against the Greek cabinet, severely criticized their opposition to the King. Frequently during the tirade he turned to Maitland Wilson to ask:

"Commander, are you with me in this?"

Maitland Wilson replied vigorously in the affirmative.

The Greek cabinet member who argued most with Casey was Sophocles Venizelos, son of the former Greek liberator and now Greek Minister of Marine. Until February of this year, Venizelos had been in the United States and felt that the American people did not believe in forcing a King down the throats of the Greek people. At one point Casey turned to him and said:

"What kind of a minister of the crown are you to recommend to your King that he not return to his people?"

Venizelos replied that the appointment of a Greek cabinet by the crown was only a formality and that the cabinet really represented the Greek people, not the King. Venizelos also asked Casey whether, in lecturing them, he was representing the views of the British government or his own personal views.

Casey replied that he was speaking personally. Vice Premier George Rousos then suggested that the Greek cabinet would like to have the views of the British government. So Casey said he would refer the matter to Churchill.

Kept Senators Away

Meanwhile, the five American Senators passed through Cairo, but the British took good care to keep the Greek underground leaders away from them. Meanwhile, also, United States Ambassador Kirk, though much more discreet than Casey, had been saying privately that the Greek cabinet should stand behind the King.

About 15 days later Churchill wired King George a flamingly worded message, giving him full support and instructing him to "ride forward into battle at the head of your troops." Churchill apparently did not know that on the one occasion King George had reviewed Greek troops in exile they had to be disarmed in advance by the British for fear they would shoot him.

Roosevelt sent a much milder message, nevertheless expressing his support.

This ended the incident, except that the British brusquely notified the seven underground leaders a day or two later that they must pack up and leave for Greece. At the Cairo airport the seven leaders suddenly realized that they were to fly over Greece and bail out.

"The corporal will show you how to pull your parachutes," they were instructed.

None had ever used a parachute before, and they didn't know where they would land. They asked permission to phone Premier Tsouderos. He informed Casey, who stopped the plane's departure.

There the matter rests, except that insurrection against the King has spread to the point where open warfare has broken out in Greece.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Shop Torque — By Milton Caniff

NOW ABOUT IT, TERRY?
WELL, COL. CORKIN! I KNOW NOW WHY FIGHTER PILOTS WOULD RATHER FLY THAN EAT!
UNWIND A BIT—THEN KNOCK OFF SOME MORE TIME! GOT TO PILE UP THOSE HOURS!
THAT SPEED GETS TO YOU AT FIRST-BUT IT FEELS GOOD!
HAVE ANY TROUBLE WITH THE VARIABLE PITCH PROP? DID YOU NOTICE THE DIFFERENCE THE GREATER SPEED MAKES ON THE CONTROL SURFACES?
AHEM!
OH-HELLO, GRETT!... I DIDN'T SEE YOU COME UP!
I DIDN'T JUST COME UP! I'VE BEEN OBSCURED BY PROP WASH!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

I STILL THINK YOU SHOULD HAVE BOUGHT A PULLMAN TICKET, AUNT MARY!
NO, PATTI! I FEEL GUILTY USING THE TRAIN AT ALL···IN TIMES LIKE THESE! I WANT TO TAKE AS LITTLE SPACE AS POSSIBLE!
WELL··THIS IS WHERE WE SAY GOODBYE!···BUT I'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR ALL YOU'VE DONE!
YOU'RE A SWEET GIRL··· DON'T EVER CHANGE! GOODBYE, PATTI!
CAN'T UNDERSTAND··· QUEER FEELING···IN MY HEAD···!

MICKEY FINN — Home Work — By Lank Leonard

I GUESS I WAS RIGHT ABOUT PHIL TRYING FOR SOME BONUS AT THE FACTORY! HE MUST BE VERY TIRED OR HE WOULDN'T HAVE GONE RIGHT UP TO BED AFTER SUPPER!
BUT FLOSSIE, IF THAT'S HOW HE EXPECTS TO MAKE THE EXTRA MONEY, WOULDN'T YOU THINK HE'D SAY SO?
MAYBE HE WANTS TO MAKE SURE HE'S EARNED IT BEFORE HE SAYS ANYTHING! HE MAY HAVE TO ALMOST DOUBLE THE PRODUCTION OF HIS MACHINE!
WELL, I CERTAINLY HOPE HE DOESN'T WORK HIMSELF INTO A BREAKDOWN! I THINK I'LL GO UP AND SEE HOW HE IS!
OH, SURE! I'M JUST READIN' MYSELF TO SLEEP!
THE RACING NEWS

MR. AND MRS. — Before and After the Party — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

H'LO, MR. GREEN
HOW DO, MR. GREEN
LADIES!
HAVE SOME CANDY, MR. GREEN?
NO, THANKS. NEVER TOUCH IT
OH, GO ON! THEY'RE GOOD!
NO, NO. HAVE TO THINK OF MY FIGURE. HEH, HEH, HEH!
FOR LAND'S SAKE, LEAVE SOME OF THEM! I MIGHT WANT TO EAT ONE OR TWO MYSELF!

DIXIE DUGAN — Congratulations or Condolences? — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

IT DOESN'T TAKE LONG FOR THE NEWS TO SPREAD THAT DIXIE AND ARTHUR SOON WILL WED!
IS IT TRUE???
GULP
I KNOW HOW OVERCOME AND HAPPY YOU MUST BE—BLESS YOU BOTH
I HOPE YOU'LL BOTH BE VERY HAPPY
THERE SHE IS!
COME ON OVER, HONEY!
ART—YOU LUCKY SO AND SO

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

HALLOWEEN USED TO BE A NIGHT. NOW IT'S A WHOLE WEEK!
I'LL PUT A STOP TO THAT!
RING RING
I'LL CHAIN BINGO TO THE FRONT PORCH AND HE'LL KEEP 'EM AWAY!
YOU'D BETTER GET OUT THERE BEFORE BINGO TAKES SOMEBODY'S ARM OFF!
ART-ACK! WOOF! CRASH! ARF!
BINGO TOOK THE FRONT PORCH!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Murder Club — By Frank Martinek

NOW THAT OUR UPTOWN ESTABLISHMENT IS GONE WE MUST BUILD A NEW ONE!!
THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE, MASTER. THE HEAT'S STILL ON!
GREDA, CALL A MEETING! I MUST OUTLINE OUR FUTURE PLANS!
WE MEMBERS OF A SECRET ASSASSIN'S CLUB KNOWN AS THE SOCIETY OF DEATH HAVE HAD A SERIOUS SETBACK! OUR PLANS ARE....

JOE PALOOKA — Digger — By Ham Fisher

HELLO, DIGGER. I HAVEN'T SEEN YOU IN A WEEK. WHAT'S NEW?
HULLO, JOE OLD BOY. NOTHING MUCH. HOW'S THE SHOULDER WOUND?
FAIR DINKUM!
HO HO. YOU'VE PICKED UP OUR AUSTRALIAN EXPRESSIONS. HOW'S JERRY AND BIG MIKE?
BOTH ARE COMIN' ALONG FINE. ANY NEWS ABOUT PUSHIN' ON?
NOT FOR A WHILE I GUESS. THE VOYODDA WANTS TO HOLD THIS SPOT FOR THE TIME BEING.
I HEARD SOME SHOOTIN' THIS MORNING. WHAT WAS IT?
JUST A BIT OF TARGET PRACTICE. THE BOYS CAPTURED TWO QUISLINGS. WELL CHEERIO OLD BEAN.

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

AH WOULDN'T COUNT MY CATTLE TILL AH HAD 'EM CORRALLED, MINNIE-HA-CHA!
WHY-- WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
WELL, SPOSIN' YOU AN STEVE DO GET SPLICED---CHANCES ARE HE'LL BE SENT OFF ON ONE O' THEM MYSTERIOUS JAUNTS BEFORE THE INK'S DRY ON YOUR LICENSE!!
SO AH AIM TO HANG ONTO THIS APARTMENT FOR A SPELL! THEN, IF STEVE DOES HAVE TO GO GALLIVANTIN' OFF SOMEWHERE--!
I KNOW YOU'RE RIGHT, TEX! --BUT I DON'T WANT TO THINK ABOUT THAT--TONIGHT!

JANE ARDEN — I'll Be Waiting — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

I PULLED ALL THE TRICKS IN THE BAG AND NONE OF THEM WORKED—
I DON'T HAVE TO ASK YOU WHAT KIND OF LUCK YOU HAD—HE'LL FALL FOR ANYTHING BUT ME!
OKAY—LET'S PUT ON THE HEAT—SHAKE HIM DOWN FOR PLENTY AND THEN BLOW!
NO—THE BIG DOUGH IS IN PLAYING IT MY WAY—I'LL TRY ONCE MORE!
HE'LL BE HERE TONIGHT—IF I FAIL THEN, I'LL RAISE THAT WINDOW SHADE—THAT WILL BE YOUR CUE TO START THE ROUGH STUFF!
OKAY, BABY—NOW YOU'RE TALKING MY LANGUAGE—I'LL BE ALL SET!

MR. AND MRS. SWAN DOUT ESCAPED THROUGH THAT HOLE IN THE WALL.. AND SUPERMAN STARTED AFTER THEM IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION! EITHER HE'S CRAZY—OR I AM!
BUT THE MAN OF TOMORROW HAS LEFT THE REAR OF THE BUILDING AND STREAKS AROUND THE BLOCK WITH THE SPEED OF LIGHT...
HOPE NOTHING GETS IN MY WAY!
JUST ANOTHER BLOCK TO THE STORE THAT NEEDS THIS NEW PLATE GLASS WINDOW.
BUT, JOE—LOOK! WHAT'S THAT COMIN' TOWARD US!!?
GREAT SCOTT! A PLATE GLASS WINDOW! IT CAN'T HURT ME—BUT I HATE TO THINK WHAT IT'LL DO TO THEM! AND I'M GOING TOO FAST TO STOP!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

YOU THEENK EET WAS CLEVAIR, RETURNING KING'S UNIFORM AFTER I TAKE EET FROM HEEM, SO THE INDIANS WOULD NOT KNOW HE WAS A MOUNTIE!
SOONER OR LATER THEY WOULD LEARN THEY HAD KILLED A MOUNTIE. THEN WHAT, DIABLO?
CARELESSLY, DIABLO FLIPS HIS MATCH AWAY....INSTANTLY, OIL FROM A BROKEN LAMP IN THE WRECKED GYPSY WAGON IGNITES!
I PLANNED FOR THE INDIANS TO KILL KING! THEENK WHAT THE LAW DO TO THEM, PENNY, HA, HA!...BUT YOU SPOILED EET! SO...

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

New Service Center Inspected By Mrs. Roosevelt on Opening

The former Capitol Park Hotel, 500 N. Capitol st. ne., formally became a haven for members of the armed forces, both men and women, yesterday afternoon when it was turned over to Recreation Services, Inc., by Baird Snyder, assistant administrator of the Federal Work Administration, which purchased the building and adjacent parking lot. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, after making a floor-by-floor inspection, warmly approved all she had seen. Two American-born Japanese soldiers, among the first to register for accommodations, were also hearty in their expressions of appreciation.

Impressed by Quarters

"I think it a perfectly splendid place," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

The little soldiers, they were born in Hawaii, whom she met as she was leaving, confined themselves to "Very nice, very vice, in chorus, in response to Mrs. Roosevelt's question as to how they liked their quarters. They grinned, shuffled their feet in ambarrassment and repeated, "Very nice, very nice."

They identified themselves as Masari Shimose, 23, and proud of the fact he topped his companion, Naoki Misawa, also 23, by 2 inches. Naoki is 5 feet 2. Both are definately Japanese in build and looks, with the exception they do not wear glasses.

Following her tour of inspection Mrs. Roosevelt talked with newspaper representatives and gave her impression of the project. During her interview she said:

"I am sure that it will be overrun at once, and it will clear out the terrible congestion at the Union Station, where our poor boys have been sleeping as best they could, on benches, and even on the floor, or, failing in that, standing up all night.

"I am especially impressed with provisions made for the care of babies and young children, with nurses on duty 24 hours a day. The baby care is wonderful.

Room for 214 Persons

The hotel affords sleeping accommodations for 214 persons and its crowded capacity was placed at about 250. The present price range is from $1 per person dormitory style, up to $2 a room. These are for enlisted personnel. For officers the prices are higher, from $2.50 to $6.

Jap Planes Active Again in Aleutians

Adak, Aleutians, Oct. 27 (AP).—Resumption of Japanese air activities in the Aleutian area may indicate increasing nervousness among Tokyo warmakers over what new trouble is brewing for them in the stormy North Pacific.

The presence of enemy planes, presumably on reconnaissance, in Alaska was disclosed by Navy announcements that two Japanese craft have been encountered and driven off during the past week near Attu. These air contacts followed the October 13 bombing of Attu in which high-flying bombers inflicted no damage.

Named Rear Admirals

Two Navy captains, Timothy J. Keleher, Far Rockaway, N. Y., and Lawrence B. Richardson, Methuen, Mass., were nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday to be rear admirals.
